New additions to Marine uniforms

The Marine Corps uniform is the visual sign of a Marine. The nature of the uniform and the manner of its wearing are, therefore, matters of primary concern and importance to all Marines.

There has been a quiet revolution in Marine Corps uniforms for the past dozen years; and, during the next few years more changes will be made.

The intermediate weight jacket, commonly called the "tanker jacket," will become an optional item for wear with the service "B" and "C" uniforms. The man's jacket will be available in the Exchange system by the end of this year, but the women's jacket is still in development and should be available by mid-1989.

Jungle boots, which are currently an optional item and available through clothing sales stores, will become an initial issue (bag) item on Oct. 1, 1989. The mandatory possession date for these boots is Oct. 1, 1991.

General purpose trunks are currently under development, with introduction as a bag item is scheduled for Oct. 1, 1990, with possession mandatory by Oct. 1, 1991.

Introduction of the new all-season 10.6 oz. polyester/wool gabardine green service and blue dress uniforms for enlisted personnel is scheduled Oct. 1, 1989. This new uniform will replace the current green poly/wool, green wool serge and blue wool gabardine uniforms. All enlisted personnel will be required to have the blues and greens in the new fabric by Oct. 1, 1994. The same uniform items for officers should be available for optional wear by Oct. 1, 1990. Although the current fabric uniforms are authorized for wear indefinitely, all officers will possess the new all-season uniforms by Oct. 1, 1994.

The officer white dress uniform will remain a mandatory item until May 1, 1994, at which time it no longer be authorized for wear.

Poromeric, or high-gloss shoes will be introduced as a bag item on Oct. 1, 1989. There won't be any mandatory possession date, and individuals will be allowed to wear either the leather of poromeric shoes.

News in Brief

2/3 Marine killed

One Marine was killed and 10 were injured when the M923 truck they were riding in overturned near Haleiwa, April 28.

Sgt. Phillip A. Vinson, 27, from Fulton, Tenn. was pronounced dead at the scene. A memorial service was held for him here, Tuesday.

The Marines, from Co. F, 2nd Bn., 3d Marines, were returning from routine training at the Kawaihoa Army Training Area.

Pilots declare KIA

The two Marine Corps pilots missing in the Persian Gulf since April 18 have been declared Killed In Action.

A fact-finding body convened by their unit, contingency Marine Air Ground Task Force 2-88, requested a change in the status from "Duty Status, Whereabouts Unknown," following an examination of the facts surrounding the disappearance of the AH-1T Cobra flown by Capt. Kenneth W. Hill and Stephen C. Leslie during an engagement between U.S. and Iranian ships.

In making its recommendation, the fact-finding body provided the following explanation: "While being vectored to identify an unknown surface contact, Capt. Hill and Leslie reported a Fire Control Radar lock-on. The USS Wainwright then lost communication and radar contact with them.

Their disappearance was a direct result of hostile action, sustained in combat or relating thereto, and they were killed outright or died as a result of wounds or other injuries..."

Neither the helicopter nor the remains of the pilots have yet been recovered. The two Marines were assigned to Marine Light Attack Helicopter Squadron-167, homebased at MCAS New River, N.C.

"Threatcon Alpha" Implemented

Higher Headquarters rescinded "Threatcon Bravo" for the Air Station Saturday and implemented "Threatcon Alpha," a less serious condition declared in response to a general, rather than a specific terrorist threat.

Servicemembers, dependents and civilian employees are urged to maintain increased vigilance and security awareness. Be suspicious and inquisitive about strangers, particularly those carrying suitcases or other containers.

Everyone should be alert for unidentified vehicles on or in the vicinity of U.S. installations and for abandoned parcels or suitcases, or any unusual activities. The use of the "Neighborhood Watch" concept in military housing areas, on school grounds and around social and recreation centers is encouraged.

Anyone wishing to report suspicious activities or items should call the military police, at MCAS Kaneohe Bay; 257-7114, Camp Smith; 477-7114, Pearl Harbor, 471-7114.

On the Run

Recon Marines from 2nd Squad, 1st Platoon, Co. A(Rein), 3rd Recon Bn(-) hit Fort Hase Beach after helocasting with their boats and gear to begin a day-long endurance run. The endurance run was just one event in their first inter-company squad competition. See A-2 for the story.

Brigade to open computer training center Wednesday

By Sgt. Stephen Frank
The Brigade Information Systems Management Office here will officially open a new Computer Center May 11 in building 1037.

The new center will function as a computer training facility for the Brigade, providing an alternative to, and saving the expense of, sending Marines to other schools for training.

"Some other advantages of having our own computer center are that it'll be easier and more convenient to hold our own classes and we'll be able to customize our training classes to what the Brigade actually needs," said Capt. Merrill Pierce, the Brigade information systems management officer.

The plan for the center, according to Capt. Pierce, is to hold organized classes in the mornings, and then open in the afternoon for individual help and open computer work.

The organized classes will cover the various standardized functions used by the Marine Corps, including introduction to microcomputers, Wordstar, DBase II and III, and SuperCalc.

According to Pierce, units can also arrange for customized blocks of training to cover whatever specialized problems they may be encountering.

The center will also have a number of computers available for use on a first-come, first-serve basis for individual training with tutorials or to use when no other computer is available.

Trained personnel will also be on hand to give individual instruction, or troubleshoot problems.

"For instance, if a Marine is having problems with a computer, he or she can bring their disk down here, we'll take a look at it, show them what the problem is, then either fix it or give them instruction on what they're doing wrong," said Pierce. "If on the other hand, their computer is broken, they can bring it in and we'll do bench tests on it and do our best to fix it, or induct it into the maintenance cycle. Then if they need a computer to get their work done they can use ours," he continued.

In addition, the center will have a library of free public-domain software that individuals can get copies of for their own work libraries. Programmers will also be on hand to help customize a program to carry out specialized tasks.

"Ultimately this center will become the computer focal point of the Brigade," said Pierce. "The logical follow-up step will be the formation of a micro-computer user group that can draw on the experience of all or most of the computer users in the Brigade.

