Holiday Greetings from Secretary of the Navy

"As the holiday season approaches, I urge that Navy and Marine men and women everywhere pause to reflect with pride that in this time of doubt and turmoil they continue to provide to all our people a living example of steadfast dedication, loyalty and courage as they stand between America and those who wish her ill. And I ask that each of you remember in thought and prayer your brothers-in-arms who still endure in hostile hands at this season of warmth and love.

To all members and civilian employees of the United States Navy and Marine Corps, and to your families, I extend my very best wishes for a merry Christmas and a happy and peaceful New Year full of good health and happiness.

John H. Chafee
Secretary of the Navy

Season Greeting CG, FMF, PAC

"Christmas is the season of joy and the time of the year when men and women of the Christian Faith will pause to celebrate the incarnation of the Son of God.

On the occasion of the first Christmas Day, the Angeles of God set the tone of peace on earth and good will toward men. The men and women of Fleet Marine Force, Pacific and Marine Corps Bases, Pacific continue to seek a lasting peace and good will to all men. Their proud heritage of constant watchfulness and devotion to duty serves as a deterrent to those who would threaten the liberty, peace and justice of all people. While they continue to strive for this peace, they have never hesitated to open themselves to the less fortunate with friendship and good will. I congratulate all of you on your splendid accomplishments.

The message of Christmas should continue to inspire us to struggle ever harder to bring about peace and unity among all human beings. I extend my very best wishes to each of you serving with the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific and Marine Corps Bases, Pacific and to your families for a Merry Christmas and a healthful and happy New Year.

K-Bay Marine receives the Meritorious Service Medal

CWO William F. Flom, K-Bay's Maintenance Engineer Officer has been awarded the Meritorious Service Medal for his work here with the 1st Marine Brigade since August 1968.

According to his citation Mr. Flom was initially assigned as the Marine Tactical Data System Project Officer with MACS-2. Then a captain he developed detailed plans for relocating the Squadron to another site on the Station and the foresight and technical expertise which he displayed in organizing the sophisticated Marine Tactical Data System, complex radar systems, air and ground communications, and other ancillary equipment and supporting facilities was evidenced by the high level of daily air control support provided by the Squadron.

He was reassigned as Brigade Maintenance Engineer in July 1969, with concurrent duty as the Marine Corps Intergrated Maintenance Management Systems Officer. His citation reads in part, "CWO Flom authored the Brigade Commander's Policy for Supply and Maintenance Discipline and the Standing Operating Procedure for maintenance and implemented management techniques which ensured maximum coordination between

Merry Christmas, Happy New Year from CG, 1stMarBde, CO, MCAS

As Marines stationed outside the continental limits of the United States, we are upholding a tradition as old as the Corps itself. Christmas has annually been celebrated throughout the world by Marines doing their jobs thousands of miles away from their family and loved ones.

In true Hawaiian Aloha tradition, we take this opportunity to wish both our fellow Marines and Naval personnel serving here:

Mele Kalikimaka
(and)

Hauoli Makahiki Hou

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all.

We hope that in many Christmas seasons to come, although for many not the Hawaiian version, you will be filled with the true feeling and meaning of an Aloha Christmas.

Viewpoint: Marines sound-off on Drug Program, K-Bay Inn

Drug Program

The report in last week's paper by Maj. Gary of the HQMC drug program, while dealing partially with the problem, fell short of the truth to the reality of drugs. I hope to explore the inadequacies in the present Drug Exemption and Rehabilitation Program and offer some alternatives.

Drug abuse cannot be handled by a four page directive from HQMC. That's why we keep hearing "The answer must be here somewhere, but we can't seem to find it." This program needs less talk and more action.

The Marine Corps has painted Maj. Gary's picture of the drug user—the one who turned himself in. The greater part of the picture lies in the percentage of those users who do not turn themselves in.

The user who makes use of the program is planning an escape—he wants out. When the Corps realizes this, then its centers can start to work on the problems of the drug user, not the drug use or the drug.

The drug user may be white, black, red, married, unmarried, 17 or 47. He sees through the structure of the current program and sees that it is to no avail.

The user may get addicted; often he will not. Heroin, LSD and hard drugs are not routes many in the counter culture now want to take—they're aware; they don't. The ones who turn themselves in for a drug habit on hard drugs in the Marine Corps usually have more fiction than fact in their story. I've been told by the so-called addict who is getting out next week, "Man, did I ever con those guys."

