MCCES celebrates 48th anniversary

CPL. JEFF HOWELL
Observation Post

The Marine Corps Communication-Electronics School (MCCES), the Marine Corps' largest formal school, will celebrate its 48th anniversary today.

Beginning as the Pigeon and Flag Handler Platoon in 1932, MCCES was originally activated as Signal School, Signal Battalion on Oct. 5, 1942, at Quantico, Va. The school moved to Camp Lejeune, N.C., in 1943, where it remained throughout World War II, training radio operators, field wiremen and switchboard operators for combat operations in the Pacific. The school offered 15 courses in the communications field.

In August 1946, the Signal School, Signal Battalion relocated to Camp Del Mar, Camp Pendleton Calif. It continued to train personnel, but in vastly reduced numbers.

In December of 1949, the unit was redesignated as the Signal and Tracked Vehicle School Battalion. In 1950 the battalion moved to the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego Calif., remaining there for two decades.

With the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, the school underwent provisional expansion to meet the urgent needs for training communications personnel for combat. The school was again redesignated in Sept., 1950, as Signal School Battalion.

After the Korean Conflict the school expanded its role to include training technicians and repairmen on the maintenance of new and sophisticated electronics equipment being acquired by the Marine Corps. This included the highly complex Marine Tactical Data System and its associated radars.

In 1953, the school was redesignated as the Communication-Electronics School Battalion. In 1971, it was designated its current title, Marine Corps Communication-Electronics School.

During the Vietnam Conflict the school again was required to expand with over 5,000 Marines being trained annually to meet the needs of combat forces in Southeast Asia. Included in the expansion was the establishment of a formal school designed to train officers in both air defense and air support skills.

In 1971 MCCES relocated from MCRD, San Diego to its current home at the Marine Corps Air-Ground Combat Center.

The school has evolved from its meager beginning in 1932 of training pigeon and flag handlers, to training Marines in the operations and maintenance of the most modern and sophisticated communications and electronics equipment in existence. The school has been a leader among service schools in developing and applying new innovative teaching techniques such as instructional television, computer managed instruction, and fixed mastery/variable time learning.

The school's formal awards include the American Campaign Streamer, World War II Victory Streamer, National Defense Service Streamer with a bronze star and the Meritorious Unit Commendation with two bronze stars.

In carrying out its primary mission, MCCES is constantly striving to graduate not only highly skilled operators, repairmen and technicians, but proud, dedicated and highly motivated Marines.

Cheney approves supplemental pay for "Desert Shield" troops

Washington, D.C. - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney today approved special supplemental pay for U.S. troops in the Middle East taking part in "Operation Desert Shield."

The Secretary's approval applies to military personnel taking part in the operation in and around the Arabian peninsula. The action will provide an additional $110 a month for qualified officers and enlisted personnel.

The pay, effective Sept. 17, applies to the territory and territorial waters of Iraq, and the airspace above them, and are designated as areas of imminent danger for special pay. Effective Sept. 16, the pay applies to service members in: the Persian Gulf, the Red Sea, the Gulf of Oman, the Arabian Sea that lies north of 10 degrees north latitude and west of 68 degrees east longitude, the Gulf or Aden, the total land areas of Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Oman, Bahrain, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates and airspace over each location is included. Some of these locations have already been designated as areas for special pay.

The Secretary of Defense has authority to grant the pay, known as imminent danger pay, to members of the armed forces serving in specified high risk areas.

"In recognition of the sacrifices of our military men and women are making, I have directed the payment of this supplemental benefit to the troops on the front lines. This is an appropriate step given the risks they face and the harsh conditions in which they serve," Cheney said.
What educational opportunities are you taking advantage of aboard the Combat Center?

David Donahue, Data Entry Coordinator & Commissary Stocker, took tuition assistance until it ran out, and now I'm taking GI Bill, Chapter 30.

SSgt. Kevin Lewis, Headquarters Bn., "I'm working on my AA degree right now. I'm almost done. I'm using tuition assistance. I also work here (Chapman College) on Saturdays as a tape monitor and they take money off my tuition for that."

SSgt. John Flaherty, Mess Hall 3, "I've only been here a couple of weeks. That's why I was going to look into what they have here (base Education Center). I took 16 credits in law enforcement when I was in Okinawa for a year."

GySgt. Mike Pickel, Co. A MCCES, "I'm in one of the senior courses over at MCCES. Copper Mountain College is tutoring me in math. It's been 25 years since I've had a math course."

Join the Combined Federal Campaign

LtCol. Michael J. Crow, this year's Combined Federal Campaign chairman, speaks at the kick-off luncheon held Sept. 26. BGen. James E. Livingston, the keynote speaker, challenged unit representatives to match pledges from the Morongo Basin community. The general stated, "The Combined Federal Campaign is the most important collateral duty we have this year." In addition he stressed the use of pledge card allotments. The campaign continues through the end of October. Show your support.