Eventually I'd like to have a board with a list of names of people in the Brigade who can help with various functions or programs, so anyone can go to them when they need help with something that maybe we aren't familiar with," he added.

The official opening will be held at 1:15 p.m., May 11 on an invitation only basis, but following that there will be an open house for anyone interested in learning more about the center.

"Task force" assigned in auto loan dilemma

The military in Hawaii continues to press for an end to lending practices that allow lenders to interfere with creditworthy servicemembers shipping their vehicles from the state.

The Commander in Chief, Pacific, has tasked LtGen. Godfrey, Commanding General of FMFPac and Marine Corps Base Pacific, to be the "executive agent" in resolving this issue.

LtGen. Godfrey has established a joint-service "task force" to negotiate with lending institutions in accordance with Senate Concurrent Resolution 186. This resolution

'Gunner' Rank Reinstated

Headquarters Marine Corps has re-established MOS 0306, Infantry Weapons Officer, as a Warrant Officer (Gunner) billet, and is soliciting applications from qualified senior enlisted Marines from the infantry. A two-week selection board will convene Sept. 19.

Designated as "Marine Gunners," these Marine officers will be authorized to wear the "bursting bomb" insignia. The board will look for Marines with exceptional combat arms skills, which would allow them to make a significant contribution to their unit's war-fighting capabilities. As infantry weapons officers, they will be a source of expertise on all aspects of infantry weapons and be able to communicate that knowledge to others.

They will maintain this high degree of expertise by serving consecutive tours in the FMF, occasionally alternating with training billets.

Infantry Weapons Officers will advise their commanders of the tactical employment of weapons organic to infantry units. They will also develop, coordinate, and monitor unit training programs in the tactical employment and preservative maintenance of these weapons.

The training track developed for this MOS will build on the selectee's present experience and produce an officer fully qualified to carry out a gunner's duties. After the Warrant Officer Basic Course, newly appointed gunners will attend the Infantry Officer Course and Weapons Instructor Course.

Deadline for applications to the Joint Career Planning is June 25. For eligibility criteria, refer to ALMAR 097/88.

Such negotiations between the armed services and Hawaii lenders to protect creditworthy servicemembers from loss of their motor vehicles.

Servicemembers who plan to finance a new or used car in Hawaii should not sign a "separate and apart" agreement and should consult with a Legal Assistance Officer before signing any automobile purchase contract. Those servicemembers who have financed cars and are having difficulty obtaining permission to ship the vehicles out of state, should also seek counsel.

Military spouses spotlighted May 13

Spouses who stand behind our country's defenders will be in the spotlight May 13 as the nation observes "Military Spouse Day."

In his proclamation, President Reagan lauded military spouses for the role they've played throughout history. He called for the day of recognition so that gratitude can be expressed to spouses for years of sacrifice and service. "Since the early days of the Continental Army, the wives of our servicemen have made unselfish contributions to the spirit and well-being of their fighting men and the general welfare of their communities," Reagan said.

"As volunteers, military spouses have provided exemplary service and leadership in educational, community, recreational, religious, social and cultural endeavors," the president continued. "And as parents and homemakers, they preserve the cornerstone of our nation's strength — the American family."

Military service is among the highest callings of our nation; where men and women are asked to obey the orders of the president, and to be prepared to give their lives in their country's defense.

For military spouses, this is a dual calling. Adjusting to the unique challenges of military life compels them to give more than they would if their mates were not in the service.

Whether man or woman, spouses of the country's defenders nationwide can take pride as their contributions are spotlighted on May 13.

Marines from Co. A(Rein), 3d Recon Bn.(-), charge off the starting line as they begin the three-mile run portion of their PFT, part of that company's squad competition.

Recon jumps into squad competition

Story and photos
by Sgt. Stephen Frank

The Marines of Co. A (Rein), 3rd Reconnaissance Bn. here got down to the basics of their mission with a week of grueling competition in their first inter-company squad competition.

The competition, conceived by Capt. B.M. Barnes, Co. A's commanding officer, is designed to test the unit's tactical proficiency, physical condition, and ability to operate as a cohesive unit.

Structured loosely along the same lines as the annual squad competition held in Quantico, the competition emphasized the skills necessary for reconnaissance units, according to Barnes.

The actual competition began April 26, although the squad leaders knew for six months that it was coming and had a basic outline to follow in training their teams.

The competition began with the squads going into isolation at LZ Boondocker, making final preparations, coming out only long enough to take a physical fitness test on the 27th and an endurance run on the 28th.

The PFT was the standard Marine Corps variety, but with a Recon twist. Participants were allowed to extend their scores if they maxed the basic test, meaning they could count any pull-ups over 20 if they also scored at least 80 sit-ups and maxed the run. The same went for the other events. Several of the competitors racked up scores well over 300.

The endurance run began with a helocast, teams making a short jump out of a helicopter, off Fort Hase Beach. Once the squads reached the beach they were required to run all over the Air Station, stopping at nine different stations to perform a variety of tasks, including building a field expedient antennae, taking several written tests, making observations from the top of Kansas Tower, swimming, and negotiating an obstacle course with all of their equipment.

The final event, a three-day patrol in the Kahukus, began with a helo-rappel into the operation area on Friday morning. The Marines were required to navigate through the training area to find a command post manned by aggressors from Co. A, 3rd Combat Engineers. Once they found the CP, they were required, among other things, to make observations and plant mock sensors.

"One of the goals of this competition, and one of the overall goals for this company, was to have the NCOs do all the planning and training for this event with a minimum of help from the officers and staff NCOs," said Barnes.

"To that end a lot of the decisions were left up to the squad and team leaders. They were told what they had to do during the competition, but the decisions as to what equipment they should carry or how they would go about completing the mission were left in their hands," he added.

"This was definitely a hard event, and helped separate the men from the boys, so to speak," said Cpl. Joseph Breze, third squad leader. "For a long time we were under our T/O so we had to worry about quantity, but we've gotten some new people to fill out the ranks and now we can concentrate more on quality. This evolution helped show the new guys what we're all about," he added.

