Station C.O. tells NQLB future of K-Bay

By Sgt. Paul Schneider
Staff Writer

The station commanding officer, Col. R.R. Crawford, answered many questions about the future of the air station at the Neighborhood Quality of Life Board meeting July 29.

He spoke about the current and planned projects at Kaneohe Bay and the effect of the base realignment on the air station.

For the past 18 months the base has been fighting for its existence, Col. Crawford explained. Because of Base Closure and Realignment Committee's recommendations, the base is going to have significant growth through 1996.

If the current base closure and realignment recommendations are allowed to become law, Naval Air Station Barbers Point will close and Kaneohe Bay will receive many of Barbers Point's assets. Although there will be some Marine assets leaving the base, Kaneohe will grow significantly.

"The base is going to have significant growth — and it all has to take place from now up through '96. In '97 we are planning on having the Navy, and a good possibility the Coast Guard here," Col. Crawford explained. "Most of the growth will take place in the MAG-24 area and also on the other side of the runway as you are heading to Hale Koa and Pyramid Rock Beach."

Although it is unknown at this time exactly how many military and civilian personnel will be working on the base in 1997, the station is planning for an increase of about 2,000 personnel — which doesn't include families. There are about 10,000 military and civilian personnel working on base now.

The station commanding officer gave the audience an idea of how big the station is now. He said there are about 23,000 people that use the base at any given time during the day.

In order to meet the needs of a larger air station community and the new mission requirements, a large amount of construction will take place during the next few years.

"We are moving a multi-billion dollar base from Barbers Point," Col. Crawford explained. "The bottom line is it will cost $215 million with the Coast Guard. In addition there are another $100 million worth of initiatives on top of that; so you are talking about $315 million of growth."

Although there is still a lot of planning to do — right now the air station staff is in the detailed planning phase — there are some projects which were already planned and are going to be built.

New housing will be built around the base of Kansas Tower where Moffett Road currently is. There will be 300 units built there, Col. Crawford explained, at a cost of $44 million. Construction should begin on the three-story units in early 1994.

Other projects which were already planned include 215,000 square feet of warehouses here to replace the $30 million worth of warehouse space the station currently has in Pearl City. Building of the warehouses shouldn't cost the station any money. A $3 million hazardous waste site will also be built.

A six-story Bachelor Officer's Quarters will be built across from the Officer's Club. A new six-story Bachelor Enlisted Quarter will also be built near the track.

Morale, Welfare and Recreation activities will receive a lot of attention in the next few years also.

The colonel explained that a new exchange, which will be about the size of the new commissary, and a new child care center will be built in fiscal year 1995. Two ball fields will also be built next to the gym. In addition, the bowling alley will be increased from 24 to 36 lanes.

In order to accommodate the Navy and Coast Guard squadrons, there will be new hangars built and new facilities will be needed to maintain the aircraft.

While the colonel talked about other issues involving the transferring of units here and the possibility of some units leaving, he took some time at the end of his presentation to comment on the current concerns he has.

"The Cochran area we are repainting right now and we are also going to put some new windows in," Col. Crawford explained. "The buildings are in bad shape and in '97 all of that will be torn down to put in mid-rises, so we were very reluctant to put money into those houses."

"On 1 October we are going to take a very significant amount of money and put it into BEQ's," Col. Crawford said. "I think that's where our biggest shortfall is so you will see a lot of money going into there and not much money going into other areas."

MWSS-174 tests combat readiness

By Sgt. Paul Schneider
Staff Writer

The name for Marine Wing Support Squadron-174's field exercise — Field Training Exercise "Hydra" — ended up being very appropriate. MWSS-174 Marines and sailors had to overcome many obstacles from July 24-31 while deployed to the Dillingham Training Area.

For the members of MWSS-174, the challenge began with the building of an expeditionary airfield. Once the airfield was operational and supporting helicopter operations for Marine Aircraft Group-24's night vision goggle week, the Marines continued to improve the airfield and practice rear area security.

"We came in tactical and were up and operational in two days," explained LtCol. Walter Driver, commanding officer, MWSS-174.

The airfield had the same type of services like Crash, Fire, Rescue, See '174, A-6

MWSS-174 Fuels Branch Marines and HMH-463 practice rapid refueling of the airfield's fuel bladders. Instead of the CH-53D flying in external fuel bladders for the airfield, the HMH-463 Marines are replenishing the airfield's fuel supply by pumping the fuel out of their tanks.

Battery B, '265 arrive in Okinawa

Okinawa Marine

CAMP BUTLER, Okinawa, Japan — Battery B, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines, arrived recently from 1st MEB, after an 18-month absence from Okinawa. While away, the battery conducted most of its training in the flat, barren environment of the Pohakuloa Training Area, Hawaii.

Battery Commander Capt. George Whitbeck said Okinawa's forested, mountainous terrain will give Battery B a chance to do "infantry-like" training such as occupations, local security and reactionary drills.

Battery B was the first battery in 1/12 to fire copperhead laser-guided projectiles and dual-purpose ICM ammunition at PTA. The battery was also the first to do the seldom practiced direct fire technique called "killer junior." The battery is working up for a joint exercise off island.

The battery is equipped with M198 155mm and M101A1 105mm howitzers. Battery B replaced Battery A, 1st Battalion, 12th Marines.

Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-265 recently arrived at MCAS Futenma, replacing HMM-364 under the Unit Deployment Program.

The squadron, nicknamed the "Dragons," is from the 1st Marine Expeditionary Brigade, stationed at MCAS Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii.

While stationed here, they will provide assault transportation of combat troops, supplies, and equipment during amphibious operations and subsequent operations ashore.

The main body arrived July 12 and the squadron has already deployed in support of MAG-36's Dragon Slayer exercise in Korea.

While training with other units on Okinawa, the "Dragons," hope to meet some of their own training objectives.

"Our goal is to upgrade our combat efficiency in training while in tactical environments," said Maj. Richard Miller, squadron executive officer.

Marine 2nd Lt. first woman to flight school

SSgt. Keith W. Stoeckle
HMHC

In as few as 14 months, 2ndLt. Sarah M. Deal may make history as the first female aviator to wear a Marine uniform. The 23-year-old from Perrysburg, Ohio, received approval July 23 to begin the process that could earn her aviator's wings. For Deal, the news is a dream come true.

"I'm excited," Deal said. "It's been my dream to fly, and I'm glad it will come true in the Marine Corps."

Deal explained that she joined the Corps knowing she wouldn't be allowed to fly due to existing restrictions. But, she said the pride of being a Marine, which she now shares with her father who was a military policeman during the 1950's, meant more. Deal, however, added that her love of flying, which developed while earning a private pilot's license, may have eventually moved her to attempt a transfer to the Navy. Currently, Deal is at Memphis Naval Air Station, Millington, Tenn., awaiting orders to report to flight school. The day she learned her request for flight training was approved was the day she graduated from air traffic control school. Initially, Deal had orders to Okinawa, where she would have received an additional five months of hands-on training in air traffic control before she earned a rating in that occupational field.

But, when the policy on women's roles in the Marine Corps was expanded, Deal seized the opportunity and forwarded an application through her chain of command for the chance to fly Marine aircraft. As far as being "the first" is concerned, Deal said that is a small issue compared with being allowed the chance to fly Marine aircraft.

"Air traffic control is a great MOS," Deal said. "I wouldn't have minded at all going to Okinawa first. I would have liked to see Japan and the world, and I know I would have had a blast. Then I would have applied again."

Up to this point, Deal, who graduated Ohio's Kent State University with a bachelor's degree in aerospace flight technology, has been through several military schools. She was commissioned through the Platoon Leaders Course after 10 weeks of training at Officers Candidate School, Quantico, Va., in the summer of 1991. She then attended The Basic School at Quantico in August 1992, and began Air Traffic Control School in February.

Now, Deal is possibly facing another two years of schools and training before she can earn her wings.

Her first step will be three to six weeks of aviation indoctrination training at Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., where students learn water survival and flight physiology and must qualify in swimming, the altitude chamber, dunker training (simulating a crash in water) and ejection training.

Afterwards, students either go to NAS Whiting Field, in Milton, Fla., or NAS Corpus Christi, Texas, for 20 weeks to fly T-34C trainers and learn radio procedure and navigation. At this point, the Navy determines the pipeline selection for each student; whether they will fly jets, C-130 cargo planes, or helicopters.

The kind of aircraft students are selected to learn to fly determines how long it will take to earn aviator's wings (bad weather can also extend training). For Deal it can be up to two years if she is selected to fly jets, or 14 to 18 months to fly helicopters.

Though just being able to fly will fulfill her dream, Deal said she is interested in the fast movers — aircraft like the F/A-18 Hornet.

MARFORPAC celebrates 1st Anniversary

It is with great pride and appreciation that I extend a birthday salute to the Marines and sailors of Marine Forces Pacific. On July 31, as we mark the command's first anniversary, every Marine and sailor in our ranks can be proud of his or her part in contributing to our mission. The past year has been one of tremendous challenge and accomplishment. Your steadfast performance during operations, exercises, relief efforts, and contingency deployments spanning the Pacific and Indian Ocean Theaters has been superb. You can stand tall knowing that you have been the sinew and muscle of America's forces in readiness. Let us reaffirm our commitment to excellence and turn to the future with the same determination. I have no doubts that you have the mettle to meet the demands ahead. Stay on the attack!

LtGen. H.C. Stackpole III
Commander, Marine Forces Pacific

Marines join NATO's Operation Deny Flight enforcing no-fly zone

MCNEWS

Eight Marine F/A-18D Hornets of VMFA(AW)-533 out of MCAS Beaufort, S.C., arrived at Aviano Air Base, Italy, on July 22 to participate in an operation that is an extension of Deny Flight, the enforcement of the no-fly zone over Bosnia-Herzegovina launched by NATO officials in conjunction with the United Nations April 12.

Secretary of Defense Les Aspin approved an order July 14 directing U.S. aircraft to deploy and join NATO's planned air support to the United Nations protection force in Bosnia. The deployment order authorizes a phased deployment of 30 ground-attack-capable aircraft and 10 support aircraft, and involves about 1,500 personnel. They will assist other NATO forces in implementing U.N. security council resolution 836. France, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom have also announced their participation in this mission.