The drug program in the Marine Corps is ridiculously ill-staffed in most cases. I base my knowledge from personal contact with various centers, the counselors and the clients. I've counseled with Lifeline in San Diego and have observed the Corps' drug program and am aware of some of the different techniques of counselling used in the drug culture of America.

The Marine Corps drug centers are not there to cope with the root of drug problems. They usually attack the drug itself. They don't create an atmosphere of humanness. They don't, sadly, foster trust.

I suggest a new program with trained, civilian therapists. For a person to find himself amid the weeds of society, an organization of discipline and strict military protocol that a military therapist would be forced to live with cannot be adhered to.

And then, I feel the centers should work with the problem of the drug user rather than with the drug. The problem lies with the adverse drug reaction, both physically and mentally. Drug is a noun, not a verb. The main problem is addiction, overdose and death. The reasons behind the use are what must be coped with. Addiction doesn't come as easy as we are told it does; it depends mostly on the user.

If everyone in the Corps who used drugs came forward, the troop strength would be greatly reduced. I doubt if the Marine Corps could handle this reaction.

This leaves us with a lot of problem solving to do. Update your program, recognize your need and keep in mind the words of Frederick Perls, developer of Gestalt Therapy, "Helpers are con-men who promise something for nothing. They spoil you and keep you dependent and immature."

Stephan W. Scates
Sergeant USMC

EDITOR'S NOTE: The matter of drugs and the Corps' attempt to assist Marines and deal with this Nationwide problem requires understanding through communications. Sgt. Scates' letter offers such a vehicle. Windy compliments the sergeant on coming forth with his views and observations—welcomes additional letters to the editor on this and other subjects of interest to Marines, sailors and dependents at K-Bay. As the subject addressed above is controversial, we have asked the Drug Exemption Officer to comment on Sgt. Scates' observations in the next issue of Windy.

K-Bay Inn

Last Sunday night, after attending the Kaneohe Marines-Florida State basketball game, my friend and I stopped at K-Bay Inn for something to eat. We had taken no more than two bites of our sandwiches when the night manager announced that we would have to leave immediately, along with the rest of the patrons. I looked up to see if he was serious, and he came to our table, telling us in an even ruder manner to get out.

It was 10 p.m., closing time, and he wanted all customers out. A restaurant's posted hours of operation normally refer to the time food may be ordered and served, not to the time when all customers will be locked out. But, I'll grant that it's K-Bay Inn's prerogative to interpret the hours in that way. My question is this:

If K-Bay Inn plans to be empty and locked up by 10 p.m., why don't they either (a) refuse to take any more orders at least 15 minutes before closing time, or (b) accept only orders "to go" during the last 15 minutes?

Carelessness causes fires

The number of fires in the past points to the need for continuing attention to fire prevention efforts with particular emphasis during the holiday season.

housing. Human carelessness has been the contributing cause to most fires, arson fires have continued to increase in number, and asphyxiation is the primary cause of death in most fires.

This rise in fires in living quarters requires extra attention to the hazards.

Exit drills should be encouraged along with the seriousness of the generally unrecognized hazard of smoke asphyxiation.

Fires have been prevalent, especially after social gatherings have been held in the home.

The principle causes have been smoking materials dropped on rugs, furniture or other combustible materials left undetected until fire occurs after the occupants have retired.

An individual can help prevent fires by avoiding placing ash trays near readily combustible materials and that ash trays be wide-lipped and noncombustible. Be wary where ash trays are emptied especially when retiring. Carefully examine upholstered furniture before retiring especially after a social gathering.

There are more fires in family quarters and barracks than in all other single occupied buildings and most deaths from fires have occurred in family

Their other facilities include, a swimming pool, gymnasium, music rooms, lounges, television sets, post office and check cashing service, game rooms, billiards, barber shop and a small gift and sundry shop.

They also offer programs of dances, shows, tours, card parties and many other activities.

For reservations write the Armed Services YMCA, 250 so. Hotel St., Honolulu, Hawaii 96813, or call phone number 536-3735.

Getting a divorce? Make sure it's valid

It is recognized that Marines are often advised by competent civilian attorneys that divorces obtained in Mexico and other foreign nations are valid and that there is no basis to question their validity or the validity of subsequent marriages.

The Marine Corps does not contradict these attorneys but rather subsequent marriages often cannot be recognized for purposes of receiving Marine Corps benefits.

