Reservists practice dentistry

A team of Navy reservists known as DEN CRU 119 has been temporarily stationed on the lawn adjacent to the Navy Regional Medical Clinic to lend a helping hand to the 21st Dental Company

THE TEAM, five dentists and six technicians, from the Naval Reserve Center, San Diego, Calif. been examining an average of 40 Marines a day in an effort to upgrade the dental health of the leathernecks who will participate in an upcoming deployment. During their two week stay aboard the air station DEN CRU 119 will fulfill their active duty time, familiarize themselves with dental field equipment and enjoy the Hawaiian weather. Capt. James Eischen, officer-in-charge of the team, commented, "This is the fourth time we've operated in a field environment using field equipment. We are completely self-sufficient and all we rely upon the dental company for in x rows L act wear we had our for is x-rays. Last year we had our own x-ray tent but, it proved financially unfeasible."

HE WENT ON to explain, "The equipment we work with here is * top-notch and we have an excellent location for a field exercise. All the dentists have their private practices back on the mainland, but we enjoy working here because the pace is a bit more relaxed."

The reserve dentists operate from two tents constructed on the lawn of the Navy Regional Medical Clinic. One tent is the reception area and the other has four portable chiars, drilling equip-ment, water and electricity from a portable generator. The camp can be picked up and moved in a matter of hours.

Chief Petty Officer Burton

Shapiro added, "This reserve unit is unique because it has people from varied dental backgrounds. For example, Capt. Eischen is an orthodontist, one of the technicians is a representative for a dental supply company and one of the chiefs works in a dental of the chiefs works in a dental laboratory."

WHEN THE reserve dental unit leaves Hawaii June 19 they will travel to Marine Corps Air/ Ground Combat Center, Twentynine Palms, Calif. to assist another reserve team in working in a field environment.

WHAT'S UP DOC? - Lt. Cmdr. Phil Herron, one of five reserve dentists temporarily stationed here with DEN CRU 119, examines X-rays of Cpl Jeff Bixby, Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-262. The team of dentists and technicians arrived June 8 and are scheduled to leave the air station and return to the mainland Friday.

Government matches money

Educational assistance

Military personnel who entered the service after Dec. 31, 1976 may have lost the GI Bill but, they do have the Veterans Administration Educational Assistance Program. But what is VEAP, and how does it assist those Marines? 'VEAP is designed to defray

"VEAP is designed to defray college expenses, not pay for college," explained Capt Michael Howard, joint education officer. "Two thousand seven hundred dollars may not seem like much but once the government matches it two-for-one, the individual has $84,100 for college individual has $8,100 for college expenses.

"Depending on the school the person attends, the money may not completely pay for an education but it can help make ends meet. The money may be used at any VA approved school.

One of the first questions I am often asked by Marines is, 'Do I rate VEAP?' The only requirement is that a person must have entered active duty after Dec. 81, 1976." According to the captain persons who enlisted prior to that date, but began their active duty during 1977, are entitled to the GI Bill.

Although everyone who entered the service after Dec. 31, 4976 is entitled to VEAP, it is not an automatic benefit. Individuals are given the chance to apply for

VEAP at the time they enlist. If VEAP at the time they enlist. If they elect not to enroll at that time, they may do so later at their permanent duty station. According to 1stLt A.E. Hockman III, assistant disbursing officer, "A person may make out a VEAP allotment in any amount from $25 to $100, as long as the dollar amount is divisable by five. For example, the allotment may be $40, $50 or $75, depending on the amount the person wants to contribute."

1stLt Hockman also said there is the alternative of making lump sum payments.

"The lump sum payment is input by commanding officers and works in a similar manner as a regular allotment," he said. "The person who is just entering the program can make a payment of $750. This amount would be credited to the individual's VEAP acount as a series of monthly payments in the amount the participant requested, up to $75. The lump sum option is also available to people who are already participating in VEAP." The lump sum payment is input

The lump sum payment can only be credited for active service be credited for active service completed. Also it canot be used for future service. If a member who is already involved in the program wishes to bring their account up to the $2,700 limit before their release from active duty, they may do so with lump sum payments in cash, money order or a certified check. Capt Howard added that while on active duty, Marines may use tuition assistance and save for future college expenses through VEAP.

defrays VEAP participants may dis-enroll at any time however, if disenrollment occurs prior to 12 months of contributing, members must wait until they are released from active duty to withdraw the funds, unless there's a personal or financial hardship. If the disenroll-ment is after 12 months, the member will receive a refund, only of school cost without the government's two-for-one addition. If a servicemember has contributed for less than 12 months and encounters a hardship, the VEAP allotment may be stopped.

