CAMP ARIFJAN, Kuwait – Several hundred service members filled the chapel here, April 15 to pay their last respects to Staff Sgt. Jesse A. Ault, who died of injuries sustained when an improvised explosive device struck his vehicle April 9.

Tears fell from the eyes of Soldiers, Sailors and Airmen who knew Ault, as they gathered to listen to several speakers at the memorial.

The ceremony began with a short prayer from Capt. Erik Grambling, the Joint Logistics Task Force 28 Battalion Chaplain, “[God] knew us before we were born, he knew our lives before we lived a single one of them.”

“We are not left alone in our grief and sorrow, but are confident [of God’s] desire to be with us now,” said Grambling.

Chaplain Grambling then introduced the JLTF 28 Battalion commander, Lt. Col. Christopher Benoit.

“I did not have the opportunity to know Staff Sergeant Ault beyond his firm handshake and smile,” said Benoit. “His death again reminded me of the great sacrifice we are prepared to make for one another, our families and our country.”

Ault, a native of Dublin, Va., was a husband, father and son. He previously deployed in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom twice.

Ault, after being notified that his comrades from a previous deployment were mobilizing again, pledged his services once more to the Virginia National Guard to take his wife’s place for deployment.

After, Lt. Col. Benoit’s comments, 1st Lt. Steven Thompson, Staff Sgt. Ault’s platoon leader, rose to the podium and

Our BTB Commander's Word

LTC Kevin Stevens
Brigade Troops Battalion Commander

On behalf of the Soldiers and Families of the 4th Sustainment Brigade, Brigade Troops Battalion (BTB), I would like to welcome our newcomers, their Families and the 9th Financial Management Company to the 'Wolfpack' formation. The Soldiers of the 'Wolfpack' Battalion live by the motto 'Hem Perficite' which translates to 'Just Get It Done.' Our motto exemplifies the integrity, honor, and excellence in all that we do.

I would like to share a little about the 'Wolfpack' Battalion. The Soldiers of this distinct formation hail from Fort Hood, Texas. The 4th Sustainment Brigade, Brigade Troops Battalion was established on 16 December 2004. So far, the Brigade Troops Battalion has served in Operation Iraqi Freedom 05-07 in Taji, Iraq, and is currently deployed to Kuwait in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom 08-10. This battalion is currently task organized with a Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Signal Company, and a Finance Company. The 'Wolfpack' battalion is the primary life support for the 4th Sustainment Brigade Headquarters, and is conducting operations for the 4th Sustainment Brigade, focusing on logistical support, tactical communication, organizational maintenance, Level I Medical Support, combat medical support, financial management support, and food service support. To all of the subordinate battalions, the BTB is committed to providing you with responsive mission support and customer service.

To the Soldiers of the 'Wolfpack' Battalion, I recognize the commitment and increasing sacrifices that you and your Families are continuing to make.

Our foundation for success is derived from your strength and ability to be flexible and open for changes. One of the key elements for managing change and stress is maintaining a positive attitude. Find the silver lining in the challenges you are facing and turn them into opportunities.

I charge to the 'Wolfpack' Battalion, that the journey has just begun, let's continue to press for excellence, drive for improved performance and value in all that we do.

Wolfpack 6, out.

The BTB CSM Remarks

CSM C.W. Mitchell, Jr.
Brigade Troops Battalion
Command Sergeant Major

Welcome to all of our newcomers and their Families and 9th Financial Management Company. Thank you for quickly assimilating into the 'Wolfpack' routine.

It's my experience that nothing is more important than keeping our Soldiers and Families safe! This boils down to discipline and enforcing standards, so the junior leaders are the first order of business. You have the most important job at any level in the Army – and if we get this right, most of our challenges will either never appear or disappear.

“Taking care of Soldiers” is a tough course in Leadership 101, and identifies who wants to fish and who wants to cut bait! Awards, NCOERS and Retention, are leader responsibilities.

Generally, our Soldiers will maximize these opportunities directly proportionate to their leadership's ability.

The Army is a people-based organization and comprised of numerous types of Family units. Our formation has Soldiers who range from single with close Family members: Mother, Father, siblings, children, etc. to married Soldiers with their Families (and extended Families), stationed with them – often times married Army couples both have their duffle bags packed.

I challenge all Soldiers to establish some educational and financial goals.

For those who've secured a formal education and the power of compounding interest, encourage another Soldier to do the same.

Some Soldiers are moving at the speed of light, others are receiving information with the speed of sound, and the Wolfpack Battalion is continuing to grow the best Noncommissioned Officers in the world.

Leaders presence is important - “Competence is my watchword...” this requires work and a team effort to attain!