It is recognized that the "quickie" type divorces obtained by U.S. citizens, when neither party has established a permanent legal residence, is of such doubtful validity that a later marriage may not be recognized by the Marine Corps.

A marriage contracted by a person after his or her previous marriage was supposed to have been dissolved by a foreign nation divorce may not be considered valid for benefits unless the divorce or the later marriage has been upheld by a civil court in the United States.

Marine Corps Bulletin 5800 contains all the pertinent information concerning this subject.

Armed Forces YMCA is now TLA approved

The Armed Services YMCA at 250 South Hotel Street, Honolulu, recently became the first YMCA to apply for and receive TLA Status. They will be ready to accept couples and families on their newly renovated third floor.

They are stressing the fact that wives and children will have lots of time on their hands and the YMCA is a place to spend that time with their numerous facilities.

The "Y" also offers units with double rooms to include a private or community bath double room with a private bath, a double room with semi-private bath, double rooms with community baths, and single rooms with community baths.

They offer a resident hostess to make your stay more pleasant. She will offer an introduction to the "Y" along with aiding assistance to any problems that may occur.

They also have a reasonably priced restaurant operated by the YMCA and is open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily with a special discount meal ticket available.

K-Bay's swimmin', rollin', fightin' Alligators

The Marine rifleman, known as the backbone of the Corps, is only effective when he's within shooting range of the enemy.

In recent years, vertical envelopment, the technique of air-lifting troops by helicopter to their objective, has been getting more and more use.

Still very much in the program, however, is the traditional amphibious assault, known since World War II as "Hitting the beaches."

"Delta" Company, 3rd AMTRAC (Amphibian Tractor) Battalion has the job of making sure the Marine rifleman makes it to the beach with a minimum of danger from enemy fire and, once ashore, providing support in the form of transporting troops and supplies.

To accomplish their mission, "D" Company uses mainly an LVTR (Landing Vehicle Tracked) (more commonly known since its inception in the late 1930s as the "Alligator.")

Under direct command of BG4, V.A. Armstrong, CG, 1st Mar Bde, the AMTRAC Marines are capable of landing the assault element of a Regimental Landing Team (about 900 men) on a beach with a half an hour (using about 40 vehicles).

Once ashore, the AMTRAC's show what is meant by the work "amphibian".

The AMTRAC's tractor-tracks propel it through water using small "paddles" built into the threads. Once on land, the tracks work like those of a tank, thus making the vehicle double as an armored personnel carrier.

The AMTRAC can travel up to 190 miles at a cruising speed of 30 m.p.h. on land and 57 miles at 7 to 10 m.p.h. in water.

How can a Continental V-12 1790 cubic inch engine rated at 810 horsepower can be so slow? Remember that this "mill" is encased in a 35-ton vehicle lined with 3/4-inch homogeneous steel plating.

Operated by a driver, assistant driver, and a crew chief, the AMTRAC can handle up to 30 combat equipped Marines, or 12,000 pounds of cargo.

On land the AMTRAC serves a variety of uses. Not only can it carry troops and supplies through swamps and marshland where trucks couldn't navigate, it also provides for armored protection from enemy fire.

Far from being a defenseless sitting duck, the AMTRAC has its own turret-mounted 30-caliber machine gun.

The LVTP5A1 model (seen in these photos) isn't the only AMTRAC in the Marine Corps arsenal. Company D maintains an LVTR1 recovery and maintenance vehicle which is used to lift engine parts (with a crane-type hoist attachment) and carries equipment for on-the-spot field repairs.

Another type of vehicle maintained by D Company is an LVTPCMD which looks like the "P5" on the outside, but is actually a command vehicle.

The command tractor is a mobile assault headquarters. It carries a command tent, gear, and other supplies to provide a base of operations for the Regimental Landing Team Commander and his staff.

Besides operating and maintaining their vehicles, the "AMGRUNTS" (a name picked up in Vietnam) have other tasks to accomplish.

"My troops not only have to handle their AMTRAC's, they also have to learn and train in the same skills that an infantryman has," says Major W.W. Bahnmaier, the unit's Co.

"We strive to fulfill all of our commitments," adds Major Bahnmaier, recalling some of the jobs recently handled by the "AMGRUNTS."

One of the more unusual jobs undertaken by D Company recently was literally "for the birds."

