All-Hawaii Platoon departs for training

In the tradition of proud Hawaiian warriors, they walk with heads held high and jaws that are set. They are the "Kama'aina Marines" or Marines of the islands. Most importantly, they are now Marines.

Seventy-five young men from six Hawaiian islands and American Samoa took the oath of enlistment into the Marine Corps Friday, June 22 during a swearing-in ceremony aboard Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay. The oath was given by Hawaii governor George Ariyoshi.

The men formed the 1979 All-Hawaii Platoon and left Hawaii June 22 for nine weeks of recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif. They will remain together as a platoon throughout their basic training.

Forty-three members of the platoon have accepted the "Come Home to Hawaii" option and will return home to serve with Hawaii-based units following successful completion of training.

The "Come Home to Hawaii" enlistment option, the only program of its type in the Marine Corps, guarantees Hawaii residents that their first tour of duty will be with Hawaii-based units. This is the third All-Hawaii Platoon. The first was formed in 1977.

Rose now commands MABS-24

In ceremonies held Tuesday, June 26, Lieutenant Colonel Paul McLaughlin relinquished command of Marine Air Base Squadron (MABS)-24 to Major Robert Rose, formerly squadron executive officer.

McLaughlin will be assigned to the United States Army Forces Command at Fort McPherson, Ga., for duty as the Marine Corps representative. He is expected to assume duties in August.

Rose joined the Marine Corps via the Platoon Leaders Class program on October 7, 1957. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in June 1961 upon graduation from Villanova University, Villanova, Pa. After attending The Basic School at MCDEC Quantico, Va., he served in Okinawa and in the Far East with Marine Air Support Squadron (MASS)-2.

After returning stateside and serving with MASS-1 at MCAS, Cherry Point, N.C., he underwent naval flight officer training at Pensacola, Florida and Glyco, Ga. in 1964 and was designated a naval flight officer in 1965. He served with various attack and fighter squadrons as a bombardier/navigator in the A-6 Intruder jet and radar intercept officer in the F-4 Phantom jet. In 1966-67, while serving with Marine Fighter Attack Squadron (VMFA)-115, Rose flew 233 combat missions over Danang, Vietnam.

Rose has served as executive officer of VMFA-531 at MCAS, Tustin, Calif., and executive officer of VMFA-232 at K-Bay. He was assigned as executive officer of MABS-24 during November 1978.

New CO's assigned to MAG and Regiment

In a dual change-of-command ceremony to be held at 10 a.m. today on the bay side of Hangar 102, the number one position of Marine Aircraft Group (MAG)-24 and the Third Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Brigade, will change to the able hands of Colonel Warren Ferdinand and Robert Loehle, respectively.

Colonel Stanley Chullgren, present CO of MAG-24, will assume duties with the operations directorate (13) of the Commander-in-Chief-Pacific as the Duty Director of Operations.

Colonel Paul Slack, Third Marine Regiment's present CO, will be assuming the duties as Chief of Staff, 1st Marine Brigade, replacing Col. John Studt, who will assume duties as CO, Twenty-Fifth Marine Regiment, 4th Marines Division, Worcester, Mass.

Colonel Robert Loehle was born in West Allis, Wis. in 1931. He joined the Marine Corps in 1948 and completed boot camp at MCRD, Parris Island, S.C. While an enlisted Marine he served with the 1st and 2nd Marine Air Wings as a flight equipment man. In 1952, he was promoted to staff sergeant and spent two years as a survival instructor at the Naval Air Technical Training Center in Jacksonville, Florida.

Colonel Loehle was commissioned a second lieutenant in February 1955. His first tour of duty was with the First Marine Brigade in Hawaii. There he served as a platoon commander and executive officer of both a rifle company and weapons company, rifle company commander, and battalion supply officer.

Colonel Warren Ferdinand, a native of the Boston, Mass. area, entered the service as a Naval Aviation Cadet in May, 1955. He received his commission and was designated a Naval Aviator, in August of 1956. His first assignment was with MAG-26 at New River, N.C. where he served in HMR-263 and HMR-262. After two years he reported to the Jet Transition Course in the Naval Air Training Command and subsequently joined VMFA-323 at MCAS, El Toro, California in

Col. W. Ferdinand

January 1960. Flying the F8U "Crusader." One year later Colonel Ferdinand transferred to VMF(AW)-431 and remained with that squadron as the NATOPS and Standardization Officer until January 1963, the completion of its deployment to Aitusu, Japan.