Any member may suspend his VEAP allotment. The VEAP may be used as a two-for-one benefit up to 10 years from the member's release from active duty. If the person wishes not to use the money for college expenses, the funds may be withdrawn from the account without the two-for-the account without the two-for-one option. "VEAP may not be the best program there is," said Capt Howard, "but it is the only one we have right now so why not use it."

Decisions

Secretary of the Navy to review Marine's case concerning pay entitlements

PENTAGON, WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Secretary of the Navy has determined that PFC Robert R. Garwood's entilement to pay during the period Sept. 28, 1965, to March 22, 1979, should be resolved under the provisions of the Missing Persons Act.

The Secretary has approved a set of regulations for holding a status review hearing on PFC Garwood to develop the facts upon which a decision to entitlement can be made. The review hearing will be held at the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General's School in Charlottesville, Va. beginning Sept. 1. Both the date and location of the hearing were requested by PFC Garwood

The results of the status review hearing will be forwarded to the Marine Corps review board, and will include the verbatim record of the hearing and opinions of the hearing officer as to the propriety of PFC Garwood's status as a prisoner of war during the period

Sept. 28, 1965, through March 22,

The hearing officer's recom mendations as to whether or not a mendations as to whether or not a change in that status should be made for all, or any distinct portions of that period and his findings of fact to support those and any other opinions, and recommendations he may make. PFC Garwood will receive a copy of everything submitted to the review board, and will then have 30 days to submit written comments days to submit written comments the review board for tò consideration.

The review, board will then submit its findings, opinions and recommendations to the Secretary of the Navy, and will also provide copies to PFC Garwood. PFC Garwood will then have 21 days in order to submit written comments to the secretary for his considera-tion.

After the Secretary's decision, PFC Garwood will receive a copy of the decision and a brief statement of the facts and rationale used by the Secretary of the Navy in making his decision.

Street Scoop Teach or learn responsibility?

by SSgt Dennis Litalien

When 1 joined the Marine Corps only privates, privates first class and lance corporals were assigned to mess duty. The idea of placing a noncommissioned officer on mess duty was unheard of. It simply did not happen.

Then, about four years ago corporals started getting assigned to mess duty. It was explained that this was necessary was explained that this was necessary because of a manpower shortage. Besides, corporals would only be placed in "supervisory" positions. It wasn't long, however, before they became little more than messmen themselves.

About two years ago, sergeants began being placed on mess duty. We heard the same old personnel shortage explanation. Besides, sergeants would only work in a "supervisory" position.

I wonder how much longer before sergeants become high-ranking messmen? I can't help but notice a disturbing trend. Slowly but steadily, NCOs are losing what little authority and responsibility they possess. We can't allow this to happen. Some will say that the reason for this is because today's NCOs can't handle responsibility. I don't buy that simply because you can't learn responsibility if pecause you can t learn responsibility if your superiors refuse to trust you with it. I am not saying that NCOs should be coddled. On the contrary, what they need desperately is challenge. They should be given the opportunity to act like NCOs. They need to be treated commensurate to their rank. their rank The sad thing is that the Marine Corps has always boasted about having the lowest ratio of commissioned officers to enlisted strength of any branch of the armed forces. Corps could always count on its professional NCOs to take up the slack. We could say, with good reason, that Marine NCOs had more responsibilities their counterparts in the other services.

Now that claim has a hollow ring. This alarming situation is popping up in other areas also. Thus it has become almost fashionable for some officers and Staff NCOs to question the caliber of today's Marines. They will tell you that the newer Marines lack the discipline of the old-timers. I think this criticism is bing placed on the wrong doorstep.

A major part of the problem is many of those same officers and Staff NCOs aren't granting NCOs the luxury of learning and developing responsibility. Nor are they giving the benefit of their considerable experience.

It is plain foolish to expect young Marines to exhibit leadership ability when they aren't being given a chance. We have to ask ourselves what will become of these Marines in the future if they aren't groomed for leadership positions now? The seasoned veterans of today must take the time to impart their knowledge on to their Marines.

An important part of learning responsibility and leadership is the trial and error method. We have to be willing to let them make mistakes. Leaders develop by gaining experience, practice, hardwork and guidance. You tell me., who is responsible for imparting these ideals to them?