Wolfpack 7, out.

Equal Opportunity

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM AND POLICY

MISSION: The Equal Opportunity Program formulates, directs, and sustains a comprehensive effort to maximize human potential and to ensure fair treatment for all persons based solely on merit, fitness, and capability in support of readiness.

EO philosophy is based on fairness, justice, and equity. Commanders are responsible for sustaining a positive EO climate within their units. Specifically, the goals of the EO program are to:

- Provide EO for military personnel, and Family members, both on and off post and within the limits of the laws of localities, states, and host nations.

- Create and sustain effective units by eliminating discriminatory behaviors or practices that undermine teamwork, mutual respect, loyalty, and shared sacrifice of the men and women of America's Army.

POLICY: The policy of Equal Opportunity is to provide equal opportunity and fair treatment for military personnel, Family members without regard to race, color, gender, religion, or national origin, and provide an environment free of unlawful discrimination and offensive behavior.

The policy:

- Applies during duty and non-duty hours.
- Applies to working, living, and recreational environments.

ETHNIC OBSERVANCES/SPECIAL COMMEMORATION

I Sgt 1st Class James, Chalon as the 4th Sustainment Brigade Equal Opportunity Advisor would like to thank all the Soldiers and civilians of the community in advance for their support of all the ethnic events that we conduct throughout the year!!

stated that “Ault was a very squared-away non-commissioned officer by the way he presented himself and the appearance he portrayed as a professional Soldier.”

“One day, Staff Sgt. Ault approached me and asked to be considered for the lead vehicle commander,” said Thompson. “It was apparent with his prior experience in Iraq, determination, ability to navigate, and his desire to be in front; he was [the right person for the job.]”

“He was truly a family man,” said Thompson. “He was always there to help members of his platoon and did whatever had to be done to standard and without any hesitation.”

Ault was a motor transport operator, who was born Feb. 18, 1980. He graduated from high school in 1998 and enlisted into the Army Delayed Entry Program.

He finished his active duty tour in 2002 and volunteered to serve with the Virginia National Guard. Ault’s tour was nearly complete, when he volunteered to lead his fellow Soldiers again into Iraq.

“[Ault] had a dry sense of humor, but always knew when to throw in a joke to lighten up the mood,” said Staff Sgt. Jarrett Souza, Ault’s platoon sergeant. “It was an honor to have served with him and a privilege to call him a friend,” said Souza.

Two members of his company, Spc. David Teakell and Spc. Jeffrey McDaniel stood up and sang “Amazing Grace” leaving the chapel in somber thought.

Following the hallowed singing of “Amazing Grace”, Chaplain Grambling stood back up and said the memorial meditation. “One theme stood out from all the [stories] you’ve shared,” he said, “Staff Sgt. Ault raised the bar for many of us, he had served his time, done a deployment, but rejoined the Army to be with his buddies.”

“Though his unit’s time was short, he was doing his duty that night. Because he was there, one of you did not have to be. Jesse truly laid down his life for another,” said Grambling.

“May his sacrifice be a reminder of a God who didn’t just teach us, but showed us; that greater love has no one than this, that he lay down his life for his friends,” he said.

Once completed, Sgt. 1st Class Frank Mitchell, the first sergeant for Echo Company, stood and said the role call. The final one did not reply.

Seven Soldiers, each shooting three times, honored Staff Sgt. Jesse Ault. One Soldier played “Taps,” the sound to lay the deceased to REST.

ROLLOVER TRAINER SAVES LIVES

CAMP BUEHRING, Kuwait
– In any dangerous situation, the right training can help Soldiers stay calm and save lives and Soldiers of the 4th Sustainment Brigade are providing that training in the HMMWV Egress Assistance Trainer.

“We go over the steps several times on what they need to do once they are inside the vehicle, how to get outside, and what to do once they [are] outside the vehicle,” Lucatorta said. “Then we bring them over to the simulator. We simulate critical angles to show how far a HMMWV will go before it rolls over. Then we simulate a rollover and have them [get outside].”

Participates in the class say they feel the training was relevant and would help if they were caught in a rollover.

“The training was outstanding,” said Sgt. 1st Class Robert Jobe, 2nd Battalion, 43rd Air and Missile Defense Regiment, and a native of Burlington, N.C. “It gives a good idea of what to expect if this does happen. The instructors are very well qualified and informed on the material.”

Lucatorta said previous students have told the instructors how the training helped them get out of a potentially bad situation.

Medic's Advice

Guidelines for Using Supplements

Before selecting a supplement, do your own research on available supplements and the conditions for which they may be effective. However, never diagnose yourself or use a supplement instead of a proven medical treatment.

