Veteran aviator

Brigadier General John R. Dailey, son of the Air Station's first commanding officer, will assume command of the 1st Marine Air Wing at 2 p.m., today, on the flight line between hangars 101 and 102 here.

Brig. Gen. Dailey is taking over from Brigadier General W.K. Steels, who is being recognized as the Northwestern Marine Corps, and will assume duties as the Legislative Assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

Aviation birthday, May 30

For Marine aviators, the sky's the limit

by Milt Geary Berry

Corresponding to F/A-18 Hornet to the World War I biplane, the aviation birthday is a good way to honor how far Marine Corps aviation has progressed in 73 years.

The aviation anniversary of the Corps' air fleet from oldest to newest Wednesday, it was in 1912 that First Lieutenant Alfred A. Cunningham received orders to fly the first flight camp at Atlantic City, New Jersey.

To honor Cunningham, a 1912 biplane was asked to become the first Marine pilot and the fifth naval aviator. He received only 40 minutes instruction before flying.

Marine aviators led the way in the early days of America's involvement in World War I. The 1st Marine Aero Squadron, composed of the 1st Marine Training Center, is the first officially authorized to fly.

During their distinguished careers, aviators became part of the Spring Leathernecks, the first regiment to fly high-altitude reconnaissance missions.

The U.S. and then Delaware, dropped more than 2,000-pound bombs on railway lines in the early days of World War II, and participated in the final airman air attack in France on the 10th of May, 1918, when the formation dropped their first bombs on the British and a French territory.

One of the Marine aircraft lost early in the war, and became separated from the main group, led Lt. Col. John A. Bullard, and his observer, Maj. General Robert G. Robinson, which were attacked by 11 enemy fighter planes. Robinson became severely wounded, but his crewmen flew their aircraft to the nearest air field. On that day they were awarded the Medal of Honor.

Memorial Day: Remembering our veterans

"Today America everywhere pays our respects to those who gave their lives for freedom. We lay wreaths and flowers at their graves, by the flag, and together with our children, we will bring their courage and honor. For those who have lost loved ones in the defense of our freedom, we are forever grateful.

"Over two hundred years ago, General George Washington rallied several hundred men in Long Island during the Revolutionary War, and the fate of the United States might have been changed, had God been on our side."

"We must never forget that our country, as well as the world, is a dangerous place, and that the enemy is always waiting."

"The spirit of the Corps' aviators continued through the Korean and Vietnam Wars. Their spirit still hasn't changed, even though the aircraft they fly have made tremendous advances in all aspects.

"In the beginning, the biplane, two-seat biplane, was comprised of the Marines, today. They are vertical takeoff and landing, while some are even for the stars aboard space shuttles."

"The Corps' aviators continue to fly at the highest levelsaching for freedom. We are forever grateful."
Military spouses honored for unselfish contributions

by Sgt. Christopher Wood

They stand in the shadow of our great patriots, but America's military spouses still have their contributions in the spotlight today, on the nation's annual Military Spouse Day.

President Reagan, in making the proclamation, complimented military spouses for their historical contributions. "Many through the years," Reagan stated, "the wives of military personnel have made contributions to the well-being of our fighting men and the general welfare of our society."

Activities to recognize spouses are scheduled at military installations across the U.S. At Kaneohe Bay, spouses will receive a 25 percent discount on lunch and dinner meals all day, with the general admission of $175, military and spouses here are encouraged to come out and enjoy the day.

Next week at Pearl Harbor and Barbers Point will hold a special event with discounts as high as 25 percent.

At Camp H.M. Smith, Aloha Tower, Hawaii, the public is invited to enjoy a patriotic轻易 and enjoy a patriotic ceremony.

President Reagan still has the word for the day's appreciation and service. "As an example, they have provided exemplary service in the areas of education, community, health, military and cultural affairs."

Reagan said, "And military spouses, parents and homemakers, through their contributions, have translated our nation's strength - the American family - into the strength of the nation itself."

One such "contribution" is Carol Frizzell, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Bill Frizzell commanding officer of the 114th Field Artillery, who said Carol, a military spouse for 15 years, "I like travel, as I don't mind transfers. After those moves into place, I look to get a little respite." Carol is a volunteer with the Nave Belief Society, works with the Officers' Wives Club, and is involved with the American Red Cross.

"I'm involved in these things because I love them," she said, "I think that I have a duty and obligation that would drive my desire to help." Carol also said, "It would be wrong to say that military spouses have never felt something. As long as they recognize problems, they can think of ways to help."

One such contribution is Mary Sanders, wife of George Sanders of the 114th Field Artillery. "I think Carol's contributions are important that we don't recognize them. Each one is different and has her own interests. There's no typical military spouse."

One thing they do have in common is a constant appreciation for their spouses' ability. Carol sees a positive side to that ever-present fact, "I keep you appreciation of each day," she said, "I feel comfortable when I feel you appreciate something."

But some have a feeling that the world's problem is how to display you. They keep you appreciation of each day, "I keep you appreciation of each day," she said, "I feel comfortable when I feel you appreciate something."