I realize that not every NCO will be able to handle the responsibility I say they should be given, but I have a solution for that too. If they can't perform as NCOs then reduce them in rank. I firmly believe that for every non-performer there are five Marines who would do an outstanding job - if given the opportunity.

I can't answer how each supervisor can do the things I've talked about in their own individual job areas. That should be left for those with the expertise. But we can look at our own work areas to determine how we can apply these ideas to our own Marines. It our responsibility to give that much. The time to begin rectifying the situation is now. If it goes on ignored, if the trend continues, we wil suffer a serious continues, we wil suffer a serious breakdown in the rank structure, something the Marine Corps can ill afford.

If we don't act now, what will happen the next time we have to fight?

Lack of control creates unsportsmanlike conduct

by Sgt Cheryl Martin

I have once again been totally disgusted with and thoroughly embarrassed by the actions of some of my fellow Marines. Let me relate the incident which caused me to walk away from a softball game nauseated.

The fourth and possibly final game of the Women's Hawaii Marine Athletic Council softball tournament erupted in sheer chaos. Friendly rivalry from slightly rowdy fans evolved into harrasement from 10 or 15 very loud, foul-mouthed, ignorant, obnoxious, beerguzzling idiots. Let me set the record straight... I am not against people sipping suds while enjoying an athletic event. Nor am I opposed to general heckling of the pitcher or batter or anyone else.

What I am violently against is this...extremely loud and vulgar harrassment, people who can't handle their liquor and those individuals who allow these actions to continue. By the last inning of the game the fans vere wild, but of course there are two sides to every coin.

Tired of the continuous and uncalled for rires of the continuous and uncalled for antagonism, several Kaneohe players began to get frustrated and angry and proceeded to put their two cents in, which of course created a snowball effect. Finally, the bomb burst and the sparks began to fly. A Kaneohe Marine called time out and none-too-politely asked the umpire to eject one particular loud-mouth from the area.

That was all she wrote. One push led to an honest-to-goodness, knock-down, drag-out, free-for-all. The game was called, the umpires left, the military policemen arrived, and the fight continued. One man ended up at Tripler and several went to the Provost Marshal's Office, all because of one major ...lack of control.

The fans and several players could not control their mouths, the coaches could not control either the fans or players and the umpires couldn't control anybody.

I learned long ago that ignoring obnoxious spectators is part of being a good ballplayer. Likewise being a decent spectator includes knowing when the beer has gone to your head and when to shut-up. Equally important here are the roles of coaches and umpires. They must know when the harrassment has gone too far and act accordingly. The name of the game is control.

Perhaps somebody, somewhere, learned a lesson from this incident. If two Marine teams can't play a game or two without fighting, how can we expect to play against the other services. And what would happen if this had been a war and. not just a ballgame?

Career planners make options known

by SSgt Dennis Litalien

⁴Our goal is to provide all the information available so Marines can make intelligent career decisions."

That, according to 1stLt Michael Gaddie, the Joint Career Planning Officer here, is how he and his hard-charging team of career planners regard their jobs.

APPARENTLY that philos-APPARENTLY that philos-ophy has served the local career planning effort well. Retention rates for both the 1st Marine Brigade and MCAS Kaneohe Bay have skyrocketed. Since the beginning of fiscal year 1981, brigade reenlistments for first term Marines (those between one and five years active service) have and five years active service) have risen 60 percent above 1980 levels. Likewise, air station figures have increased nearly 80 percent. Although impressive, these statistics fail to reflect the determined, aggressive and concerned efforts of those involved in the career planning process.

The reasons for this success, according to IstLt Gaddis and GySgt Fred Mitchell, the Joint Career Planer, are numerous and varied. Among the important areas cited are that all career planners here are now school-trained and highly motivated, strong support is being received from the commanding general of the brigade, as well as the commanding officer of the air station and individual unit commanding officers; changes to the Selective Reenlistment Bonus Program (SRBP); increased interest in the Agreement to Training Option Program (ATOP); and revisions in established reenlistment incentives.

THE SRBP AND ATOP Interstates and the second sec bonus was also expanded. The ATOP program has been around for several years but has only gained popularity to make lateral moves into bonus eligible fields. After job training is completed, the Marine reenlists for a bonus. That way the individual gets the double benefit of satisfaction with a new job and a bonus.

"Much of our accomplishments can be attributed to increased awareness and hard work on the awareness and hard work on the part of career planners and unit commanding officers," added 1stLt Gaddis. "For example, so far in 1981, 25 Marines have participated in the ATOP program as compared to seven last year."