Wives' support groups meet

BGen. James E. Livingston urges Marines, sailors and their families to remember safety in all their holiday activities. Motor vehicle related mishaps historically increase over holiday weekends. Make sure you wear your seat belt, don't drink and drive, and avoid fatigue, plan rest stops and adequate time for traveling to and from your destination. Enjoy your weekend, but take care and return alive and well.

Have a safe and happy holiday

Disbursing has the answers to some common pay problems

DISBURSING OFFICE

QUESTION: How can I find out what amount was deposited into my account this payday?

ANSWER: You can get this information one of three ways. Number one should be your first choice.

1. Call or contact your bank/credit union on or after payday.
2. Call the Family Services Center during normal working hours at 368-6344/6345 on or after payday.
3. Call the Marine Corps Finance Office between the hours of 7:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. (local time) Monday through Friday at 1-800-645-2025.

QUESTION: Can you explain why I am no longer receiving COMRATS in my check?

ANSWER: COMRATS are paid to enlisted Marines and sailors when they are not required to eat in a mess hall or in the field. When our Marines and sailors departed the Combat Center their COMRATS should have stopped. COMRATS is a daily entitlement of $5.91 (e.g. for a 30 day month it would be $5.91 x 30 = $177.30). If for some reason your COMRATS have not stopped or stopped late contact your Family Services Center at 368-6344/6345.

Learn to read your LES

Editor's Note: The information contained in this article was taken from the Marine Corps Institute Personal Finance lesson.

Each Marine on active duty is furnished a Leave and Earnings Statement (LES) on a monthly basis. The LES gives detailed information concerning the individual Marine's pay account for the previous month and provides forecasts for receiving paydays of the current month. Using your LES can be of great benefit when preparing a budget, but more importantly, the LES provides a detailed accounting to each Marine of his leave balance, pay entitlements and deductions, and pay received.

The LES, which is actually a printout of pay and personnel data stored in a computer at the Marine Corps Design and Programming Activity (MCCDPA) in Kansas City, Mo., is a three-part form. Each Marine receives the original (white) copy, the servicing disbursing officer receives the duplicate (white) copy, and the commanding officer receives the triplicate (pink) copy.

You must understand that each LES you receive covers your pay account for the previous month. The LES is usually produced and distributed by the 10th of the month. For example, an LES received Oct. 10 would cover the period Sept. 1 through 30; an LES received on Jan. 10 would cover the period Dec. 1 through 31, and so on.

There are two common purposes for utilizing the forecasts given in blocks 9 and 30 of your LES. The first is to verify in advance whether or not certain events affecting your pay account have been properly accepted by the computer, and the second is to determine the amount you are scheduled to be paid during the current month.

For example, assume that you are promoted to the next higher grade Sept. 1 and that you received your LES for the period Aug. 1-31 on Sept. 10. How can you determine in advance of the payday for Sept. 15 whether or not your promotion was correctly recorded and accepted by the computer? Look at blocks 9 and 30 of your August LES. Block 29 will forecast the scheduled payments for the September midmonth payday, and block 30 will forecast the scheduled payment for Oct. 1. If your promotion was properly recorded and accepted by the computer, you should notice a marked increase in the amounts forecasted on your LES for the two paydays.

You can further verify that your promotion was properly effected when you receive your September LES (covering the pay forecast periods of Oct. 15 through Nov. 1) since this LES will reflect the new data resulting from your promotion. In section B, block 6, your new grade will appear. In section C, blocks 18 and 21, you will notice an increased amount of taxable income and FICA wages. In section F, many changes will have occurred. With a few exceptions, nearly all of your entitlements will increase, i.e., basic pay, quarters allowance, sea or foreign duty pay, variable housing allowance, etc. And since you are earning more taxable income as a result of your promotion, you will notice an increase in the amount of your state and federal income tax deductions.

Another example of utilizing blocks 29 and 30 of your LES to verify whether or not a pay action was processed in your account is as follows:

Assume that you have been receiving $225 per payday and that you are transferring to a new duty station next month. After completing a new budget, you have decided that you will need $300 advance pay to be repaid in six monthly installments. You receive the advance pay on Aug. 20 which means that the repayment will commence in September at $50 per month ($300/6 = 50). Based upon this example, what forecasted amount should you expect to see in blocks 29 and 30 of your August LES? Remember, you had been receiving $225 per payday. Take a moment and develop an answer. If you determine that blocks 29 and 30 should have a forecasted amount due of $200 per payday, you are correct. Repayment of the advance pay at $50 per month would be deducted over two paydays, thus your pay would be reduced by $25 per payday.