The Marine planes joined 12 U.S. Air Force A-10 and OA-10 aircraft, deployed July 13 from Spangdahlem Air Base in Germany, six U.S. Navy A-6s and Marine F/A-18s of VMFA-312 operating from the USS Theodore Roosevelt and four U.S. Air Force C-130 aircraft from Hurlburt Field, Fla. In addition, five U.S. Air Force KC-135 aerial refueling aircraft from Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash., and five U.S. Air Force EC-130 airborne command, control and communication support aircraft from Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., deployed to support this mission.

The crews of '533 spent their first few days flying familiarization missions in preparation for the air support of U.N. ground forces that are assigned to guard havens for Muslim civilians in Bosnia and Herzegovina. All the Marines are being housed in a tent city near the air base flight line.

The F/A-18 was developed to serve as both a fighter and an attack aircraft and is capable of both air-to-air and air-to-ground combat. The "D" model crew consists of a pilot and a weapons officer. Hornets can carry as much as 17,000 pounds of armament, including sidewinder and sparrow missiles, and HARMs (high-speed anti-radar missiles).

Today's Chiropractor. A Specialist At Getting Backs Back To Work.

After an injury on the job, the best worker's compensation is getting back to work.

The health care field now recognizes the Doctor of Chiropractic as the expert at diagnosing and treating muscular, spinal, and skeletal injuries. Your Chiropractor's approach is consistent with the latest findings in health care. It's natural, without drugs or surgery and promotes the body's own self-repairing powers.

The approach is also faster. Studies show that chiropractic treatment gets workers back on the job two or three times faster than medical regimens.

Insurance companies are convinced. Most group health plans cover chiropractic care. As do worker's compensation programs in all 50 states.

So if you have a job where injury is a risk, keep today's Doctor of Chiropractic in mind. Because the fastest way to get back on the job is to muscle your way in.

NATO planning for air strikes

□ The United States diplomats have convinced NATO members to plan for air strikes in Bosnia-Herzegovina if the Serbs fail to stop their attacks on Sarajevo, as well as other Bosnian cities, and if they didn't stop blocking aid convoys.

Although the statement by NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner did not actually order the air strikes, it was the strongest statement made by the alliance after more than two years of civil war in the former Yugoslavia.

The action was taken after the Serbs seized key terrain overlooking Sarajevo. As a result the city may fall into Serb hands.

Although an agreement has been reached to plan for air strikes, Britain and France have continued their opposition to it for fear their troops on the ground in Bosnia would face reprisals for the attacks.

If attacks are ordered, the United States, Dutch, British and French have aircraft already staged in Italy to carry out the attacks.

3rd Anniversary of Iraqi invasion

□ The 3rd Anniversary of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait passed with what has become the typical dogma from the Iraqi government.

Iraqi newspapers published stories declaring Kuwait a part of Iraq and demanded the end of the Sabah family reign over the emirate.

While Iraq was showing its usual defiance, the United States reaffirmed its commitment to protect Kuwait and maintain stability in the region.

Kuwait marked the anniversary by criticizing Iraq for not following the cease-fire terms which ended the war. There has been considerable tension along the border between Iraq and Kuwait since the end of the war.

The United States continues to maintain a significant presence in the region.

Iraq has repeatedly called for a lifting of the United Nations sanctions and an end to the air patrols of the northern and southern no-fly zones which have been in place since the war.

POW-MIA talks held in Vietnam

□ Representatives of the governments of the United States and Vietnam held meetings in Hanoi July 28-29.

The meetings were aimed at improving coordination between the two nations and accelerating the pace and results of ongoing joint efforts to account for Americans still unaccounted for as a result of the Vietnam War. Army MajGen. Thomas H.

Needham, commander of the Camp H.M. Smith-based Joint Task Force Full Accounting, lead the U.S. delegation.

Meanwhile, the JTF-FA completed a 27-day joint field activity recently with the Vietnam government. During the mission, the team members investigated a total of 128 cases, leading to 269 witness interviews. Information these local Vietnamese citizens provided may be essential in determining the fate of missing servicemen.

Evacuations of five sites were conducted, resulting in the recovery of numerous pieces of aircraft wreckage and some human remains.

The mission of JTF-FA is to provide the fullest possible accounting for the 2,252 individuals still listed as missing or otherwise unaccounted for.

U.N. begins Cambodia pull out

□ The United Nations have begun a scheduled withdrawal of its 20,000-member peacekeeping force from Cambodia after a 17-month stay in the country.

The withdrawal is scheduled to be completed by Nov. 15.

A U.N. peacekeeping force was deployed to Cambodia to monitor a cease-fire by Cambodia's four main factions and to disarm the troops. The U.N. mission was scheduled to end after holding democratic elections in May.

During the U.N. presence the Khmer Rouge refused to obey cease-fire agreements and did not disarm.

Israel ends Lebanon attacks

□ Israel ended its attack into southern Lebanon after a week of air and artillery strikes against Iranian-backed guerrillas. Israel agreed to the cease-fire after the Hezbollah guerrillas said they would stop firing rockets at northern Israel.

The United Nations estimated at least 250,000 people were displaced from their homes because of the attacks and about 130 people were killed.

Flooding continues in Midwest

□ Flooding continues to plague the midwest as the Mississippi River and its tributaries continue to rise. The focus of the battle against the flood waters is now on St. Louis where the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers meet.

If the St. Louis flood walls fail, a large area of the city could be flooded.