Although the winner of the competition hadn't been announced at Hawaii Marine press time, most of the participants felt the competition did a lot to boost unit morale and cohesiveness. "Even though this was a squad competition, the whole company pulled together to get ready. If someone asked for help with something, you didn't say no simply because he was in a different squad. A lot of teamwork went into this, and a lot of cohesion came out of it," said Breze.

Despite teamwork and six months of preparation, a lot of off-duty time went into getting ready. "We had plenty of time, but you've got to make more time if you really want to be good," said Cpl. Mike Baughman, second squad leader. "You're only as good as you work and practice, so we put a lot of liberty time into the preparations," he added.

"A lot of credit needs to go to the engineers too," said Breze. "The defensive positions they set up were hard to get into. Some of the teams had to crawl for four hours just to get in, and a lot of teams got caught."

The Recon Marines are now recuperating from the ordeal, but in a few months they'll begin preparations for the next competition, making this an annual event.

Cpl. J.J. Jakes, Co. A(Rein), 3d Recon Bn.(-), begins a rappel under the watchful eyes of rappelmaster LCpl. T.J. Wilson.

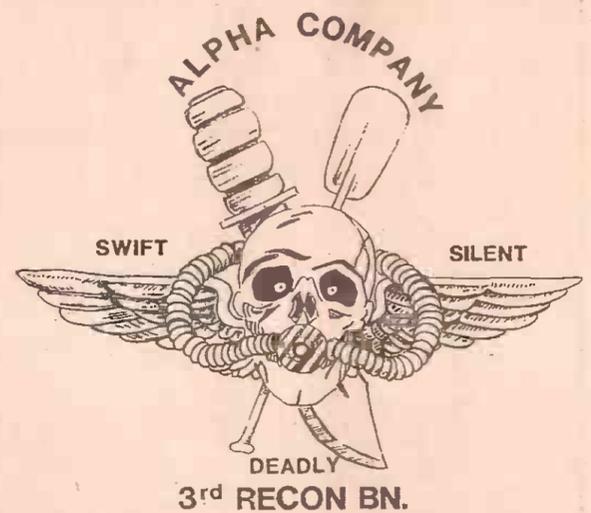

Cpl. J.M. Walls, Co. A(Rein), 3d Recon Bn.(-), drags himself up the rope as he finishes the final obstacle on the final event of a grueling endurance run Marines use the buddy system to negotiate the obstacle course in full combat gear.

A swimming test was one of the nine stations in the demanding competition.

Honors for the fallen

NATIONAL CEMETERY OF THE PACIFIC, HONOLULU, Hawaii —

*"They shall not grow old,
As we who are left grow old,
Age shall not weary them,
Nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun
And in the morning,
We will remember them."*

These lines from "For the Fallen," read by Consul-General of New Zealand, Kate Lackey, rang from the cemetery's crater walls as more than 200 observers gathered to honor the war dead of Australia and New Zealand during the annual ANZAC

Day ceremonies here April 25. ANZAC Day marks the anniversary of the landing of the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps on Turkey's Gallipoli Peninsula in 1915 during World War I. The ANZAC forces suffered severe losses in that successful attempt to capture Constantinople. The anniversary now honors the dead of both nations during World Wars I and II, Korea, Malaya and Vietnam.

The ceremony began at 11 a.m. as nearly 100 Marines from Camp H.M. Smith and Marine Barracks, Hawaii, formed an honor guard, two color guards and wreath-bearers.

Hawaiians say 'We Are Family'

The American military and the Hawaiian community have long had close ties, and to celebrate the continuing close relationship the Hawaii Chamber of Commerce will sponsor Hawaii Military Week, May 16-22. The theme of this year's celebration is

"We are Family."

The week will kick off with an opening ceremony at the State Capitol Rotunda, May 16.

A "Top Band" free concert is scheduled for May 18 at 7 p.m. at the Waikiki Shell.

A Recognition Luncheon will be held May 19 in the Pacific Ballroom in the Ilikai Hotel.

A special luau will be held May 20 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Paradise Cove, Campbell Industrial Park. Tickets are available at Special Services outlets.

Hawaii Military Week will end May 22 with a special Military Family Day at Sea Life Park and "S.O.S." cook-off. The day begins at 11:30 and lunch is included with tickets

Marines refurbish historical monument

By Sgt. Stephen Frank

A group of Marines from 3d AAVBn. recently spent a few days repainting and refurbishing the LVTP-5 that sits at the Main Gate to the Air Station. The aging war machine, repainted to match its original paint scheme, is on loan from the Marine Corps Historical Branch in Washington D.C.

The old 'trac is used as part of a static display to symbolize the ground element of the 1st MEB. The other part of the display, an F-8 fighter plane, sits in a similar display across the street, symbolizing the air element.

In addition to its symbolic meaning, the vehicle also stands as a memorial tribute.

A plaque mounted on the side of the vehicle is dedicated to four Marines from 1st Platoon, Co. D, 3rd Amtrac Bn., who died in a helicopter crash at Pohakuloa Training Area, June 24, 1976.

The vehicle also stands as a memorial to all 'trackers' who have died in the line of duty. Painted on the crew chief cupola is the name of Pvt. Henry Carl Verhaalen, an am-tracker listed as missing in action during the battle for Tarawa in 1943. Verhaalen's dog tags were found among a pile of bones in an amphibious tractor that had been buried in sand just off Betio Beach on Tarawa until it was accidentally discovered by workers in 1974.

Positive identification of the remains was impossible, so the remains were buried at Punchbowl National Cemetery in Honolulu under a stone marked "unknown."

The restoration work is now complete and the 'amtrac' is once again ready to stand guard at our Main Gate.

SSgt. Gary Norman (left) and LCpl. Jimmie Castle, Det. A, 3d AAV Bn., inspect the hull of the LVTP-5.

'Staffex' on Molokai

Marines of the 1st MEB's command element conducted a two-day staff exercise on the neighbor island of Molokai this week.

Approximately 30 members of H&S Co., 1st MEB established a command post at the Molokai Training Facility near the Molokai airport. The exercise was designed to work out staff procedures to be used in future Maritime Prepositioning Force exercises.