MANY OF THE more familia reenlistment options are still available. In addition to SRBP and ATOP, Marines on first and second reenlistments can sign up for duty station options, formal schools and promotion incentives. Brigade and air station Marines may reenlist early for deferred duty station options because of the fixed three year tour length in Hawaii. They can then submit duty choices five months before their rotation tour date.

About 95 percent of the Joint Career Planning Office's time is spent on instructing, advising and coordinating the efforts of the brigade and air station's 24 career planners. That effort is con-centrated in seven major commands, five brigade units and two air station commands. The "take care of our own" spirit is evident in the close working relationship between the Joint Career Planning Office and individual career planners. Weekly meetings are also conducted to keep every career planner abreast of current information. information.

An ongoing effort is made to maintain the program's credibili-ty. "When a Marine speaks to a career planner he should be able to do so with confidence and a feeling of trust," explained GySgt Mitchell. "We want all our career planners to be up to date, qualified, aggressive and they have to care. Commanders are and have been placing some of their finest staff noncommission ed officers in career planning billets."

IT MIGHT SEEM that the career planning effort is geared only toward Marines who want to reenlist but that isn't the case. Every quarter a separation course for Marines being released or discharged is conducted at the Family Theater. Topics covered include travel, disbursing, Veterans Administration benefits, civilian opportunities, the Marine officers are also encouraged to contact the Joint Career Planning Officer. He can provide assistance and information on lateral moves. career briefs, fitness report read-outs, and act as liaison with monitors at Headquarters Marine Corps. They also maintain current lists on promotion boards, training and educational programs that affect both officers and enlisted Marines.

"We are here to serve Marines, officer, enlisted and their families," said GySgt Henry. "We invite dependent wives to get involved in the career planning process. It is important that they understand how reenlistment affects the family. If you make a Marine and his family happy, the result is a happier Marine Corps.

Ancient fishponds survive/as historical wildlife preserve

People entering MCAS Kaneohe Bay via the Mokapu Gate are greeted by expanses of water on both sides of the roadway. This area, one of historical significance in the past of Mokapu Peninsula is known as the Nuupia fish ponds. IN THE EARLY days of the 20th century, this expanse was submerged in 297 acres of water. It consisted of three fish ponds, Halekou and Nuupia to the left of the present road and Kalaupuhi to the right. Another pond once located in this region mysteriously vanished. It is believed the lost pond was called Muliwaiolewa. Originally the site

Originally the site was a solitary, immense fish pond called Kaluapuhi. This body of water, like most of Mokapu Peninsula at that time was the property of royalty and as such was kapu (forbidden) to commoners. Halekou and Nuupia are said to be modifications of the original pond configuration. Hawaiian legend has it that Kalacapuhi was protected by a benevolent celegod who guarded the sacred ponds agains intruders. Local folklore claims the seel formed the ponds by burrowing across the mile-wide neck of Mokapu Peninsula seeking shorter passage from Kaneohe Bay to Kalua Bay. The eel was singled out by the Hawaiians for this role as they were considered to have an inherent right to this guardianship function. Nuupia cuts obliquely across Mokapu forming an inlet separated from the sea on the eastern border by a ridge approximately 10 feet above sea level. On the western front, an artificial dike divorces the ponds from the waters of Kaneohe Bay.

AT ONE POINT in history, the ponds were surrounded by a grove of starch trees. It is from these trees the name Nuupia is deriv ed. Actually, the "trees"

infantry leaders. "THE COURSE is designed to develop technical and tactical proficiency to a level ary to effectively and successfully lead a Marine rifle squad into combat," explained latLt Rex Westmeyer, combat. officer-in-charge of the Regiment Tactics Section.

According to 1stLt Westmeyer, the course was started in the fall of 1976 to train squad leaders and noncommissioned officers in the critical area of the combat tactics

"We normally train sergeants and corpo-rals, however; lance corporals, privates first class and even some staff sergeants go through the course," lstLt Westmeyer said

THE COURSE'S curriculum consists of eight weeks of class-room and practical application.

We expose the students to weapons ranging from the .45 caliber pistol to the .50 caliber machine gun. This includes the Dragon weapons sys-tem and basic demoli-tions," said 1stLt Westmeyer.

1stLt Westmeyer latt Westmeyer added that the Leather-necks also perform practical application on subject: such as calling for fire, land navigation, offensive and defensive squad tactics, the five para-graph order, combat, reconnaissance, am-bush and raid patrolling.