Returning to the states, he served 3 years as a flight instructor and as the NATOPS and Standardization Officer of VT-3 at Whiting Field, Milton, Florida. Colonel Ferdinand's next operational assignments were in the F4 "Phantom" with VMFA-251 at Beaufort, S.C. in 1967 and VMFA-323 at Chu Lai, Vietnam in 1968. He served both squadrons as the aircraft maintenance officer. From August 1974 to July 1975 he was the commanding officer of VMFA-232 at Iwakuni, Japan.

Colonel Ferdinand's staff assignments include a year at Naval Air Systems Command, Washington, D.C., where he was the Project Officer for the Naval Aircraft Maintenance Program (1969); two years at MCAS, Quantico, Va. as the logistics officer (1972-1973); and two years in the Logistics Directorate (14) of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Washington, D.C., as the head of the Plans Review Branch (1976-1977). He joins MAG-24 from a one year assignment in the Operations Directorate (13) of the Commander-in-Chief-Pacific as the duty director of operations.

Colonel Ferdinand's formal military education has been at the Amphibious Warfare School at Quantico, Va. (1966); The Marine Corps Command and Staff College, also at Quantico (1973); and at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces at Fort McNair, Washington, D.C. (1978). His civilian schooling includes a BA in economics from Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, obtained through the Bootstrap Program in 1971, and a Master of Arts in Management and Supervision obtained from Central Michigan University in 1977.

The Colonel's personal decorations include two Distinguished Flying Crosses, the Bronze Star with Combat "V," the Meritorious Service Medal, and 29 Air Medals. He has accumulated over 5100 accident-free flight hours. Colonel Ferdinand and his wife, Jennifer, have two sons, Tige and Michael, and a daughter, Dodi.

Col. R. Loehle

In subsequent tours, Colonel Loehle served again as an infantry platoon commander, company executive officer, and company commander. He also served as executive officer and commanding officer of an H&S Company and commanding officer of Schools and Range Company in Okinawa. In Vietnam, he served as executive officer and Commanding Officer of the 2nd Battalion, Fifth Marines operating out of An Hoa. In 1974 and 1975 he was the commanding officer of Battalion Landing Team 3/9 and participated in Operation Frequent Wind in that capacity.

His staff assignments include duty as a weapons instructor at the Basic School, project officer for the Tactical Warfare Analysis and Evaluation System at the Development Center; Assistant G-1 at Camp Lejeune, N.C. and 3d Marine Division; head, Platoon Leaders Class Section, Procurement Branch, HQMC; and head, Programs and Analysis Branch, I&L Department, HQMC. He last served as assistant chief of staff, Comptroller, Headquarters Fleet Marine Force, Pacific.

THE WINNING GRIN — Showing the grin for his first place finish and the trophy is Corporal Larry Pappas, a communicator with Headquarters Company, Third Marine Regiment. Pappas spent 20 months ordering parts, designing and working on the VW to get it ready for the 5th Annual Hawaii World of Wheels Auto Show held at the Neal Blaisdell Center, Sunday, June 17. Pappas won his number one spot in the European Division.

Customized "bug" a winner at Hawaii World of Wheels

Story by LCpl. Christy Tonegatto

Out of the grease, sawdust and noise of the Special Services Auto Hobby Shop has emerged "Type V" (five), a prize-winning show car designed and built by Corporal Larry Pappas.

Pappas, a radio operator attached to the Communications Section, Headquarters Company, Third Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Brigade, transformed a dented 1962 Baja VW body into a customized automobile that won first place in the European Division at the 5th Annual Hawaii World of Wheels Auto Show held at the Neal Blaisdell Center, Sunday, June 17.

The car has customized, airbrush scenes that depict ocean scenes with tree homes that look and fly like spaceships, dragons rising out of the water and pterodactyl birds and VW's flying around. At the rear of the car, underneath the lowered window, is a whale's tail instead of a trunk, that leaves the engine uncovered for viewing. All this makes it look like a prop out of a James Bond movie.