The flood has caused at least $10 billion in damage and has caused 46 deaths — unfortunately there is still no end in sight.

CREDO has come to Hawaii via 1st MEB

By Cpl. Barry Baker
Staff Writer

The Chaplains Religious Enrichment Development Operation (CREDO) has landed in Hawaii. Director of CREDO San Diego, Chaplain Gene Theriot, Cmdr., USN, CHC, has been given the task to promote this 22-year-old program to the Marines and sailors stationed in Hawaii, sponsored by the chaplains of the 1st MEB.

- What is CREDO?
- For well people who wish to grow.
  - Focuses on spirituality.
  - Supports command religious programs.
  - Offers new avenues into faith for the unaffiliated and those who have found no home in traditional religious experience while providing enrichment for those who are already growing in religious communities.

"Primarily, participants are encouraged to identify where they are in life and where they want to be in life," Theriot said, "and what they have to do to get from where they are to where they want to be."

Theriot said that in most people's lives, this procedure involves, "resolving unresolved issues from their past. These may include, but are not limited to issues of self esteem, relationships, personal pain and spirituality."

"In more than 20 years, the program has proven to be one of the most successful people programs available to sea service personnel and their families."

How do Marines and sailors accomplish this?

There will be two 72-hour personal growth retreats in the near future. The first will be held Aug. 19-22, and the second will be held Sept. 10-13. CREDO is free of charge. The only requirement is the willingness to take an honest look at yourself for 72 hours.

Theriot assured these are not "traditional religious retreats. It's a personal/spiritual growth retreat."

"Through the use of music, group interaction and facilitator presentations, participants are able to identify the areas of their lives they would most like to change. For almost 23 years, CREDO has been helping people to get good at being themselves," Theriot said.

The future of CREDO lies in the hands of Marines and sailors stationed in Hawaii. A Process Action Team and area chaplains who are researching ways to have a continuing presence of CREDO in Hawaii. "It is hoped that within a year, there is a regular program of CREDO retreats in place here," Theriot said.

Chaplain Theriot has proven the program works in San Diego. He hopes that Marines and sailors here realize this is an excellent opportunity take a good look at yourselves. And, Theriot also stressed the fact that, "this is a personal/spiritual growth retreat, not just a retreat for husbands/wives, boyfriend/girlfriend or the people who know one another."

Chaplain FitzGerald, the Brigade Chaplain said, "If you are a Marine or sailor interested in no-cost TAD orders to attend one of the two upcoming CREDO weekends, contact any 1st MEB or MCAS Chaplain. Or, call the Brigade Chaplain's office at 257-1026.

Beach services in God's cathedral

The First Marine Expeditionary Brigade Command Religious Program has been busy adding new events to its agenda.

Marines and sailors come together for prayer, hymns, scripture and sermon in "God's cathedral." Jewish Marines and sailors have a chance to visit with a Rabbi; and offering a CREDO weekend retreat.

Every second Sunday, the MEB Chaplains offer a Sunday Beach Service in God's cathedral at Hale Ho'a Beach Area #2 beginning at 10 a.m. Enjoy an Ecumenical Service that includes Catholic Mass and Protestant Holy Communion.

Bring a lawn chair. The dress code is casual. "We offer Protestants and Catholics to come together for prayer, hymns, scripture and sermon," said Brigade Chaplain Capt. John L. FitzGerald, Ph.D., CHC, USN.

"From time to time, we have local vocalists and musicians and guests," FitzGerald said. "Following these services, coffee, juice and doughnuts," Fitzgerald said.

MALS-24 helps children

By Cpl. Aaron Martin
Staff Writer

Marines from Marine Aviation and Logistics Squadron-24 embarked on a goodwill mission to help the Hawaii Children's Cancer Foundation conduct a fundraiser at Kapalama Elementary school Saturday.

The fundraising event was a BBQ chicken sale to raise money for the HCCF. The Marines' mission was helping set up for the event. More than 27 Marines volunteered their morning to decorating the area of the sale, grilling the chicken, directing traffic and spending time with children who have cancer and their families.

Annette Young-Ogata, one of the founders of the HCCF, contacted members of the squadron and asked for help. Not only did the Marines respond with physical help, they also gave a donation to the HCCF.

"The Marines have been so helpful for this fundraiser and their financial support means a lot to us all," Geri Ihara, one of the founders. "The finances we get today is seed money so that the group will grow."

The HCCF is a non-profit organization which serves to assist, support and advocate the needs of patients, families and long-term survivors of childhood cancer.

"The organization strives to bridge the gap and provide encouragement and support for the families," Ihara said.

The Marines of MALS-24 provided both the physical and psychological help that committee members needed to make the fundraiser a success.

For many families the financial burden cancer patients incur is insurmountable and sometimes just knowing someone outside the situation cares is helpful.

Marines of MALS-24 have responded in many events for the community. Last year they sponsored a 3-on-3 basketball tournament for victims of Hurricane Iniki. They have also assisted in the Special Olympics. The squadron is also active in the Community Drug Awareness Programs and their adopt-a-school is Kailua Elementary in Kailua.

"We feel it is very important to be in touch with our community," said Lt. Col. Joe Buranosky. "We were contacted and asked for help and we responded with the help they needed."

Marines from STA Platoon, 3/3, battle the students at Waimanalo Elementary School in tug-o-war — the students won.