HMM-265 changes command

LtCol. John Boulware will give command of Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron (HMM)-265 to LtCol. Dwain Fuller today at 2 p.m., at Dewey Square.

Fuller entered the Marine Corps under the Platoon Leader's Class (PLC) program and was commissioned a second lieutenant after graduating from Texas A&I University in December 1970.

After earning his wings in March 1972, Fuller embarked on a string of duty assignments that would take him to several major commands throughout the world. He earned a Master's Degree in Management in 1979.

Fuller reported to 1st MEB in July 1986 and served as HMM-364's executive officer. He became the Brigade's G-3 Air Officer in May 1987, was promoted to his present rank in February.

The Corpus Christi, Texas native is married to the former Susan Victoria Barron of Kingsville, Texas, and they have one son, Blain.

Boulware was commissioned June 6, 1969 after completing the PLC program. A graduate of the University of North Carolina, Boulware was designated a Naval Aviator in March 1971.

His many tours worldwide include a stint with MAG-36, 1st MAW, where he participated in operations such as "Freedom Porch" and "Slomson," in the Republic of Vietnam and Operation "Saklolo" in connection with flood relief in the Republic of the Philippines.

Boulware earned his Master's Degree in Business through the Advanced Degree Program in June 1980 and reported to the FMFPac comptroller section, working as the Budget Officer and later as head of the Analysis and Review Section.

A year after reporting to 1st MEB in July 1984, he was promoted to lieutenant colonel and became HMM-265's commanding officer in May 1986.

Boulware will become MAG-24's S-4 officer.

Asst. Defense Secretary explains U.S. Asian Policy

By Jim Garamone

AFIS — America is not a fading giant and the United States will continue to be vitally interested in the countries of East Asia, said Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs Richard L. Armitage. Armitage delivered his remarks to the Pacific Symposium sponsored by the National Defense University in Washington, D.C. The thesis that America, as a great power, is fading has gained currency with the publication of Yale historian Paul Kennedy's book "The Rise and Fall of the Great Powers." In it, he says a great power's economic success begets military power. But at some point, great powers suffer from "imperial overreach" when they attempt to keep far-flung military alliances going while not investing enough capital into the economic base. Kennedy sees the United States in that predicament today, and he points to this country's alliances made after World War II as a part of imperial overreach. "Professor Kennedy's analysis suggests that we are making the wrong investments as a nation, choosing 'guns' when we really need more 'butter,'" said Armitage.

great power in history. "This is why I reject the current wave of pessimism about America's future," he said. "And this is why I feel compelled to speak out as forcefully as I can before misguided ideas lead to destructive actions. Paul Kennedy is wrong about the See Asia/A-7

Asian-Pacific Week to begin; Marine reflects

Sgt. Stephen Frank photo
Sgt. Bienvenido Abuluyan

By Sgt. Stephen Frank

Americans of Asian-Pacific descent have been making contributions to our Nation's heritage since our two cultures first came into contact in the early days of Pacific exploration. Through their loyalty, dedication and hard work, these Americans have helped to make us the foremost power in the Pacific.

To honor these Americans, the week of May 7-14 has been designated as Asian-Pacific American Heritage Week. The theme for this year's celebration, the tenth such observance, is "A Decade of Achievement."

One example of this dedication and loyalty is Sgt. Bienvenido Abuluyan, the training NCO for H&S Co., 3d Bn., 3d Marines.

Abuluyan, a 31-year-old Filipino from the town of San Nicholas in the province of Ilocos Norte on the island of Luzon, joined the Corps in 1978. He emigrated to Hawaii with his family the previous year and was working as a field hand picking fruit in the Kahukus when he decided to join the service for a change.

After graduating boot camp, Abuluyan reported to Infantry Training School, then to Camp Pendleton.

Abuluyan was only there for five months before he received orders to Hawaii, and he's been here ever since. "I don't mind being here, because this is where my whole family is, but I've got orders now to barracks duty at Mare Island, San Francisco," said Abuluyan.

Abuluyan, who became an American citizen in 1984, feels regret for the recent turmoil in his native country, but if called on to fight there as an American, he says he would do his duty. "I feel sad, because people of my own blood are fighting and dying, but if I had to go fight there I wouldn't have a choice. I'm an American now, so I would just have to do my job," he said with a glint of pride in his eye.

Armitage said that the past scenario of economic conflicts leading to war and the change of mantle between great powers is over. "The era of imperial wars which (Kennedy) describes so well appears to have ended in 1945," he said. "Nuclear deterrence imposed a truce on the prospect of all-out conventional war between the strongest powers."

Armitage said while Kennedy's assertions may have been fine for the past, they really should not be applied to the United States of today. He added the United States "can adapt to change and challenge better than any

United States, and so are the people who have seized upon his great power theory as a rallying cry to bash our allies and roll back our overseas defense posture in the mistaken belief that this will make America more competitive and increase America's wealth and influence."

The Pacific Basin, according to Armitage, offers the best example of how the Kennedy thesis contributes to a profound misreading of American interests abroad.

Armitage cited America's defense relationship with Japan as "more favorable to us than it has ever been before." He further said that those criticizing Japan for not providing more toward its own defense are overlooking the gains the country has made. "Japan's 1988 defense budget ... is on the verge of surpassing the British, French and German levels — which will make it the world's third largest," said Armitage.

"My question, then, is this: What more do critics want Japan to do? Both the Senate and the House voted overwhelmingly in 1987 that Japan should spend 3 percent of its (gross national product) on defense ... What would the additional funds be used for? A nuclear capability? Offensive projection forces? Professor Kennedy speaks of Japanese carrier task forces and long-range missiles — is that what Congress wants? Will they enhance stability in East Asia?

"The critics are unclear and, at times, contradictory," he said. "While demanding that Japan buy advanced

U.S. defensive systems so that it can relieve us of military roles in the area, they warn that Japan will steal our technologies for other uses. Bashing a key friend and ally in this manner is, to say the least, not an edifying spectacle viewed from either Washington or Tokyo."