In addition to other areas of your LES, nearly all pay and certain personnel transactions processed within your account will have an effect on block 29, block 30, or both. Through practice and careful review, you should be able to utilize the information provided in these blocks to your advantage by being able to tell whether or not certain transactions have processed correctly into your account and what you can expect to receive for the next two paydays.

It is wise to carefully review every LES you receive. Even if nothing has occurred within the previous month which would affect your pay, a monthly review will help you to keep current regarding your pay and how to use your LES. Although your disbursing officer and commanding officer share a co-responsibility to review your LES, it is primarily your responsibility to ensure that data contained on your LES is correct. Should you discover an error or have any questions concerning your LES, you should seek assistance at your administrative office. Normally, your disbursing officer does not immediately become involved unless assistance is requested by your commanding officer. When making an inquiry or seeking assistance, you should have the LES in question with you, and a specific inquiry in mind. Inquiries such as, "My pay is messed up," are extremely difficult to respond to. Once you become accustomed to reviewing your LES, problems encountered or detected should be easy to define and resolve.

In case you're wondering what to do with your LES each month after you have reviewed it and resolved any errors, you should file it in a folder with the rest of your LES's. This will provide you with a complete and permanent record of your leave and earnings, and will be of particular assistance to you if you need to refer to your LES's at a later date.
Uniform item costs climb 16%

SSGT. CHUCK DEMAR
Public Affairs Chief

Men and women Marines will find that replacing some uniform items now will cost up to 16 percent more. The price jump is a direct result of a change in the surcharge that the Defense Logistics Agency adds to the price of every clothing item in the military supply system. The surcharge is based on how much the government actually spends to maintain its clothing inventory.

Allowances are based on the actual "seabag issue" and estimates on how long it normally takes for each item to wear out. The price increases will hit the officers’ pockets somewhat harder than enlisted Marines because they do not get replacement allowances which is the stated "CMA" (clothing maintenance allowance) on enlisted members’ LES (Leave and Earning Statement).

Each enlisted Marine gets the CMA in a single payment each year at the end of their anniversary month. The allowance is paid at two levels: a basic rate for Marines with three or fewer years in the Corps and a standard rate for Marines with more than three years of service.

This increase will also affect those of us who buy extra items (e.g. for inspection purposes) or who wear out standard items sooner than expected.

The charts here show the rate of increase of each seabag-issued item for male and female enlisted Marines and the amount of increase in the price from previous FY90 prices:

Charity Walk reminds us 'to walk is priceless'

LCP/Lisa Graciano
Observation Post

By Gen. James E. Livingston, acting commanding general of the Combat Center, will participate in the Stephens 50/25 Mile Charity Walk, which will take place on Oct. 13. The general will participate in the 25-mile portion of the walk.

The walk was one of the subject’s discussion at the Chief of Staff’s meeting in the Commanding General’s Conference Room Sept. 25.

MCYSGt. Robert Bronski (ret.), sponsor/coordinator/chairman of the walk, spoke to the group. Bronski provided some background on the walk as well as information about this year’s event, displaying the trophies that will be awarded.

Dental assistants fly by the rest in El Toro's "Run of the Runways"

LCP/Lisa Graciano
Observation Post

Dental assistants (DN) Ron Malec and DN Mitch Paynter, 23rd Dental Co., placed first and second, respectively, in Marine Corps Air Station El Toro’s "Run of the Runways" Sept. 30.

The dental assistants placed in the 18-24 age group with times of 1:24 and 1:51:48 respectively. The 13.1-mile run was "flat and long," the way Malec explained.

"This is the first half marathon I’ve ever done. I read about it in the ‘Observation Post,’” Malec explained, “and it was kind of a whim,” the 21-year-old Paynter added.

The two said they weren’t racing against each other. “We were running with each other representing the 23rd Dental Co.,” Malec, 19, said.

The two sailors didn’t prepare much for the event. They started training about two to three weeks prior to the race. “To get ready, we never ran more than 7 miles at a time,” Malec, the Pittsburg, Penn., native said.

They normally train on their own. Paynter, a Caldwell, Idaho native, said, "I just ran a couple of times a week." He runs about 5-7 miles each time.

"I just ran a Marine Corps PFT," Malec said, "And I ran the three miles in 17:15."

Malec and Paynter claim they weren’t really pumped up for the event. They said that at the last minute, they were trying to find ways to get out of it.

Apparently, their feelings changed after they completed the race. Both dental assistants said they would like to race again.

"I’ll like to run a marathon eventually," Malec said. "That’s my goal," the blond-haired, blue-eyed Paynter agreed.