3/3 Marines get physical with kids

By Sgt. Paul Schneider
Staff Writer

Marines and sailors from the 3d Battalion, 3d Marines, tried to shape up some local children at Waimanalo Elementary School — and the kids loved it.

Every week about 15 Marines from 3/3 would go to the school and put the kids through a tough regimen of physical activity, games and a lot of fun, for the school's summer program.

"We were offered a variety of services from the Marines, but opted for physical fitness training," explained Charles Naumu, the summer school principal. "The kids have liked it very much. Each morning that the Marines were scheduled, a big cheer went up in the cafeteria."

Working with several classes of young, energetic students during the day was enough to wear down a Marine.

"We went out to play with the kids and wore ourselves out," explained LCpl. Brian Thielmann, a scout with the STA

Platoon. "I like being around children because we are never exposed to them. I think it is important for Marines to interact with locals."

The final summer fitness session between the Marines and the school took place July 26 when members of Surveillance, Target, Acquisition Platoon visited.

Navy Lt. Stephen Gammon, the 3/3 battalion chaplain and SSgt. Heriberto Gomez, a 3/3 platoon sergeant, coordinated the weekly activities between the school and Marines.

The partnership between the Marines and students was very important since the school is located very close to Bellows Air Force Station, which the 3/3 Marines hump to and train at a lot.

"This helps the students be familiar with the military so that when they see or hear the Marines and equipment go by it gives them a physical connection," Naumu said. "We appreciate the association we have with the Marines of 3/3 and their help."

and weather, that is found at Kaneohe Bay.

The squadron set up two 96-by-96 aluminum pads for helicopters to land on and ran refueling pits for the helicopters. It was the first time since the Persian Gulf war that the pad had been used.

In addition, a five-man detachment from Marine Air Tactical Control Squadron-18 set up a TRC-195 portable air traffic control facility and provided air traffic control for the expeditionary airfield.

"The tower can go on the back of a HMMWV and can be set up in about 15 minutes with all the radios you would need," explained Sgt. Russell Sinclair, MATCS-18. "We don't use [the tower] too often, but people want to use it more."

While the airfield was being made operational, other MWSS Marines were setting up a chow hall, purifying water from the ocean, transporting equipment and supplies, and providing rear area security.

The MAG-24 helicopter squadrons used the airfield extensively once it was operational. Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron-463, Marine Medium Helicopter Squadrons 165 and 364 all used the airfield while it was in operation.

"For some this was the first time they had operated in an expeditionary environment — especially our station people," Driver said.

With the exception of a small rear party, Driver said the entire squadron deployed for the exercise — to include many of their "fapped" personnel working for station. In addition, a dental detachment from Brigade Service Support Group-1 deployed with the squadron.

In garrison, everyone in the squadron is divided up working in their section or working for the air station, but while in the field, MWSS was able to put everything together.

"This really pulled the unit together — we built an air station in a tactical environment," Driver said.

Although building the air station was the primary challenge, like the mythical hydra, once that challenge was complete, several more obstacles would arise — but the Marines seemed to thrive on the challenge.

"This was outstanding training because we don't get to do it much and we have a lot of new joins from school," explained Cpl. James Sisk, a combat engineer with MWSS-174. "This got them familiar with the equipment and what we have to do in combat."

Sgt. Paul Schneider

MWSS-174 personnel work to put up a clam shell hangar at the Dillingham Training Area.

Between building and operating the airfield and battling an aggressor force which harassed the airfield, the Marines and sailors got little sleep.