Armitage called South Korea the "second-most-misunderstood pillar of our security role in Asia." He said that our support of the Republic of Korea has allowed it to prosper even under the threat of attack from "one of the most militarized, despotic and terroristic regimes in the world today" — North Korea. Moving on to the Philip-ines, Armitage said that Americans were heartened by the return to democracy under Corazon Aquino. This year — he noted — the United States and the Philippines will renegotiate the treaty allowing the United States access to Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base. "(Political figures) should ask themselves whether the recent dramatic turn to democracy and the future economic growth necessary to sustain it would be possible without the continued security cooperation between the U.S. and the Philippines," he said. Armitage listed other allies in East Asia and said that American ties with those countries serve all well. "Our close and cooperative defense relations with Thailand continue to deter external aggression ... With well over 100,000 Vietnamese troops occupying Cambodia, the U.S.-Thailand alliance is any-

All non-military guests visiting residents of the Air Station must be properly sponsored.

This may be done in person or by phone at the H-3 Pass and Registration Office. Sponsors must give their name, phone number, name and destination of their guest. After the guest registration is completed, a visitor pass is issued and the visitor is allowed to proceed to his destination. If the visitor pass allows the guest to go to a barracks, then that is where the guest must go. Sponsors are reminded that they are responsible for their guest, whether they are with them or not. There is no sponsorship to the beaches.

Alcohol related incidents

●A lance corporal was apprehended for DWI and reckless driving after being observed on E street speeding and locking the brakes on his car. The lance corporal submitted to an Intoxilyzer test which resulted in a .14% blood alcohol content. The lance corporal was released to his unit.

●A lance corporal was apprehended for DWI, failure to register his car, leaving the scene of an accident and unsafe backing after being involved in an accident at the seven-day store. The lance corporal submitted to an Intoxilyzer test which resulted in a .12% blood alcohol content. The lance corporal was released to his unit.

●A sergeant was arrested by HPD in Kailua for DWI and lane weaving after he was observed weaving in the lane of traffic. The sergeant submitted to an Intoxilyzer test which resulted in a .16% blood alcohol content. The sergeant was jailed under $150 bond and scheduled to appear in district court.

●A petty officer was arrested by HPD in Honolulu for DWI and driving on the wrong side of the road after he was observed operating his vehicle on the wrong side of the road. The petty officer refused to submit to an Intoxilyzer test. The petty officer was jailed under $150 bond and is scheduled to appear in district court.

●There were three additional DWI/DUI apprehensions during the week, one on station and two off station.

Thefts

●A lance corporal reported that someone had entered his secured room in the barracks and stole 86 cassette tapes and two compact discs worth $500. Investigation of this theft continues.

●A corporal was apprehended for shoplifting by security police after being observed leaving the Hickham exchange with four bottles of perfume concealed in his pockets. The corporal admitted the theft and was released to his unit.

●A lance corporal was arrested in Waikiki by HPD for auto theft and theft of license plates during a traffic stop which revealed that the vehicle he was driving was reported stolen in March and the license plates on the car were also stolen. Investigation continues by HPD.

●A lance corporal reported that a car stereo worth

$150 was stolen from his secured car while it was parked in the barracks parking lot. Investigation of this theft continues.

●There were seven other thefts of private property reported to the military police during the past week. Six of these thefts occurred on-station and one occurred off-station.

Other events on the blotter

●A corporal was apprehended for possession and use of cocaine after a command authorized search of his quarters by CID revealed a metal case containing suspected cocaine. The corporal was processed and released to his unit.

●A private first class is being investigated for submitting a fraudulent travel claim.

During the past week, Military Police investigated four breach of peace reports in family housing, two breach of peace reports in other areas of the base, apprehended two Marines for driving while their licenses were revoked or suspended and investigated six reports of damage to property. Military Police also investigated seven traffic accidents on station.

To report a crime, or if you notice suspicious activity on the Air Station, please call the Military Police Department's 24-hour Crime Stopper number 257-2123.

Legally Speaking

LAW DAY/ LEGAL LITERACY

By 1st. Lt. B.T. Palmer

Twenty years ago President Dwight D. Eisenhower established Law Day by Presidential proclamation. He did this because he believed that the "American people should remember with pride and vigilantly guard the great heritage of liberty, justice and equality under law. Three years later in 1961, the U.S. Congress joined President Eisenhower and designated the first day of May as a day of celebration for Americans to rededicate themselves to those same ideals.

The purpose of Law Day is to "call the attention of every American citizen to both the principles and the practice of American law and justice. It is a day to reflect on our legal heritage, the role of law in our society and the rights we enjoy under our Constitution." Since the purpose of Law Day is so broad, each year only a smaller theme of that purpose can be celebrated. The theme for Law Day 1988 is Legal Literacy.

What is meant by "Legal Literacy?" Every day we read newspapers, listen to the radio and watch the news on television. We constantly hear politicians talk about their programs; we hear about important criminal trials; and we hear or read about countless legal issues. While hearing all of this, we are bombarded by hundreds of different legal terms such as indictments, acquittals, arraignments, constituents and so forth. The reporters and the politicians are aware that we have all heard these words before, but do we really know what they mean? Can we accurately define them? The answer for most of us is probably "no," and if the answer is no, the problems and dangers become very real because everyone of us is affected by politicians in office and by changing law. How can we form accurate opinions if we do not fully understand the issues and concepts people are talking about?

These concerns become even more important as we look towards a national election. In November, we will have the opportunity to exercise one of our greatest rights of all: the right to vote. The men and women we elect to public office will make policy and laws which could either continue the United States on its path to greatness or could plummet us into a time of inflation and unemployment. We are all involved, and we all have great responsibilities.

What are those responsibilities? First, we must look at voting as not just a right, but as an obligation. A recent Congressional study indicated that only 53 percent of eligible voters in the United States actually vote. That is among the lowest percentages of all democratic countries. We have to realize how fortunate we are to have the right to vote and to be able to say who will and who will not lead us. So, our primary responsibility is to register to vote, and to get out there and vote on election day.