Women recruits to fire for qualification

by Sgt. Henry L. Gregory

MCRC, Parris Island, S.C. — Women Marines and recruits will be shooting the M16A2 rifle for qualification by the end of the year, according to HQMC officials. Although the exact date is not set yet, a few years are turning here, especially at Women Recruit Training Command.

Rifle qualification for recruits will also affect the Marines who train them, the Drill Instructor and Primary Marksmanship Instructors. The DI is the official in charge of the matching qualification school, says First Lieutenant and Wanda Borne, assistant Drill Instructor on WRTC, "and continue to send them until they qualify." As a result of women's entering training will be lengthened in order to 'brush-up' and live firing. The overall time in training will also reflect the fact that the command usually has four to six ships at one time with a maximum capacity of five to six ships. As the WRTC will operate most of the time of the peak week, but

Korb said: "But a number of manpower challenges remain." He recommended a basic package that emphasizes quality of life improvements for service members and their families. Key points of the proposed package are:

- A 3 percent pay raise to take effect July 1, 1985, three months earlier than usual.
- More funding for selective enlistment bonuses and special duty assignments.

This proposal would increase government funding in order to include that portion of travel in the continental United States — the same benefits now provided for children of federal civilian employees.

Korb urged Congress to keep the purpose of the military compensation in perspective when looking for additional budget cuts.

While in the Defense Department, like our counterparts in other agencies, must search for every available avenue of saving tax dollars, it is vitally important that we do not undo the improvements that have been made in the manpower area," he said.

"To continue attracting the required number of qualified volunteers, we must be committed to a program of fair and competitive pay and allowances.

Korb pointed out the ramifications of re-orientation in military benefits that have been discussed around Capitol Hill. If federal tax policy is changed to make military allowances and benefits taxable, that amounts to an across the board military pay cut, he said. Changes in the military benefit system, however, make the entire compensation package less attractive. "This country now has a strong, high quality force that not only provides for the immediate defense but also serves as a role model for future defense needs," Korb said.

"We have accomplished this change by offering qualified volunteers the opportunity to become skilled professionals, to be paid a competitive wage, and to make a contribution in the security of this nation."

"In addition," Korb said, "we have recognized the military family as an integral part of the defense community and have improved the quality of military life and working conditions.

Two local men give blood regularly so others can live

by Sgt. L.G. Brouse

The body performs miraculous deeds. Among them is the ability to replenish its blood supply on a regular basis.

This replenishment, which is 10 to 12 pints, allows blood donors, like Hajime Fujita and Henry Pundyke Jr., to contribute every two to three months and each has donated approximately six times their own supply over the years.

Fujita, a ability foreman at Facilities Department here, has been donating Blood since 1956. "I gave blood the first time because I heard on the radio that it was needed. I felt pretty good about being able to help others so I continued," he explains, not why not," said Fujita. Pundyke feels good after donating blood, not tired or weak like other donors. "I guess I'm just used to it," said Pundyke. "I'd like to encourage others to give blood. I know some of them are afraid of needles. I used to be, but it's not so bad now," he said.

Pundyke, a plant and equipment supervisor at the Facilities Department here, has been giving blood only a short time when compared to Fujita. But in Pundyke's 15 years of giving the "gift of life," he's become as accustomed to his fellow donors. "I've given a little more than 60 pints in 15 years," said Pundyke proudly. "It's an excellent way to do a community service without really getting involved or committing a lot of time," he said.

Pundyke does admit that this type of community service does have an effect on his body. "I always have to have and take a nap after I give blood," he said.

Donors like Fujita and Pundyke are vital people to any blood bank operation.

High school graduates enlisting in numbers

by Sgt. Maj. Rudi D. Hunter

The second group of new recruits in PT 84, 75 percent of them with high school diplomas. That same percentage, not surprisingly, the graduates achieved average or above on the Armed Forces Qualification Test, and Lawrence. Korb, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, Installations, and Logistics. "We are confident that we can continue to satisfy our recruiting goals with volunteers." Korb said.

"However, the sustained economic recovery, decline in the military-age youth population, and widening comparability gap between military and civilian wages pose difficult recruiting challenges." High school graduates have a substantially lower fore-armed attrition rate than non-graduates, according to Korb. He said, "As the Army, about 75 percent of high school graduates complete their first term of enlistment. This compares to only about 50 percent of non-graduates." The service uses the high school diploma as a "dividing line" of quality, but a diploma indicates only that the student has finished a required course of study and passed all the necessary tests. It does not indicate the extent to which a person can learn a particular subject. Defense Department statistics show that lower-aptitude personnel are harder to train than those who make high use of access—even in low and moderate skills. An important reason is in reading ability, usually at the 5th and 7th grade levels.

A DOD survey found that almost 85 percent of college graduates joined the military; 54 percent of active-duty personnel were school graduates, compared to 9.1 percent in the civilian sector. Two percent have four-year college degrees, and 14 percent have between one and four years of college credit.

The final criterion of quality, however, is demonstrated performance, which is the only real index of the quality of the career force," Korb said.

Recruiting quality service members helps eliminate the "stigma" that military service as a career is "last resort" for those who have no other viable opportunities, he concluded.