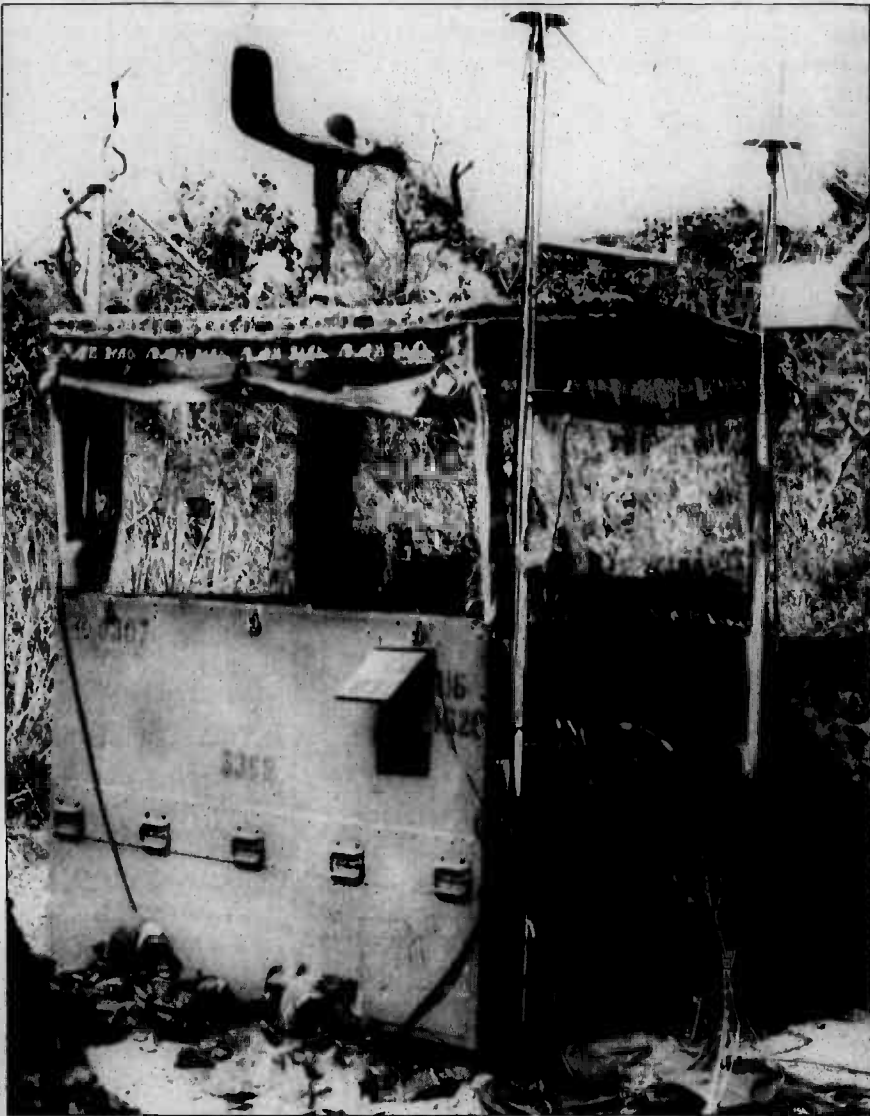

"We did a lot of back breaking work and then stood eight hours in the hole. We got only about three or four hours of sleep," Sisk said.

After the airfield was operational, one of the major projects the engineers were involved in was the construction of a clam shell hangar. The hangar had not been put up since the Persian Gulf war.

The Marines also simulated bomb damage on the airfield and practiced rapid runway repair to get the airfield operational again.

"Most Marines really enjoyed this because it gave them a chance to do things we only talk about in the rear," Driver added.

By the end of the exercise, virtually every aspect of the squadron's mission was tested. It gave the Marines and sailors of MWSS-174 confidence that they could operate an expeditionary airfield and also showed the air wing units they would support what they are capable of doing.

Sgt. Paul Schneider

Sgt. Manuel Moralez II, SOMS Air Traffic Control, uses the TRC-195 Air Traffic Control facility to control traffic at MWSS-174's expeditionary airfield at the Dillingham Training Area.

Taking the mystery out of the federal job hunt

By Barbara Barendse
Human Resources Office

How many times have you seen a vacancy announcement for a civil service position and wondered how you could get one of those jobs?

The information in this article applies only to the Federal civil service. Positions in the Moral, Welfare, and Recreation (MWR) system are called Nonappropriated Fund (NAF) positions, and do not follow the rules described below. For information about MWR positions, call 254-4179.

When an activity, like MCAS Kaneohe Bay, or a federal agency, like the Internal Revenue Service, needs to fill a position they have many different options. They can announce the position through the merit promotion system, hire a non-competitive candidate, or hire someone who has never worked for the federal government.

The merit promotion system provides a promotional opportunity for employees currently in civil service. Non-competitive candidates can be former civil service employees who have

"status," which means they have held a federal position. The "Area of Consideration" on a vacancy announcement will indicate if you can apply for that particular position. Some people think that active duty military members meet the definition of "federal employee," but they do not.

If you have never held a permanent position in the federal government and, therefore, do not have civil service status, there are many different ways to apply — it all depends on the position. Many positions require a test while others simply require the completion of a Federal Application, SF-171, with supplemental forms. Most clerical positions require a test. The clerical exam is administered by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) twice a month (usually the first and third Monday of each month) and covers positions at the GS-2 through GS-4 grade levels.

The Administrative Careers with America (ACWA) exam covers six occupational groups: Health, safety and environmental, writing and public information, business, finance and management, personnel, administration and computers, benefits review, tax and legal, and law enforcement and investigation. The entry level is usually GS-5 or GS-7 and the positions usually have promotion potential to the GS-9 or GS-11 levels.

In Hawaii, the ACWA is given approximately twice a year and is based on supply and demand. In other states the exam is given and the register, or list of candidates, are used more frequently than in Hawaii.

Separated military members within (before or after) 120 days of date of separation can reopen registers. This means that military members can take a test or apply for a position which is currently closed to the general public. Some of the registers that may be reopened include: Deputy U.S. Marshal, GS-5/7; Border Patrol Agency, GS-5/7; Air Traffic Controller, GS-7; Trades Helper, WG-5 (Oahu only); and Treasury Enforcement Agency, GS-5/7.

After you have taken a test or if a test is not required, you will receive a "Notice of Results" and your name and numerical score will be added to the appropriate register. An additional five or 10 points may be added to the score of veterans who meet the criteria for veterans preference.

When an activity or agency decides to hire from outside their current workforce they will request a register from OPM. The rating you receive from OPM can be transferred to other states if that state maintains the same register.

A Federal Job Opportunity Listing (FJOL) for Hawaii, Guam, and Pacific overseas areas is also published by OPM on a bi-weekly basis. They also publish a listing of nation-wide/world-wide positions. These listings are available for your review at the Human Resources Office at MCAS Kaneohe Bay or any of the local Human Resources Offices. You can call OPM's 24-hour job information recording at 541-2791.