DO NOT start using a supplement until you have discussed your desire to use a supplement with your medical provider.

If you decide in consultation with your health care provider to use a supplement, be sure to read product labels, and closely follow directions for use. Start with a single product, and take the lowest dose. Increase the dosage gradually to no more than the recommended amount.

Stop taking the supplement if you feel worse after taking it or if you develop new symptoms.

If you are pregnant, breastfeeding, or taking prescription or FDA-reviewed over-the-counter medication(s), check with your health care provider first. Some supplements can interact negatively with certain drugs and/or foods.

Purchase supplements from the most reliable producers. Established manufacturers and major companies are more likely to produce a quality product. Terms such as “natural” do not assure safety.

Be wary of sensational claims. Remember the adage “If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.”

If you experience an adverse effect or illness that you think is related to supplement use, immediately contact your health care provider.

Check the FDA website for consumer warnings and general information. <http://vm.cfsan.fda.gov/~dms/supplmnt.html>.

If you think you have experienced a serious reaction to a dietary supplement, please go to <https://www.accessdata.fda.gov/scripts/medwatch/> to complete the Online Reporting Form. If you would prefer to report the adverse experience by telephone, please call the FDA Office of Emergency Operations at 301-443-1240.

Jacob A. McDonald

"I know Soldiers are leaving the class with good knowledge," said the Pal Cedro, Calif., native. "We just had a rollover on one of the ranges. [The Soldiers involved] had been through the class and they said [the training] helped them."

"We hear back from Soldiers," Lucatorta said. "They take the time to write us or e-mail us and let us know they were involved in an accident, and that the training helped save their lives; helped them calm down, keep control and get out fine."

Lucatorta said he feels the training he provides to Soldiers going into Iraq adds to the success of the mission. "[The training] minimizes injuries and potential casualties," he said. "I feel like I am contributing to saving Soldiers' lives."

Spc. Rommel S. Roldan
Supply Specialist
4th Sustainment Brigade

Spc. Rommel S. Roldan, a unit supply specialist came into the Army, Feb. 9, 2006. He went to Fort Jackson, SC., for basic training and to Fort Lee, VA., for advanced individual training. Once completed, he was assigned to Fort Hood, Texas, to the 4th Sustainment Brigade.

Roldan, entered the military to provide help for his Family, and a stepping stone in his life. "The military has helped me in some ways," said Roldan. He is getting to do things that he would not be able to do as a civilian. His decision to make the military a career is still undecided.

His advice to the new Soldiers is "no matter what obstacles you may come across in the military or civilian life, always keep your head up and stay safe," said Roldan.

Private 1st Class Charles A. Thomas, a unit supply specialist came in to the military Feb. 2, 2006. He went to Fort Jackson, SC., for basic training and Fort Lee, VA., for advanced individual training. His first duty station is Fort Hood, Texas with the 4th Sustainment Brigade.

Thomas decided to join the Army, because of his brother, "my brother is an inspiration to me," he said. Other reasons were for self-discipline, personal courage, a better work ethic, and career advancement. Thomas has served in the military for over two years. He is undecided on whether he will make a career out of military service. His father served in the military, as well.

His advice to new Soldiers is "if people are going to join the military, don't do it for someone else's reasons, do it for your own ambitions."

Spc. Keith E. Mravlja, known as 'MJ' a prior-service cavalry scout and now is a signal support systems specialist with the 4th Sustainment Brigade. Mravlja went to Burke Co. High and graduated in June of 2000 and entered the military two weeks later.

Mravlja wanted a stable job, good benefits, and wanted to serve stranger, family and friends alike. "Back then when I first enlisted, I did not know of the travel or education and benefits that were available," said Mravlja.

Mravlja said he would not make the military a career because he wants to work at the corporate level as soon as he gets the education to make it happen. "I am hoping for that to happen during this deployment," said Mravlja.

This seems to be a good deployment, mind the dust storms, living conditions and the food. "Enjoy your time, in an exotic country, that you would probably never go to regularly," said Mravlja.

CAMP ARIFJAN, Kuwait-- The players of the 'Wolfpack', get fired up for the game against EMF-K-O at the Zone One softball field. 'Wolfpack' went on to overcome errors in the game to win 11-9.

CAMP ARIFJAN, Kuwait— The Brigade Troops Battalion's softball team, nicknamed 'Wolfpack' now with a 3-1 record, beat the Expeditionary Medical Facility-Kuwait's softball team, 11-9, leaving them with no wins after the fourth game of the season, at the softball field, April 16.