The Hawaiian stilt, a near-extinct bird, needs a particularly muddy place to build its nests. A shortage of the kind of terrain the bird needs could endanger the species. One way to provide this muddy place is by running a few AMTRACS up and down a stretch of land near water. The tracks of the tractors "mush" up enough mud to help in the fight to save these birds from extinction.

Recently, Major Bahnmaier and eight volunteers aided the Toys for Tots program by assembling 36 bicycle kits for needy youngsters.

Inspections, drill, organized sports, and other activities familiar to K-Bay's infantry Marines are also very much a part of D Company. The unit is taking the Marine Corps Force in readiness doctrine in stride.

The "AMGRUNTS" showed their infantry capabilities by providing the manpower needed to compose 50% of the aggressor forces for the recent PHIBLEX training maneuver in the Kahuku Training Area.

The AMTRAC has been with the Marine Corps since World War II, with the current LVTP5A1 model being nearly 16 years old.

Within a year, "D" Company will be phasing in a new version, the LVTP-7. This vehicle is 25% faster, weighs less, sports a turret-housed 50-caliber machine gun, and is propelled in the water by hydro jets instead of the special "paddle-type" tracks.

The company currently maintains 48 AMTRAC's: four tractor platoons (10 vehicles each), a maintenance platoon, and a headquarters platoon.

"THE DOGHOUSE", better known as an air intake and exhaust superstructure, fits above the engine in an AMTRAC and is here being lifted by the LVTR1 repair vehicle.

Just to give you an idea of the weight of an AMTRAC, consider the fact that an AMTRAC weighs as much as 35 standard Volkswagen beetles... would you believe 350 200-pound Marines?... How about two F-4J Phantom jets (unloaded, no armament and no fuel)?... if that's not clear enough, try 16,992,000 ping-pong balls!

JPAO Personnel

Here at K-Bay the Marines have worked hard at being "human" Marines during 1971, and they shined...

Anachronism took a back seat to K-Bay's desire to place human affairs in the forefront of "first things first."

As the relocation of new Brigade units worked itself out to a routine pace, Brigade unit commanders were assaulted with constant personnel manning level turbulence. Constant individual leadership changes were evident as was heightened emphasis on combating racial tensions in any form and the serious problems of drug abuse.

As if this was not enough to occupy a commander's attention, the spillover into the logistics area was also obvious. The Brigade's equipment needed attention, but a shortage of skilled manpower necessary to maintain that equipment did not deter progress.

However, coping with the problems of the young Marine became a major goal of the Brigade and Air Station, alongside the mission of achieving and supporting a fully combat ready status, respectively.

At this point both the Brigade and the Air Station joined hands and developed a joint pilot program for the eradication of minority group discrimination.

A human relations branch was established as was an Ad Hoc human relations council to advise and assist the human relations officer. The WINDWARD MARINE was used as a platform to announce and emphasize the importance that Brigadier General Armstrong and Colonel White placed in the program.

A program of this sort must necessarily generate from the top down and, in this respect, the human relations officer solicited input and attempted to gauge the feelings from field grade officer level to enlisted. The Brigade human relations contact team made several presentations to officers and staff noncommissioned officers of both the Brigade and the Air Station.

Every effort continues to be made to insure increased sensitivity of older Marines to the feelings, cultures and aspirations of minority group Marines. The experience of this developing program has already expanded significantly enough to establish it at the general staff level.

On Dec. 1, an assistant chief of staff for human affairs was established and made responsible for improvement of racial harmony and assurance of equal opportunity, enhancement of personal services and education to include the activities of the Promote Enhancement of Personal Leadership Effectiveness (PEOPLE) Training Unit; drug abatement to include educational programs relevant to alcohol, marijuana, dangerous drugs and narcotics abuse, and the drug exemption program.

As a joint venture, the assistant chief of staff for human affairs is also the special assistant for human affairs to the commanding officer, Marine Corps Air Station.

Education is a key factor in any organization. At Brigade Schools, the NCO Leadership and SNCO Leadership and Management schools graduated 326 and 79 NCO's respectively, in the fine art of military leadership. The Joint Education Office, in addition to sponsoring numerous programs in different levels of education, has recently culminated plans for a high school diploma program through attendance at on-base courses.

In areas of working and living conditions, eventually all barracks will be changed to a cubicle arrangement vice open squadbay design. This transition is already in progress. Draperies have been ordered for the enlisted barracks also. New washers and dryers have been installed.