Our second responsibility is to educate ourselves so that we can make wise and informed choices on that day. The way to do that is, of course, to listen to the candidates, read about their ideas and background and look at their past accomplishments in public office. If we do that we know we have put the best person for the job in the driver's seat. This all relates back to the theme of Law Day. If we don't fully comprehend the language the politicians and the media use, we will not be able to make informed decisions.

How do we improve our legal literacy? Half of the battle is just being aware of the problem. If we realize that we may not understand all the language, then we will begin to make the effort to educate ourselves. Do not simply take for granted that we "think" we know what each word means. Once we find an area for doubt, the next step is just to pick up a dictionary, look up the word and put all doubt to rest.

Recognizing the problem and simple self-education will break the code, and lead to heightened legal literacy which, in turn, helps everyone understand the ABC's of American law and justice.

A legal assistance booth will be set up at the Main Exchange May 6, from 1 to 4 p.m. Pamphlets will be passed out and an attorney will be present to provide advise on legal problems.

DRUNK DRIVING CONVICTION REVERSED!

Panel invalidates drunk driving test

By Ken Kobayashi
Honolulu Star-Bulletin

But attorney Jim Richards, who specializes in drunk driving cases, said the state court's ruling "confirms" Lee's holding in his case.

In Court

Richards estimated that if Lee's ruling is upheld by a higher court, it could affect more than 2,000 cases which have not changed their procedure in evaluating the test.

A recent decision by the Hawaii Intermediate Court of Appeals indicates that the police may NOT use BREATH TESTS as evidence. If you took a breath test and were arrested and you later pled guilty or were convicted of DUI, you may be eligible to get your license back and have your driving record cleared for insurance purposes.

The Hawaii Rules of Penal Procedure require you to act promptly if you wish to take advantage of this recent court ruling.

CALL NOW to find out if you are eligible. One phone call may save you THOUSANDS IN HIGH INSURANCE COSTS.

thing but obsolete," said Armitage. Armitage discussed the Australia-New Zealand-United States Treaty and decried the decision of New Zealand to pull out of the pact. Yet, he said, the treaty retains a tie with Australia; New Zealand will be allowed back in once it changes its policy.

The People's Republic of China is a key element in American thinking on the security of East Asia. "We are working with China to help modernize its armed forces," said Armitage. "It reflects not only China's obvious historical importance to the region, which will only become greater in future decades, but also a recognition that China is coming out of a terribly destructive period and is moving toward a much more constructive and beneficial role."

He concluded, "I predict that a generation or two from now, a future Paul Kennedy will look back on this period ... and he will recognize that the United States tried something new that kept it in the forefront of influence and innovation among nations. In place of coercion, we used the power of persuasion; where others exploited and dominated less-developed societies, we helped them, encouraged them, protected them when necessary and respected their decisions about their own destiny."

From stripes to bars: two sailors earn commissions

Two enlisted sailors here will soon be commissioned as ensigns in the Navy's Medical Service Corps after being selected under the In-service Procurement Program (IPP).

HMC Wayne Jones, a systems and software evaluator at Brigade Surgeon, and HMC Michial Warrington, Chief Master of Arms at the Medical Clinic, were among 31 naval applicants picked by the March selection board.

Jones, 34, earned his Master of Science Administration (MSA) degree from Central Michigan University in August 1987. The Cartersville, Mont. native also earned a Bachelor of Science (BS) degree from Saint Mary's College in Moraga, Ca. Both degrees were in health care administration.

Warrington, 28, will complete his MSA from Central Michigan University this year. He completed his BS at Southern Illinois University in December 1984 while stationed at Pearl Harbor Medical Clinic. Warrington is from Satellite Beach, Fla.

Both sailors will be frocked in May, and will report to the Officer Indoctrination School (OIS) in Newport, R.I. July 3.

Marine 'wrestles' the road to recovery

By SSgt. Ray Tadem Jr.

MCCDC, QUANTICO—Doctors declared Greg Gibson's left knee the worst case of "runners' knee" they'd ever seen after they performed surgery on the perennial wrestling champion at Fort Collins, Colo., in 1983.

However, the Marine staff sergeant quietly states: "I was able to recover from the surgery and win the world championship in 1984."

Dogged determination won him gold medals in the world military Greco-Roman and Freestyle titles that year. He also took the gold in the Olympic Trials.

Gibson's hyper-extended knee was his nemesis during the 1984 Summer Olympic showdown in Los Angeles where he only won a silver medal.

But, the worst was yet to come for Gibson as he viciously twisted the knee during a practice session with All-Marine teammate Craig Pittman in November 1986.

His world-class physical condition helped the knee hold out long enough for him to defend his interservice Greco-Roman and Freestyle titles last year at Mather Air Force Base, Calif., and later win silver medals in both categories in the national championships.

"The knee shifted the whole time," he said. "It finally gave out in January."

The 34-year-old native of Redding, Calif., yielded to the inevitable last month and endured three-and-a-half hours of reconstructive knee surgery that removed severely-damaged ligaments.

Doctors at an Annapolis, Md., hospital replaced the ligaments with grafted tendon from around the patellar bone in his left knee. Gibson said they added special to the forefront of wrestling inspires the All-Marine team and coaches.

"He's hungry," said GySgt. Art Williams, the team's coach. "There's something out there he wants to do. He'll do whatever it takes to get back into world-class condition and compete."

"As for his age, some Russians have been to four Olympics, that's 16 years. Greg got started relatively late in world-class wrestling and hasn't gone through that much pounding."

Gibson is undergoing phys-

However, Gibson considers physical training only a part of his comeback. He's assisting wrestling coaches and teammates here to fill another need; the need to keep pace with developments within the sport. He needs the team now, just as they need him.

"I won't be on the mat," said the 6-foot-3-inch 220-pound Gibson. "But if I can stay active with the team, it will help me keep up with what's going on in the sport."

According to SSgt. James Armstead, assistant coach, Gibson's mere presence at practice sessions is an inspiration to the team.

"He's an inspiration because he gives them all something to shoot for. He makes them proud to be on the same team with him," said Armstead.

"I doubt if I would have done this well had it not been for the Marine wrestling program," Gibson explained. "Wrestling in the states is like 'free enterprise.' Many wrestlers are on their own and don't have the support of wrestling programs like you'll find in the Marine Corps or those of other countries."