The 'Wolfpack' was hungry and anxious for the win, riding the momentum from last week's 10-run win against the 109th Transportation Company, into the game.

The game was a close one with the winless, EMF-K-O looking for its first win of the season. They played well and made the 'Wolfpack' realize they have to prepare for the underdog.

The 2nd inning was tied, 2-2, but the 'Wolfpack' took the lead in the 3rd inning, 4-2, and EMF-K-O rallied to take the lead back in the 4th inning, 7-4.

After several tense moments, in which 'Lady Luck' was falling for EMF-K-O, the 'Wolfpack' looked deep inside and started making plays.

Spc. David Stout, a combat medic and Master Sgt. Eric Young, the non-commissioned officer-in-charge of food services, made several crucial outs that turned the tide in favor of the 'Wolfpack.'

The 'Wolfpack' rallied with almost no time left on the clock to win the game, improving the 'Wolfpack's' record and keeping EMF-K-O winless.

The 'Wolfpack's' next game is April 21 at the Zone One softball field. With only 6 more games until the playoffs, the Wolfpack hopes to make it to the championship game.

Happy Mother's Day to All

By Spc. John Ortiz
PUBLIC AFFAIRS NCO

CAMP ARIFJAN, Kuwait -- Mothers of deployed servicemembers all over the world now have a reason to celebrate; they can see their sons and daughters on television wishing them a happy Mother's Day.

The 4th Sustainment Brigade's Public Affairs, from Fort Hood, provided a venue for Soldiers and Airmen to broadcast their love and wishes to their moms, wives, and significant others.

Sgt. 1st Class Erick Ritterby, the chief of Public Affairs for the brigade, spearheaded the effort.

"I feel we're providing a great service to the Soldiers of [the 4 Sus Bde] by helping them deliver greetings back home to their loved ones," he said. "It might be a small part, but it's a part. At the end of the day, if one of those greetings play on TV back home and a mother, wife or significant other sees it, has all been worth it."

Recording greetings and sending them back home isn't a new idea. The armed services have given service members overseas a chance to send greetings home for the past 24 years.

Yet the 4th Sus Bde is doing something new and improved.

"The idea to do shout-outs is something the last public affairs group did. The idea was passed on to [the 4th Sustainment Brigade Public Affairs] while conducting the transition to take over the PA mission in Kuwait," said Ritterby.

"The last group had success, especially during major holidays, but [4 Sus Bde PA] is taking it one step further by focusing on smaller holidays and exposing [the 4 Sus Bde] Soldiers and Airmen to more local TV stations," said Ritterby.

"Saying a greeting brings me closer to my mom and gives her peace of mind," said Sgt. Sheila Rivera, an administrative sergeant under the 4th Sus Bde. "It allows my mom to see me and see that I'm doing ok," said Rivera, a member with Joint Logistics Task Force 28 from Manheim, Germany.

"I think it's great," said Lt. Col. Christopher Benoit, the commander of JLTF 28, "it's important for Soldiers to communicate with their families, it gives them something to talk about when their loved ones tell them they seen their [service member] on TV."

"It feels good to be able to send a shout-out to my mom," said Spc. Keith Mravlja, a native of Plythe, Ga., and a signal support systems specialist with the 4th Sus Bde, "I didn't expect to be able to do [a greeting] while deployed. I'm glad I did it, because it's a surprise gift for my mom and really, it's just another way for them to see me and for me to communicate with my parents."

SEE Mothers Day • Page 12

The 4th Sus Bde's unique mission of supplying the war fight in the Central Command Area of Operations, allows all services to participate in this unique way of reaching back home to their family.

"I've never done this before," said Airmen 1st Class Jose Sanchez, a native of Freemont, Calif., with the 60th Security Squadron from Travis Air Force Base, "I was nervous but I wanted my mother to see my face, to show her that I'm doing ok."

"This is a first for us. The 4th Sus Bde has never had a public affairs section quite like it has right now, and it has never had the capability to reach the amount of Americans back home that [the 4 Sus Bde] can reach now through shout-outs and through Dept. of Defense marketing efforts," said Ritterby.

"The public affairs capability used to end at the internal audience, but now [4th Sus Bde Public Affairs] has the capability to reach any audience worldwide, especially back home in America," he said.

"When a family sees the service member on TV, it's a huge morale boost for the family and especially the [service member] because he knows now that he can do more than just call, it's good for the American populace to see the service member in a positive light," said Ritterby.

"It helps public affairs promote and support the armed services. When the American public sees our (4th Sus Bde) Soldiers doing greetings, it's nothing but good things for the 4th Sus Bde and the Army," he said.