The Reserve Marines worked on several construction projects, ranging from the gymnasium to the grenade range. "We had everyone working on their Military Occupational Specialty. "The teams integrated and worked hand-in-hand with the MAG-12 crew here and at Barnes Point," said Germany Resident Carl Margenzaic, noncommissioned officer in charge of the TAFIS crew.

Part of the TAFIS training involved half a day of firefighting at West Field. The nine-man, one-woman crew donned aluminum reflective vests, high boots and protective helmets before starting an all fire in the pits specially made for practice fires.

Defense Department officials are asking Congress to appropriate more than $10 billion for fiscal 1986 military construction programs to improve working and living conditions for military people and their families around the world.

Our society's families don't have nearly the benefits or community facilities they require in many places. According to some plans within the United States, it's the unknown.

The 1986 housing budget request totals $9.5 billion, including $16 million for the Department of the Navy, $1.2 billion for the Department of the Army, $2.6 billion for the Department of the Air Force, and $4.6 billion for the Department of the Navy.

Families also will benefit from the $32 million allocated with this year's medical facility programs. $17 for schools, $6 million for child care centers, and other facilities. Defense officials went sick between 0.4 and 0.6 percent.

Survivor benefits

Identifying ways to increase participation in the Survivor Benefit Plan is the aim of a review now under way in the Department of Defense.

Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, Lawrence J. Korb, is seeking a 75 percent participation rate among retired service members. The current rate is estimated at 50 percent, and includes 45 percent of retiring enlisted personnel and 74 percent of retiring officers.

The SBP provides for the payment of a portion of retired pay to the survivors of retired service members. The principal beneficiary is usually the member’s spouse, who may receive 75 percent of the service member’s gross retired pay or 50 percent of a lesser “base” amount of $100 or more per month.

The monthly cost to the service member, which is withheld from retired pay, is $1.50 for the first $100 of retired pay and 10 percent of the amount in excess of $100. Amounts withheld from participating member’s pay are not subject to federal income tax.

Among major areas covered by the review effort are the cost of participation, government employees, military members, retirees, dependent spouses and service children, as well as the effect of military status, type of military spouse and death before or after the SBP was implemented in September 1972.

Safety goggles must in court
by Sgt. L.C. Brooks

Racquetball is one of the fastest, most intense sports; and as much, the ball has a high potential of causing serious eye damage.

It has long been recommended that players of the sport wear safety goggles to protect their eyes. To enforce this recommendation, Headquarters Marine Corps recently made it mandatory that goggles be worn by players, while playing racquetball or handball at Marine Corps installations.

All players, including dependents and retirees, are required to wear goggles in the court areas at all times. This rule applies to emergency, as well as competitive matches.

In addition, all military personnel participating in Marine Corps sponsored tournaments are required to wear goggles.

"Players at this gym, like all military installations, have always been required to wear goggles," said Master Sergeant Gary Hill, NOOC of the Station Gym.

The only exception is people who wear glasses, according to Hill. "Their glasses provide protection and are needed by layplayers to play the game," he said.

But prescription safety goggles are available and may be ordered through sport organization.

The goggles protect a player's eyes not only from the ball but also from the opposing player's racket. "I remember getting hit twice above the eye by my opponent's racket," related Hill. "Both had no goggles it wouldn't have happened."

Twenty pairs of goggles are available for use at the gym. With three courts and a maximum of four players on court, there is no shortage of eye protection for handball and racquetball players aboard the Station. The goggles are also available for purchase at the exchange.

MCAS Beaufort, S.C. —

Gunnery Sergeant Steven Bernard, MCGR, Quantico, Va., won the All-Marine Racquetball Men's Open division, May 2, by defeating Major David Bartlett, Camp Pendleton, in a match that ended in a tiebreaker.

Staff Sergeant Angel Sandoval, Twenty-nine Palms, Calif., ousted Master Sergeant Robert Lincer, H&HS, to win the Men's Senior (over 33) division. Lance Corporal John Sandoval, Kaneohe Bay, beat First Lieutenant Lirlane Tangen, also from Kaneohe Bay, to claim the Men's Junior division.

In Open play, Bernard and Bartlett fought hard in the championship game. Bernard took the first game 15-11, but was able to come back in the "breaker, played to 11, to achieve Bartlett's 9-8.

Sandoval defeated Lincer, 1984's Senior Singles and Doubles champion, two straight games. Sandoval bent past Lincer in the first game, 15-9, who fought hard in the second game but an injury halted his assault making him settle for a 10-8 loss.

The battle for the Women's division by the two Hawaii Marcons was dramatically won by Skilling when she defeated Tangen, 15-5, in the first game and 15-7 in the second.

In Men's Open Doubles competition, Bernard and Staff Sergeant James Jenkins, MCAS Beaufort, teamed up to defeat Gunnery Sergeant B.J. Farrington, BMC Cherry Point, and Staff Sergeant John McCall, MCAS Beaufort. Bernard and Jenkins won the first game, 15-9, but the second, 10-15, and returned on the court to out their opponents, 11-2.

Senior Doubles was won by Sandoval and Captain David Jacobson, Twenty-nine Palms, after a team consisting of Inniger and Sandoval.