Not all positions being recruited for are vacant. OPM often uses the FJOL, clerical and ACWA exams to build an inventory of candidates for future vacancies.

An activity or agency may have authority, granted by OPM, to act on OPM's behalf to recruit, accept applications, and hire. Usually only a federal application and a few other forms are required — there is no test. Activities and agencies can also hire temporary employees without going through OPM. You should inquire at each activity of federal agency to determine what positions you can apply for.

For the past several years the Department of Defense (DoD) has had a hiring freeze. Some individual activities have more severe freezes. Depending on the position and the mission or need of the activity, some waivers have been obtained which allow an activity to fill a position with an applicant who is not a current DoD employee. Unfortunately, this hiring freeze makes it more difficult to obtain a civil service position at an activity, but it is not impossible. The vacancy announcement will indicate if you are eligible to apply. Retiring military members cannot be hired by a DoD activity within 180 days from date of retirement unless a waiver is obtained.

At MCAS Kaneohe Bay, most positions are filled with current DoD employees using the merit promotion announcement. However, the commissary does hire many people with no civil service status, primarily sales store checkers and store workers, but also meat cutters and clerical/accounting personnel. Although most positions at the commissary are filled on a temporary or part-time basis, there may be opportunities for conversion to permanent or full-time positions. The commissary provides an excellent way to get into the federal civil service system. These positions are announced on a separate vacancy announcement from the merit promotion opportunities.

No matter if a test is required or not, you will have to complete a federal application, SF-171. This is a very important document and it is time well spent to produce a good application. The SF-171 is used to determine if you are basically qualified for the position you are applying for and what your score or rating would be; it is the first impression you will make to a prospective employer.

There are many books, handouts, and courses that can assist you in completing an SF-171. The Family Service Center regularly offers classes on completing the federal application.

For additional information, please contact the Human Resources Office at 257-3556 or 257-3524.

BayFest '93 brings out record attendance

By Cpl. Aaron Martin
Sports Editor

Bayfest '93 weekend is over and some very tired but happy members of the Morale, Welfare and Recreation can rest for a short time before preparing for next year's festival.

A record 31,000 plus people attended the weekend festivities which offered non-stop entertainment for all ages. This year's event surpassed previous Bayfest attendance records and provided approximately 64 booths for services offered by the many sponsors of this year's events.

The events kicked off on Friday evening as the Pacific Fleet Band performed prior to the ribbon cutting ceremony. During the opening ceremony, Col. R.R. Crawford, station commanding officer, and BGen. R.F. Vercauteren, commanding general of 1st Marine Expeditionary Brigade had the honors of cutting the ribbon and opening the gates to a weekend of fun-filled entertainment.

One of the first concerts was performed by Touch of Gold who sang some of the Motown oldies and also some rhythm and blues along with well choreographed dance routines.

The fireworks show provided a colorful display which lit up the Bay area and provided the huge crowd with one of the finest shows on the island this year.

Boxing fans were able to observe 13 boxing matches sponsored by AT&T. Some of the matches were exhibition while others were for score. The bleachers were packed for some exciting and entertaining rounds of boxing. One of the highlights was when professional model Patricia Ford served as a ring girl between rounds. All of the fighters were card-holding boxers with the Hawaii State Boxing Commission and included Marines and Army personnel faced off in the battle of the Armed Services.

The first night's activities were closed out with a rejuvenating blast from the past as Three Dog Night, sponsored by Miller Genuine Draft, performed their old time rock-and-roll songs to a standing-room-only crowd. Their rousing performances kept the crowd going throughout the night.

Saturday morning had the youngsters of the island strutting their stuff around the stage in the Oceanic Cable/KQMQ Diaper Derby competition. The young ones competed in four different events. The chance to strut by themselves was fun for some, but others were a little shy.

Competition for the best original diapers ranged from a sumo baby to a Marine baby complete with bottle, guns, rattles and a few stam.

The parent-child look-a-like contest brought the proud mamas and papas on stage with matching outfits to show where the kids got their beauty from. The final diaper derby event had the children crawling the length of the stage to the waiting arms of parents who encouraged their child on with toys and anything else which would capture the attention of the small tyke.

Water activities went on throughout the day with AT&T Coconut Island boat rides, KIKI Hot 1-94 Outrigger Canoe races, Go Bananas Kayak rides and races and a McDonald's Keiki Boat Building Regatta.

The carnival area had rides from E.K. Fernandez Carnivals which provided non-stop thrills for the young and old. Cars were on display from Honda Windward and Saturn of Honolulu for those wanting to see the newest editions.

McDonald's provided entertainment from Ronald and some of the other McDonald's folks which kept the young ones laughing.

Castle Medical Center sponsored an aerobics demonstration for those who want to maintain a nice firm figure and keep the cardiovascular system in top form.

The Susan Page Modeling Agency put on a fashion show which featured items available at the Marine Corps Exchange. The show displayed some of the newest and latest fashions and swim wear available.

One of the real crowd pleasers was the Domino's '98 Rock Bayfest BodySearch Swimsuit Competition. The competition, which had 10 males and 15 females, had the crowd of males and females hooping and hollering for their favorite. The front of the stage was lined with photographers who hoped to capture their dream girl or guy on film.

Some of the evenings entertainment included Warren Johnson and the Gator Creek Band performing country and western music while Jeff Burton and the Corvettes followed with some popular hits of the 50s and 60s. Once again Three Dog Night closed out the evening with their greatest hits, sponsored by Bank of Hawaii.