In case of rain, Pappas has a black leather engine tarp that snaps on to provide protection for the engine.

The smile that seems to be looking at you from the front of the car is a combination of the square headlights and a selected drop bar that allows the ground clearance of the car to be changed.

The inside of the car is filled with many luxuries, such as: black leather, swivel bucket seats equipped with headphones; stained wood door panels and dash, gold-plated accelerator pedal and stained wood cabinet, located under the rear seat in back, which are all set off by a cream-colored carpet.

The rear portion of the car has been designed into a bed, covered with thick beige shag carpet, that has a roll bar over it.

The car has an extensive stereo system. Besides an AM/FM radio and cassette player, located in the dash on the passenger's side, there is a citizen's band radio with a public address system, a stereo organizer and a power booster, all hidden in the cabinet in the rear. There are two speakers in the front and four speakers in the rear.

All the controls in the car are electrical. By pushing a silver button on the control box mounted in-between the sunvisors, you can open or close the doors, raise or shut the sunroof and turn on or off the radio and all the lights.

According to Staff Sergeant Robert Cutcher, a communications chief in the 1st Battalion, Twelfth Marines, 1st Marine Brigade, it took him five months to wire the car properly.

The engine, which has over 2000cc's that can distribute approximately 180 horsepower, was rebuilt by "Old Volks Home" in Kailua.

Pappas said he originally was going to build a Corvette but changed his mind since he already owned the VW body. The car's concept was designed by him with certain ideas coming from other cars he had seen.

Work on the car began in September 1977. Pappas originally intended to show the car in last year's competition but was not able to because of the delay that was caused by ordering special parts from all over the United States.

According to Pappas, he has always enjoyed building cars and built this one to show others that creative things can be built on base.

Pappas stated that throughout the 20 months he worked on the car, he was given support by the members of the Auto Hobby Shop.

Cutcher said, "Of all the bases where I've been stationed, this is the best-looking car I've ever seen come out of a base hobby shop."

Training begins

Midshipmen arrive Sat.

Tomorrow, a group of 40 First Class Midshipmen from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., will be arriving at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay, to begin a summer training program that will expose them to the opportunities, challenges and realities of life as a company grade officer in the Marine Corps.

During past years, Naval Academy Midshipmen who have expressed interest in a Marine Corps commission have been given the opportunity to participate in a purely "Marine" phase of training. The 1st Marine Brigade has accepted the task of hosting a training program that will express the challenges and life style in the Marine Corps. This approach of letting the midshipmen get a first hand view of Marine Corps activities will surely have a lasting impact on each of these future officers.

For mother/father image big brothers/sisters help

Story by Cpl. Tyrone Abdul-Ruhman

Since 1903, Big Brothers/Big Sisters organizations throughout America have been reaching out to children, ages six to 16 who may need a father or mother image to look up to. According to Paul Poincheo, recruitment coordinator for the organization in Hawaii, Big Brothers and Sisters have assisted thousands of Oahu's children, helping them to enjoy productive, more stable lives.

There are approximately 300 Big Brothers and Sisters on Oahu. To date, nearly one-third are military personnel and dependents.

There are 15 military personnel and dependents who are actively participating in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program.

According to Gunnery Sergeant Melton Goings, assistant noncommissioned officer-in-charge of the Human Affairs Office, there is a great need for Big Brothers and Sisters on the Windward side. He says that many servicemen and women fail to meet an acceptance requirement which states "local residency must be planned for at least a year."

"When some Marines get interested in the program, they sometimes have less than a year left on the island. However, the need for Big Brothers and Sisters is so great that the year requirement can sometimes be waived," explained GySgt. Goings.

The Human Affairs Office has taken steps to increase acceptance of military personnel and dependents. Previously, persons wanting to get involved in the program had to go to the Big Brothers/Big Sisters office in Honolulu. Interviews will now be conducted at the Human Affairs Office.

Linda Coble, TV journalist and vice-chairperson of the Board of Directors for Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Honolulu, is slated to speak at the air station Wednesday, July 11 at 1:30 p.m. in the Family Theater. Coble will discuss the importance of military personnel and dependents of the Windward side of Oahu in the success of the Oahu program.