In addition, the Station Launderette has been remodeled and new machines installed there. A new dry cleaning and laundry facility was opened adjacent to the main exchange and the K-Bay Inn was air-conditioned and completely renovated. Sunday steaks at the messhall are grilled outside and you can help yourself to soft drinks all week long.

If you don't want to stay aboard the base on weekends, you can take a free hop to Kilauea Military Camp (KMC) on the Big Island. Or, if you stay aboard, you can pass the time (and stay in shape) with the new athletic equipment recently installed in many barracks. Of course, you can't skinny-dip in the Station pool now because those new lights are really bright, but you can go to the newly redecorated Theater No. 1 or recently opened Theater No. 2.

At the main exchange building, the Station chapels were consolidated, providing additional space to house the hardware, toys, sporting goods, and the health and comfort items departments. The ladies department was relocated across from the men's department to add to customer convenience.

In January a shuttle bus began operating aboard base for the advantage of personnel. Both the SNCO and the enlisted clubs were renovated, redecorated and repainted.

The Seabees came to town in late summer to make a portion of Old Mokapu School into a youth activities building and construct a bath house at Ft. Hase Beach where cabanas have been installed. Another Navyman publicly announced that emergency dental care has been established for dependents of Marines and Sailors at K-Bay.

From the President came a pay raise; two of them as a matter of fact, the last one primarily for younger Marines -- officer and enlisted. The Commandant gave us all new permanent press, machine washable trousers to save part of that pay raise.

The Station had the most successful K-Bay Water Carnival ever (125,000 spectators). It's the "most diversified event of its kind in Hawaii." And, for the first time in five years, the Hawaii Marine Basketball Team (of which all but three team members are K-Bay men) gained a berth in the Rainbow Classic. And the Brigade, not to be outdone, started another first, the Pineapple Bowl, to be played annually at K-Bay.

The officers now have a guest house in operation from existing facilities at the BOQ and plans have been drawn to provide something similar for enlisted personnel. Near the end of the year, with personal services gaining the high ground, Marines here experienced another innovation as the command coped with the problems experienced by the young Marine.

"We can do nothing about the amount of money coming due to the young Marine, however, we can pay him more often."

And that's what happened. The going thing for Marines at K-Bay is pay call just prior to a holiday. The reasoning behind it is simple -- a man is happy when he has "money to burn." The commander wants his Marines happy.

And speaking of being happy...

Remember that snackline that opened in the messhalls in September when both messhalls were totally renovated? That featured hamburgers, cheeseburgers and lots of french fries?

You must talk to the man who really knows what Human Relations are all about when it comes to getting to a Marine's heart...

Mess Sergeant Harold Enright claims that K-Bay Marines are the greatest lovers on Oahu among the armed forces... of french fries.

During October and November, they ate 3,240,000 individual french fries. If that continues through 1972, they have to pack away 19,240,000 french fries or, if you like, 20 tons of potatoes.

And, if you think Marines are a wee bit nutty at times, there may be an answer. Try eating 89,136 Nutty Buddy ice cream bars in 1972.

There you have a portion, Marines. 1971. The year of plenty, with more to come in 1972.

Marines stand by as a CH-53D "Sea Stallion" delivers a 105 mm Howitzer.

Rainbow Classic Monday

Hawaii—Marines vs Arizona State University

Sgt. Bob Burnside

The tale of Gulliver and the little people will unfold this Monday night at the HIC when Coach Hal Norton's HAWMAR's lock horns with the Sun Devils of Arizona State University in the opening game of the Rainbow Classic.

Gulliver, in this case, is Ron Kennedy, ASU's 6'11" inside player. Kennedy, a 248 pound senior, currently leads the Sun Devils in rebounding for the season. The Devils currently support a 6-2 record going into Monday night's game.

Starting lineup for ASU, in short, is big. Paul Stovall, a 6'4" jumping jack, returns from last year's Devil lineup. Stovall, who led his club last year with 11.4 rebounds a game and shot 53.4 from the field, is expected to be one of ASU's big guns in the opening Classic game. Rhea Taylor, who averaged 13.5 points per game last year, finished last year's season with a hot streak. He scored 21 or more points in four of the final five games last season. Taylor, a 6'5" inside player, is the Devil's outside shooting man. (Possibly their answer to Chuck Kozak.)

Mike Hopwood, a 6'6" inside man, is in his third season with the team. Last year, he averaged 10.4 points and 8.3 rebounds per game. He was voted the most improved player for ASU last season.