As for his knee: "I'm taking it one day at a time. And one day, I'll be back."

screws to help support the knee.

The prognosis: "The doctors said it will be six months before I'll run again and a year before I'll wrestle," said Gibson, who walks with crutches and wears a reinforced, yet lightweight, knee support. "I'll be on the mat sooner than that."

His determination to return ical therapy three times a week at the Naval Clinic here. The exercises, for now, are simple: place a weight pack on his thigh and lift the leg. Other exercises strengthen his calf and thigh. The intensity will be light for several weeks until the knee can withstand the stress of leg extensions and other muscle strengthening exercises.

Former Marines coach Annapolis students

By Midn. Frank Bell and Capt. Dave Bethel

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—When one thinks of the Marine Corps, the rigorous demands placed upon its officers and enlisted men immediately come to mind. Marines are famous for their image of being highly motivated, physically fit and well-trained. Here at the Naval Academy, some of "the few, the proud" contribute to the physical development of the future leaders of the Marine Corps everyday. As the adage goes, there are no ex-Marines, only former Marines.

Baseball

Joe Duff has been coaching Navy baseball for 37 years. The former Leatherneck's affiliation with the Marine Corps began when he graduated from high school in 1942. A World War II veteran, Duff joined the Marines because "at the time it was the right thing to do." An artilleryman, Cpl. Duff saw action in Saipan and Tinian during the bloody island campaign enroute to mainland Japan and after 41 months of service, left the Corps to further his education.

"I didn't get out because of any dislike for the Corps, rather I saw my enlistment as an opportunity for me to serve my country in its time of need," said Duff. "The Marine Corps was a great experience and I'm proud to have been a part of such a fine organization. It sure made me grow up fast."

The longtime Navy baseball mentor attributes much of the discipline and organization used in coaching to the traits he learned while in the Marine Corps. "The discipline is a definite asset whether you stay in or get out," he said. Duff expressed his feelings about coaching at the Naval Academy as a "great way to work with great people and that's what it's all about."

Track

The varsity track coach at Navy gives credit to the Marine Corps for his present career. A two-time All-American track and field star in college and Olympic gold medal winner, Al Cantello said, "the Marine Corps gave me a chance to excel as a javelin thrower, something I couldn't have done anywhere else." During the Olympic years, the Marine Corps cooperates with world class athletes in a program in which they can work during the day and train in the afternoon.

"I graduated from LaSalle in 1955 and just missed going to the 1956 Olympics." With the support of the Marine Corps Sports Program, Cantello made it to the 1960 Olympics and set the world record in the javelin. At the time, he was a first lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

"I'm very loyal to the Marine Corps. If it hadn't been for the Corps, I would never have gotten the chance to become an Olympian," said Cantello. It was through the recognition from being an Olympian and setting a world record that I became coach at a collegiate track powerhouse such as Navy. The Marine Corps launched me into this profession."

Coach Cantello agrees that the Corps' discipline has helped in his coaching methods, but claims that the pride instilled by the Marine Corps is the biggest asset. "The Marine Corps gives you something you can't put into words, some higher vehicle, more meaningful than being part of a school or team," he added. "The Marines, with their pride and tradition, represent the essence of teamwork and Esprit de Corps."

Rowing

The third former leatherneck is Rick Clothier, head crew coach for Navy's rowing team for the past 14 years. Coach Clothier came to the Marines via OCS, receiving his commission in 1966. After finishing The Basic School, the young second lieutenant was sent to Pensacola for pilot training. "When I had my physical at Pensacola, my eyes weren't 20/20, so I became a forward air controller," said Clothier. "At the time, I had my seabags packed, expecting to be sent to Vietnam."

Instead, he was sent to Quantico to become head coach and coxswain of the Navy-Marine Corps rowing team which won the CISM games. With the success of the crew at CISM, the team went on the Olympic trails. "We just missed the Olympics by one second," he added. "After that, Clothier was assigned to the Naval Academy as the plebe crew coach."

"I decided to get out of the Marine Corps and return to Washington University to get my masters and doctorate in Athletic Administration." While attending school, Coach Clothier remained active by coaching their rowing team. He returned to the Naval Academy in 1974 to become the heavyweight crew coach.

"The Marine Corps had a direct influence on my decision to become a coach. It gave me the opportunity not only to coach, but also to participate." Clothier feels the most important trait he learned from the Corps was teamwork. "As a coach, you must put faith in your people and let them have their own sphere of influence; at the same time, you have to stress the fact that all must work as a team."

Basketball

The final former Marine is not only a former leatherneck, but also an alumnus of the Naval Academy. Dave Smalley, assistant Athletic Director for Recruiting and the women's basketball coach for the midshipmen, graduated from the USNA in 1957. After attending The Basic School, Smalley remained at Quantico to become a forward observer. He was then sent to Kaneohe with the First Marine Brigade where he was the executive officer and later the commanding officer of a firing battery.

"In the Marine Corps, I continued to be active in athletics and was a four time All-Marine basketball player," he notes. He also had an opportunity to coach one of those teams and played on a championship team. "It was when I coached that basketball team and realized that this was what I wanted to be doing. I got the opportunity to become the assistant basketball coach at Navy."

Smalley resigned from the Marine Corps and returned to the Naval Academy to teach and coach. This Marine could not stay away from the Corps altogether. He went into the reserves after one year of coaching, and retired after 20 years as a lieutenant colonel.

Coach Smalley praises the Marine Corps for affording him the chance to coach. "It was through the Corps that I gained the valuable experience both as a coach and as a leader. The principles of leadership taught at the Academy and further developed in the Marine Corps help in any type of profession — be it in the business world or as a coach."

Lessons of pride, discipline, and teamwork — all of which these four coaches can understand and credit to the Marine Corps for having instilled in them. These coaches realize the lessons athletics teach, and because of that, they are ideal for the Naval Academy where professionalism, leadership, teamwork, and discipline are primary goals.

"The Marine Corps had direct influence on my decision to become a coach."