ALSO DURING the course, the students experience "Adventure Week." During this week of training the Marines concentuate on tower and helicopter rappelling, rope bridge exercise, three mile combat swimming, and water training in rubber boats.

The Marines are supervised at all times. As 1stLt Westmeyer explained, "We average 33 students per class. They reside in the school's barracks for the entire eight weeks."

Compared to the curriculum, the pre-requisites for attending the course are simple All that is required is motivation.

KEEPING IT UNDER WRAPS — Sergeant Robert Bullock, instructor at the 3d Marines' Small Unit Leaders Course, inspects one of the Leathernecks chosen to attend the course.

Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay Marina held its first open house Saturday and Sunday. HIGHLIGHTS of the weekend affair included a skiing exhibition by state champions, Tim and Kelly Lopes and a beauty contest. The brothers demonstrated brothers demonstrated the slalom skiing course, jumped over boats, performed trick skiing and with the help of their younger sister, Jenny, formed a three-person pyramid. The brothers also co. The brothers also coordinated a skiing tournament in which Sgt Randy Gearhart of Station Operations and Maintenance Squadron copped an uncontested triumph. The tourna-ment, held both days of the open house, tested the skiers' ability to weave in and out of buoys as a tow boat increased its speed with each run through to course. To score a point during the tournament a skier had to start from the wake generated b the tow boat, and ski 38 feet to a buoy and back again. If the skier fell during the return trip he was awarded one half point.

AFTER A full pass of six buoys was com-pleted successfully the skier returned through the course, going miles an hour faster.

The second place points the first day and 26 points the second. The second place finisher, Petty Officer 2d Class Bob Slayton of the DEN CRU 119, reserve unit, had 10 and one quarks points The one quarter points. The three other contestants, all from Headquarters all from Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, LCpl John Lapinske, Sgt Kelly Dodson and Cpl Dennis Lehman scored eight and one half; seven and six points, respectively. THE FIRS'I four finishers in the tourna ment received trophies and Gearhart also won a skiing jacket. Tro-phies were also award-ed for the beauty contest.

Tammy Lopes, the wife of Tim Lopes, was selected as the Ma-rina's beauty queen.

Mike Hilbert, the marina manager, spoke of upcoming projects and events the marina will sponsor to increase its patronage. "After the July 4 holiday, we plan to refasten and paint the Columbia sailboat. Right now it's seaworthy but it doesn't look like much. It's available for overnight trips and is capable of traveling inter-island.

"We try to offer air station residents with equipment to enjoy themselves in the water. At the scuba locker we have approximately 80 sets of diving equipment available.

"AUGUST 1 is the tentative date for the bathtub race and the second weekend of that month I plan to have a UFO (unidentified floating object) race. Participants can enter any type of vessel as long as it isn't a boat 'Other plans call for a fishing clinic and a ski team. I also plan to hold a shore fishing contest and the prizes will be awarded for the largest fish, the smallest fish and the most fish caught by weight."

The weekend open house proved beneficial to air station residents by showing them what is available at the Marina. It houses 18 boats for rent at reasonable prices and offers classes in sailing.

Page B-4, June 17, 1981 Susan B. Anthony leaves us a legacy

Not long ago people began to voice their opinions about the Susan B. Anthony dollar. They claimed that it was so close to the size of the quarter that it was no more than a nuisance.

Everyone avoided receiving the coin and one Post Office in the mainland posted a sign main and posted a sign in an effort to get people's attention and distribute the dollar coins. The sign indica-ted there was only a limited number of Susan B. Anthony dollars and only a certain amount could be given to each person.

THIS IS NOT the first time that Susan B. Anthony has been turned against by the American people. Throughout her life she stood firm on her feelings of women's right to vote. Even in the face of overwhelming public opposition. Her parents were passionate supporters of abolition, temper-ance and women's rights. In 1852 when Susan was 32 years old she joined the woman's sufferage movement and continued in it until her death in 1906. it When her father's cotton mill collapsed it left the Anthony family

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT TIRES?

During the early months of each calendar year, skilled personnel at Lex Brodle's Tire Co. carefully examine the first 5,000 steel radials that come in for replacement. Unfortunately, a significant number of these tires are units that have failed prior to tread wear-out. Moreover, most of these tire failures are caused by either Inferior factory workmanship or materials and/or car owner neglect. As a result of these on-going annual tire studies, Lex Brodie now sells only steel radials made by Michelin and those produced by quality-minded Japanese tire makers.