Staff Sergeant O.J. Smith, a Marine Big Brother, who understands the importance of military personnel and dependents participating in the program, states that a person who practices the military leadership principles can become an excellent Big Brother or Sister.

Staff Sergeant Smith, who works at the station veterinary and has two "Little Brothers", says, "A Big Brother means being unselfish and dependable. You have to be enthusiastic and show tact when you relate to your little brother."

According to SSgt. Smith, some Big Brothers and Sisters join the program having false expectations. "They think it's an easy task. But the reason a boy needs a Big Brother is because growing up isn't an easy job," points out SSgt. Smith. "Some of the kids have trouble in school and on the streets. A boy needs a man he can look up to; someone like a father or uncle who can help him with his problems. He needs to talk to a man because one day he is going to be a man himself and he has to discover what manhood is all about."

SSgt. Smith contends that when Big Brothers come into the program not understanding that he has to be the boy's father or uncle image, he can hurt the program. "I've seen so-called Big Brothers start working one day and lose interest the next. The boy doesn't see him for weeks, sometimes months . . . and that's no good."

Sergeant Rick Olsen says weekend of camping out with his Little Brother, John Chadwick, proved to be an enjoyable event for them both. Sgt. Olsen, an MCAS military policeman who claims he plans to work with juveniles after his discharge from the Marine Corps, declares, "Working in Big Brothers fits right in line with my future plans." He and John have been "brothers" for nine months. Since becoming brothers, they have done such things as camping, boating, swimming and sea shell hunting.

John's mother, Louise Chadwick, explained that because she was divorced, her son needed a father image that he could constantly look up to. "It's important for a mother to have someone around because no matter how much she tries, she can't teach him everything he needs to know about being a man."

Profile Super Squad champion gives views

"I was excited." That was the way Corporal Keith Craig described his feelings when he learned that he would be a part of the competition squad for the 1979 Super Squad competition held at Marine Corps Development and Education Center, Quantico, Va. in May.

Craig was the rifleman for the third fire team of the 1st Squad, 2d Platoon, Company B, 1st Battalion, Third Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Brigade, winners of the 1979 Silver Squad competition.

The 21-year old Marine is from Detroit, Mich. and graduated from Northwestern High School. He enlisted into the Marine Corps March 25, 1977 and was meritoriously promoted to his present rank at ceremonies held Wednesday for the Super Squad.

"This was my first duty station," stated the soft-spoken Leatherneck, "and probably will be my most remembered."

For Craig the hardest part of training for Super Squad was neither the physical strength nor the tactical problems.

"My hardest part was staying awake," he said. "We put in a lot of hours and sometimes only had about four hours of sleep. It taught me just what I can do."

Now that competition is over Craig is ready to pass on what he learned to others.

"I learned alot about myself and working with other people. Now I want to train other men and have them realize the importance of teamwork and organization." Craig explained. "If there is anything I can say to Marines here and to the competition squad for next year it would be to stick together, be disciplined and stay tight."

New CO for artillery

By Cpl. Tyrone Abdul-Ruhman

During change of command ceremonies, Wednesday, June 20 at the Pohakuloa Training Area (PTA) on the island of Hawaii, Lieutenant Colonel Jerry Peterson, former commanding officer for 1st Battalion, Twelfth Marines, passed the battalion's colors and top office to Lieutenant Colonel Regan Wright, the new commanding officer.

Lieutenant Colonel Peterson arrived at K-Bay in 1976 and was then assigned as assistant chief of staff, G-4, 1st Marine Brigade. He became commanding officer of 1/12 in November 1977.

"I needed your support while I was your commanding officer; now Lt.Col. Wright will need your support," said Lt.Col. Peterson as he introduced the new commanding officer to the battalion. Lieutenant Colonel Wright was acknowledged with an unofficial nine-gun salute.

After the ceremonies, the new commanding officer held an informal meeting with the battalion's staff noncommissioned officers at PTA's officer's club. He says the meeting was held so he and the staff NCO's could have an opportunity to meet each other.

The incoming CO's most recent assignment has been with the Logistic and Security Assistance Directorate, G-4, Pacific Command. Lieutenant Colonel Wright's personal decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and Navy Commendation Medal, both with Combat V.

HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE — Corporal Anthony Webster (lifting child) and Private First Class George Waller of Headquarters and Service Company, 2d Battalion, Third Marines, assist many other embarked 31st Marine Amphibious Unit and USS Tarawa (LHA-1) personnel in the unloading of 448 Vietnamese refugees from two landing craft into the LHA's well deck, while anchored off of Pattaya Beach, Thailand, May 9.

LHA, 31st MAU Marines lend humanitarian hand

By Cpl. Richard MacDonald
31st MAU

The Navy/Marine team aboard the USS Tarawa (LHA-1) exercised its specialized capabilities to provide medical and humanitarian relief assistance May 9 to 12 after the 448 Vietnamese refugees, rescued by the USS Robert E. Peary (FF-1073) on May 5, were transferred to the LHA on May 9, off Pattaya Beach, Thailand.

The Peary spotted the refugee craft in distress about 120 miles southwest of the Vietnamese coast on May 5. The 448 refugees were packed into the 55-foot boat without fresh water or food and the craft's lone working engine was cracked and presented a health hazard to the occupants.

Three hundred pounds of food and 250 gallons of water were transferred to the refugee boat and intensive engineering efforts initiated to repair the craft's poorly maintained engines. After 17 hours, the boat was deemed "unseaworthy" and embarkation of the refugees began. An awning was rigged over the Peary's flightdeck to provide shelter for the Vietnamese, and crewmembers and embarked Marines gave their own blankets to lessen the discomfort of the bare deck.

The decision to transfer the Vietnamese to the Tarawa was made because the LHA is specifically suited to handle such humanitarian assistance missions. Also, both ships were anchored off Pattaya Beach, Thailand at the needed time.

Tarawa living space for the refugees was an air-conditioned troop living compartment. The space offered over 200 bunks, complete bathroom and shower facilities and a recreation area with two overhead television sets, which entertained the refugees with programming broadcast over the ship's closed circuit television system.

The refugees received linen, blankets and various personal hygiene items from the Tarawa's Supply and Medical departments. Clothing, soap, towels and other gifts were donated by many of the 31st MAU Marines and Tarawa sailors.

Headquarters and Service Company, 2d Battalion, Third Marines, supplied the personnel who provided the day and night security, support and comfort of the refugees during their stay. According to Captain R.G. Napier, H&S Co. commanding officer, "The Marines assigned to escort the refugees performed admirably. They were courteous, patient and above all, understanding of the people's plight."

First Sergeant David Noakes of H&S Co. added, "I always had more men volunteering their services to help the refugees than we could use. These Marines did everything possible to ensure the refugees were comfortable and happy. The Vietnamese, in turn, cooperated completely with our direction and were extremely grateful for everything."

Sergeant Arthur Anderson, one of the H&S volunteers explained, "We played little games with the kids and just tried to make them smile... like kids are supposed to. They responded warmly because they knew we were there trying to help."

The Tarawa's troop dining facility served the refugees two meals daily. Special effort was made to augment their menus with natural foods normally present in the Vietnamese diet.

Navy Lieutenant (Dr.) James Stansbury, medical department head, and Lieutenant (Dr.) Thomas Daniels, flight surgeon with the embarked Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-262, spearheaded the LHA's medical services for the Vietnamese. This medical treatment ranged from routine physical examinations to delivery of the Tarawa's first baby.

Hospital Corpsman Second Class Richard Reed of 2/3's Medical Section, delivered the six-pound, 11-ounce baby girl in the early morning hours of May 10 in the refugee living compartment. The mother named the baby, Tran Grace Tarawa, in honor of her boss.

"It was a unique and exciting experience to bring Grace into this world. Most of all, I feel these people are extremely brave to have risked their lives for a chance to live in freedom. Now, they and the newborn child will have it," expressed HM2 Reed. The corpsman appropriately escorted Grace and her mother, Phung Kieu Huynh, when they departed Tarawa in good health May 12.

"Most of the work accomplished with the Vietnamese refugees during their Tarawa stay was directed towards administratively processing and medically inspecting the people for admittance into Thailand and subsequent resettlement into the United States," informed Navy Captain George Vanderwater, U.S. Naval Attache in Thailand. He expects the refugees will live at the Vietnamese refugee camp in Chantaburi, Thailand for about six weeks awaiting their resettlement.