—Rick Clothier

"It was through the Corps that I gained the valuable experience both as a coach and as a leader."

—Dave Smalley

Giant Swap Meet

The Armed Services YMCA Swap Meet is May 14, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. In addition to variety and bargains for all shoppers, free balloons for the keikas, and clowns, there is a very special event planned for your entertainment. An exciting Polynesian Dance Revue, featuring Tahitian and Maori dances as well as Hawaiian Hula, will kick off at 12 noon. Don't miss this super, unique event right here on the Air Station. Sellers are wanted: only $2 per person or space. Call 254-4719/4965 to sign up. Admission fee is 25¢ for 12 years and up. Under 12. Free! See you there!

Volunteer MPs

The Military Police Department is recruiting volunteers for their Auxiliary Military Police Program. There will be one-day initial military police orientation May 20 for those screened and accepted into the program.

Those requesting screening for the program should submit an administrative action form to their unit commander as soon as possible. Air Station Order 5800.7A has details.

The initial orientation familiarizes the auxiliary military policeman with all duties performed by the military police. The topics covered include deadly force, military police patrol procedures, detention cell procedures, conducting lawful apprehensions, report writing and alcohol enforcement, processing a person suspected of driving while intoxicated.

Police Dog Competition

The Military Police Department is hosting a "police dog" competition May 14, 1 p.m. Pollock Field. Police dogs from law enforcement agencies island-wide will be competing for seven awards. Judges for the event will be the Kennel Masters from the four branches of the service. Awards will be given for the following categories: Demonstration in explosives/drug detection; Obedience; Obstacle Course; Aggression; Box Searches.

In addition to the awards for individual dog teams, trophies will be awarded for the overall team and overall kennel.

The public is invited to watch the canines compete for the "top dog" awards.

All of the Kaneohe Air Station's six Military Working Dogs will be entered in the competition.

Mother's Day Special

The Hale Koa Hotel is offering several dining options for Mother's Day, May 8.

A brunch buffet from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. features a large array of both hot and cold dishes for $13.95 plus 10 percent gratuity, $4.95 for children under 12. Advanced reservations are advised.

A traditional dinner, held from 5 to 9 p.m., will offer a special menu of five complete dinners which include soup or salad, entree, vegetable, dessert and coffee, tea or milk.

A South Seas-style buffet dinner and Tama's Polynesian Revue celebrates Mother's Day Hawaiian style. Dinner begins at 6:30 p.m. with the show starting at 8 p.m. Tickets are $14.95 per adult and $6.50 for children under 12, which includes dinner, show and gratuity.

Tickets can be purchased at the hotel's activities desk or any Special Services ticket office. Tickets may also be charged by phone to major credit cards. For reservations and tickets call 955-0555.

Family Services

Planning PCS Moves

Another PCS workshop will be offered at the Family Service Center on May 19, 9-11 a.m. Learn how to have a smooth move and take some stress out of the PCS orders. The presentation will be in two parts: (I) Children, Emotions and Stress Management for the Move, and (II) Making Arrangements with TMO (Transportation Management Office). The guest speaker from TMO will be the NCOIC in charge of Household Goods and POVs. Learn the answers to questions like how soon should you start planning? What documents are needed and how many?

Do you have to supervise the movers? How long will the move take? Get the answers to these and many more questions and pick up valuable handout material. For reservations, call 254-1541/42/43.

Kindergarten Readiness

Kindergarten readiness classes for parents and children are held on Friday mornings 10-11 a.m. at the Family Service Center, for parents and children starting kindergarten in the Fall. Children must be five years old by Dec. 31. The Playmorning staff will work with parents and children to teach learning activities that will help prepare them for a successful beginning in elementary school. Classes are May 6, 13, 20 and 27. For reservations, please call 254-1541/42/43. The program is free.

New Arrivals Island Tour

On Friday, May 13, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. come join us for a free around-the-island bus tour. Families and singles who have arrived at MCAS, Kaneohe Bay within the last three months are invited to participate in this excursion, to get acquainted with the sights and attractions on Oahu. Casual dress and a brown bag lunch is all you'll need. Reservations are required and space is limited.

Call 254-1541/42/43 for reservations.

How to Manage Your Checking Account

The Family Service Center will offer a workshop May 11, 9-11 a.m. that will cover the basics of checking accounts, how to reconcile statements, budgeting tips and buying on credit. Active duty and family members are welcome. To ensure adequate handout material, please register by calling 254-1541/42/43.

Stop Smoking Clinic

ing clinic will be held at the Family Service Center May 16, 18, 23 and 25, from 7 to 9 p.m.

This free program is offered in cooperation with the American Cancer Society. FreshStart is a straight-forward, no-nonsense quit-smoking program to make your experience a positive and successful one. It is designed to give you strategies for conquering smoking in your thoughts, feelings, and actions. It will also give you concrete methods for handling weight control and stress.

Reservations are limited. For more information, call 254-1541/1542/1543.

Thursday

Hail, Hail, Rock-n-Roll (PG). Chuck Berry's 60th birthday party concert is a celebration of the rock pioneer who changed the sound of contemporary music forever. Filmed live at the Fox Theater in St. Louis this salute features performances by Eric Clapton, Robert Gray, Etta James, Julian Lennon, Keith Richards and Linda Ronstadt.

Friday

Soul Man (PG-13). A California prep school student uses tanning pills to win a minority scholarship to Harvard Law School.

Saturday and Sunday

Cinderella (G). At the palace ball, Prince Charming is captivated by the beautiful Cinderella, only to lose her at the stroke of midnight. With Cinderella's glass slipper as a guide, Prince Charming searches the countryside for its owners in this enchanting Disney classic.

Heurtnburn (R). When Meryl Streep discovers that her husband, Jack Nicholson is having an affair, she goes home to her fathers apartment in New York. Distraught about their separation, Jack shows up and ask her to come back. She does — and guess what — it all happens again.

Tuesday and Wednesday

Batteries not Included (PG). A tale of miracles, in which tiny machine-flying saucers with eyes and legs come to earth to help the beleaguered inhabitants of a treatment that's about to be demolished.