Not quite placing in the double figures at seasons end last year was Mike Contreras, a 6'2" outside player. He brings one year of experience to the team this season.

Rounding out the starting five for ASU is Bill Kennedy, a 6'1" outside player. Kennedy, who was the second leading scorer last season, brings one year of experience to the Devils. He hits better than 50% from the outside and averaged 14.8 points at season's end.

Starting for the HAWMAR's will be John Tolmie, a 6'2" guard who is leading the Marines in scoring for this season. Last Friday night against Jolly Roger, Tolmie picked up 35 points, shooting primarily from the outside.

Chuck Kozak, the number-two big gun for HAWMAR, is a 6'4" forward who also hits hard from the outside key. Kozak, whose shooting has sparked life into his team, netted 14 points during the last game against Jolly Roger.

Greg Vossekuil, at 6'4", is HAWMAR's leading center. Last encounter, he snatched 24 rebounds and netted 13 points to the winning Marine score.

Bill Squires, a 6'3" forward, is continuing to score in the double figures this season. Squires, shooting from the outside, sank 11 points in last week's Jolly Roger bout.

Finishing out the HAWMAR five is Tony Kaufman, a 6' guard with speed and ball-handling skill.

With the Sun Devils using their inside-outside system instead of the normal forward-guard-center set up, the Monday night game should be one to see. If the HAWMAR's can continue to hit from the outside, they have a good chance to take this one. ASU, on the other hand, need only stay in the inside, for the majority of their baskets. Inside vs. outside...this Monday night at the H.I.C. See you there.

Stay in your car says MP's

Recently several violators in Station Traffic Court have claimed ignorance of a Military Police Policy stating that persons detained by an M.P. vehicle will be requested to remain in their own vehicle, unless otherwise dictated by the M.P.

This is for the protection of the detainee as well as the M.P. In this way, the person is not being openly exposed to traffic and the possibility of a physical misunderstanding is minimized.

Persons detained are also requested to turn off their ignition keys and present a Military I.D., appropriate driver's license and vehicle registration.

Walk during 'Kokua' week

During the Christmas Season, we're all pretty used to being asked to give a little to this and give a little to that.

Between Christmas and New Years, we'll be getting a chance to give a little more, but this time we stand to gain a little something for ourselves.

Known as "KOKUA WEEK", this is a state-wide campaign to help reduce unnecessary vehicular traffic.

During KOKUA WEEK everyone will be urged to walk whenever possible instead of using their cars.

If you can't walk, try a bicycle, or a bus, or, if the distance of travel demands get into some kind of car pool.

What do you stand to gain? Well, if you remember your boot camp days, walking is good for you, especially if the air you breathe is fresh.

AC of S, Human Affairs to speak to Mokapu PTA

The Mokapu PTA will hold its first meeting of the New Year at Mokapu Elementary School Jan. 10 starting at 7:30 p.m.

Major T.W. Rodgers, assistant Chief of Staff for Human Affairs, will be the guest speaker. He is scheduled to talk on "Human Affairs" and the scope of the program here at K-Bay. The Human Affairs program was started here approximately four months ago.

All members should make it a point to start the New Year off right by supporting their children. The best way to do this is to support the PTA.

If you're not already a member, come and join. If you are a member, be sure to attend and see how you can help make the Mokapu PTA the best on the islands.

The teachers and children want it that way... and so does the PTA! Come and see... 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 10.

On the occasion of the forthcoming Christmas Season, it is appropriate that we give special recognition to our POWs, MIAs and their families. At this time of year, which for most of us is a joyous occasion of family gatherings, there is particular need to demonstrate our support and join in prayer for these men and their families who are so far apart and for whom there will be little joy this holiday season. It is appropriate that in our Christmas observances throughout the military services, special mention be made of our missing and captured men and their families.

Twenty years ago this month the Defense Department announced that the former Naval Air Station at Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, was to be formally established as a Marine Corps Air Station. A month later, on Jan. 15, 1952, the base was formally commissioned.

In addition, he was instrumental in negotiating renewal contracts for required training areas and interservice support agreements to meet the increased training and maintenance demands generated by the redeployment of air elements from Vietnam."

His citation reads in conclusion, "His performance of duty during this tour is the hallmark of a career devoted to accomplishing broad and diverse tasks in both combat and other assignments, and highlights the culmination of many years of honorable and dedicated Marine Corps service."