The Vietnamese debarked the Tarawa in two landing craft on the morning of May 12. They landed at South Pattaya Beach and there boarded buses heading to Bangkok where they will complete their processing.

Many aboard the LHA expressed gratitude to have been able to help the refugees. Echoing these feelings, Corporal Robert Meade of H&S Co. stated, "I feel like I have really done something of value for myself, the refugees and for America. It was a rewarding experience to be with these people, who were always so grateful. I hope we will be able to do more of this type of work in the future."

Navy Captain Robert Klee, commanding officer of the Tarawa testified, "The Vietnamese refugee assistance operation demonstrated that the LHA's facilities and her Navy/Marine team are as highly capable of successfully accomplishing humanitarian and medical relief missions, as they are at conducting amphibious assault tactics."

Sea cadets rappel with I&I Staffers

Story and photos by SSgt. Steve Manuel

Intermittent drenching cloudbursts weren't enough to dampen the spirits of 29 eager Kamehameha Division Sea Cadets, who spent a day in the field with Marines from the Inspector-Instructor staff, 4th Force Reconnaissance Company, Force Troops, FMF, Pearl Harbor.

Led by Gunnery Sergeant Roger Rook, the young men and women, ranging in age from 12 to 18, traveled to a training area at nearby Wheeler Air Force Base to test their skills at rappelling down a mountainside.

Rappelling down mountains, according to GySgt. Rook, is a normal activity carried out by Marine patrols in mountainous regions, and nothing out of the ordinary for reconnaissance Marines. But for youngsters with little or no experience in such activities, it can be a very frightening experience to step off a cliff towering some 50 feet in the air.

But, before the Sea Cadets were allowed to tackle the rocky height, GySgt. Rook and Sergeant Gary St. Apbin demonstrated the use of several different methods of rappelling, in particular the Swiss Seat method.

The Swiss Seat technique is a makeshift seat that is made by tying a sling rope between the legs and around the waist using a series of knots and a snap link (steel ring). The snap link, placed in front of the body, is used to run the anchored end of the rope he will climb down through. The person's left hand grasps the rope in front of him while his right hand is placed behind him grasping the anchored rope to act as a brake, and he's ready to go.

Equally important to the young climbers, and stressed by GySgt. Rook throughout the exercise was the need for safety.

When the class ended the rappelling began, and the initial look over the cliff brought some wide eyes and pale faces from the emotionally-charged youngsters. But they were adventurous and anxious to give it a try. The only thing they seemed to be worried about was the growing puddle at the bottom of the cliff.

Twelve-year-old Chris Rich was a bit skeptical as he stepped to the cliff's edge, especially when GySgt. Rook told him to lean back so that his feet were level with his waist. The youngster just wasn't convinced that this was the smartest thing to do dangling 50 feet in the air.

But after a series of instructions and assurances from GySgt. Rook, and cheers of encouragement from his fellow cadets, the audacious 12-year-old tackled the mountain obstacle with ease.

Several hours and dozens of trips down the mountainside later, the group called it a day, and like most people who have spent the good part of the day climbing mountains, they were hungry. The cadets were provided with every Marine's favorite meal: C-rations. So at least two lessons were learned by the Sea Cadets on this trip with the Marines — how to rappel and how to use a "John Wayne" (C-ration can opener).

ONE STEP AT A TIME — Fourteen-year-old Robert Huddleston, a Kamehameha Division Sea Cadet, takes his time at his first attempt at rappelling down a mountainside. Marines from the I&I Staff, 4th Force Reconnaissance Company took Pearl Harbor took Huddleston and 28 other Kamehameha Division Sea Cadets to the field for a day to learn the art of rappelling.

DEMONSTRATING SWISS SEAT METHOD — Gunnery Sergeant Roger Rook, I&I Staff, 4th Force Reconnaissance Company, Pearl Harbor, supports himself just below the cliff's edge as he demonstrates the Swiss Seat method of rappelling to 29 Kamehameha Division Sea Cadets who spent a day in the field with Marines from the I&I staff.

ENJOYING EVERY MARINE'S FAVORITE — Mountain climbing is strenuous exercise, especially for 29 Kamehameha Division Sea Cadets who spent a day in the field with Marines from the I&I Staff, 4th Force Reconnaissance Company, Pearl Harbor. It also creates hardy appetites, and 14-year-old Susan G. March knew just how to smother her hunger pangs — with C-Ration spaghetti with beef chunks, every Marine's favorite.

NO CHANCE AGAINST CHASE — John "Pink" Pinkham, playing softball for Motor Transport, didn't stand a chance in his attempt to score from third base against G-1's Bob Chase who puts the tag on Pinkham during semifinial playoff action over the past week at Camp H.M. Smith. After dropping only one game, G-1 kicked into gear and romped over CinCPac in a double header to become this year's Camp Smith Intramural Softball Champions.

G-1 routes CinCPac in intramural softball

A ferocious hitting attack and an almost flawless defense powered the G-1 softball team to a double-header sweep over CinCPac to capture the Camp H.M. Smith intramural softball championship Monday night by scores of 11-9 and 11-1.

The final series of the season pitted CinCPac, a team of superb finesse, against a G-1 team with a steel curtain defense that bent but seldom broke, losing only three games in 23 outings this season. In the first game of the twinbill, CinCPac jumped out to an early 4-0 lead, and it looked like CinCPac might make a rout of the game. From that point on it was a seesaw battle until G-1 took a two-run lead in the seventh inning.

CinCPac, down but not dead, tied it up in their half of the inning and stranded the winning run on base. The game stayed tied until the top of the ninth when G-1 scored two runs to make the final score, 11-9; again G-1's defense held true to its form.

It was all G-1 in the second game, as they put on a batting exhibition for the cheering crowd, scoring eight runs in one inning and 11 total, while giving up only one run to the shell-shocked CinCPac club.

When the final out was made in the top of the fifth inning, CinCPac's reign as the Camp H.M. Smith softball champions had ended, and G-1 was crowned.

K-Bay helps parade grow

By Capt. W.E. Wood

Preparations for the 31st Annual Kailua Fourth of July Parade are continuing at a rapid pace. The parade, which stretches 1.3 miles through the center of Kailua on Kailua Drive, begins at 10 a.m. This year's theme will be "Hawaii's Children, Hawaii's Future."

To date 70 entries have been accepted, which also makes this the largest parade in Kailua's history. The Kailua Chamber of Commerce therefore, has expressed the need for more hands to live the affair. Applications by groups and bands interested in participating in the parade may be submitted by calling the Chamber of Commerce at 261-2727.

Judges for this year's parade will be Brigadier General Harry Hagaman, commanding general of the 1st Marine Brigade; Dr. Richard Lumma, band director for the University of Hawaii; Jim Slavish, Kailua Jaycees; Jerry Murphy, Sun Press; and Kay Goodhue, director of the Kailua Library. All participants will be eligible for trophies to be awarded at an awards ceremony following the parade.

In addition to the parade, other Independence Day activities scheduled for Kailua include the Kailua Arts and Crafts Fair and a fireworks display. The crafts fair will take place from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Kailua Elementary School, and the fireworks display will begin at approximately 7:30 p.m. at the Kailua Beach Park.

TUITION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Marines desiring to achieve their educational goals by attending off-duty classes may apply for financial assistance through the Marine Corps Tuition Assistance Program.

Active duty Marines and personnel of other military services attached to the Marine Corps are eligible for the program, which allows a payment of no more than 75 per cent of the tuition costs of approved courses.

Classes must be offered by regionally accredited colleges or universities and must be completed while the Marine is on active duty. In any one academic term, the maximum work load for Marines attending off-duty classes is two courses. Correspondence courses and independent study are not authorized for tuition assistance.

Tuition assistance may not be authorized for any course for which a Marine is receiving whole or partial reimbursement from the Federal Treasury or the Veterans Administration. Students attending classes under the provisions of any full-time education program are not eligible for tuition assistance. All tuition assistance is dependent upon available funds.

Commission officers who apply for tuition assistance must sign an agreement to remain on active duty for two years following completion of courses.

Marines interested in commencing or continuing their college education by attending off-duty classes may find the Marine Corps Tuition Assistance Program a source of financial assistance. The command education officer can provide information about classes offered on or near the base. Marine Corps Order 1560.26 contains complete details and application guidelines.