Sunday, the final day of Bayfest, was Family Day, which began with adults and keikis alike competing in the Domino's Pizz-Eating contest. The sight of the people stuffing their faces literally provided for interesting entertainment for the crowd.

The Baskin Robbins Ice Cream eating contest created a dilemma for some. The ice cream was suspended in the air by a string and participants were not permitted to use their hands when eating the ice cream. The other problem is they could not allow any ice cream to drop to the table.

Only those who were able to maneuver in the proper manner were able to accomplish the cold and difficult task.

For those who collect POGs, the three days of BayFest were like being in heaven. Dealers were readily available for those who were wanting to expand their collection. KIKI 1-94 sponsored the SlamFest '93 Milk Cap Tournament which brought POG lovers out to win and add to their collection.

Water sports on Sunday included an exciting water ski demonstration by the Hickam Water Ski club. Making passes in line and skiers criss-crossing added excitement to the show.

The evening concerts brought the sounds of Hawaii as Teresa Bright and Friends accompanied by Chinky Mahoe and Halau Hula O Kawai'i'ula for a true feel of the Aloha spirit. The legendary sounds of the Makaha Sons of Ni'ihau were heard throughout the Bay and further demonstrated the talents of this popular local group.

The final show had the Ka'au Crater Boys performing their contemporary Hawaiian and Jawaiian mix of music to close the highly successful weekend. The Ohana Night music was sponsored by KINE radio.

The weekend was coordinated through the Morale, Welfare and Recreation Department here and received sponsorship from Bank of Hawaii and numerous radio stations on the island. Castle Medical Center represented an exciting and informative Health and Fitness Fair as well. Volunteers from the station and brigade assisted throughout the weekend with clean-up and setting up of displays.

Marines were also given the opportunity to show their tools of the trade by displaying their weapons, aircraft and vehicles which drew a lot of interest from Bayfest attendees.

"Bayfest '93 was the most successful weekend in history for a number of reasons," said Sandra Zabriske, marketing director for MWR. "The beautiful weather, supportive sponsors and the military cooperation made it happen. We look forward to a bigger and better Bayfest in 1994."

The funds raised during the weekend will go toward the

From the cheap seats: A sports commentary

By Cpl. Aaron Martin
Sports Editor

Was Reggie Lewis' death preventable?

The sports world has been rocked with tragedy this year with accidents and mysterious deaths. The Cleveland Indians lost two players, Steve Olin and Tim Crews, to a boating accident. Car crashes claimed the lives of Drazen Petrovic of the New Jersey Nets and Chris Street of the University of Iowa. A plane crash claimed the life of the reigning NASCAR champion Alan Kulwicki and a helicopter crash took NASCAR driver Davey Allison just three weeks ago. The most recent death occurred this past week when Boston Celtic star Reggie Lewis died during basketball practice.

The death of these athletes is untimely and tragic but everyone at some point in time must face death. I observed that each of these athletes died doing something other than their profession except one, Reggie Lewis the captain and leading scorer of the Boston Celtics.

Lewis, while shooting baskets at the Celtics practice facility, collapsed July 27 and stopped breathing. When paramedics arrived they found him to be in "complete cardiac arrest." He had no pulse and was revived with CPR but died two and a half hours later at Waltham-Weston Hospital.

I am having a hard time understanding Lewis' death. Who is to blame for the 27-year-old's death - Lewis, the Celtics, the doctors, or was it just Lewis' time to go?

The visible medical problem for Lewis began on April 29. The Celtics were playing the Charlotte Hornets in the first game of the opening-round playoff series when he collapsed midway through the first period. He was experiencing some dizziness. He attempted to return to the game two different times but was unable to play more than a few minutes each time.

A team of cardiologists examined Lewis on May 2 and concluded that Lewis suffered from a heart disease called cardiomyopathy. The disease is caused by the abnormal thickening of the muscles between the chambers in the heart. This causes an irregular heartbeat and is accompanied by fatigue and seizures, and even death.

This was a difficult prognosis for the 27-year-old star. The fact of the matter was that his career was over. Lewis was considered by many who knew him as, "special, sincere, honest, kind caring and humble." Fellow players regarded him as a role model and leader by example.

Celtics president Red Auerbach said, "his infectious smile and joyous love of basketball were always evident to us."

Many families in the Boston and Baltimore areas had received help from Lewis in his work with underprivileged families as well as his active participation in boys and girls youth clubs.

The one thing no one heard from Lewis was complaints. Lewis was regarded as somewhat quiet and never talked "trash," complained about officials' calls or displayed unsportsmanlike conduct. He worked hard when he played and never complained if he hurt... was it this drive that cost him his life?

Upon receiving the prognosis, he and Boston officials sought a second opinion. The second team of doctors gave a much less serious prognosis of neurocardiogenic syncope, which is a fainting condition. The solution is; take some medication and slowly progress back to a full-playing level.

If Lewis had listened to the first team of doctors he would probably still be alive, unfortunately he opted for the second team with the opposite diagnosis.

I tried putting myself in Lewis' shoes and imagined what my decision would be. Though it no longer makes a difference, perhaps Lewis should have looked back to another great basketball player.

I remember March 4, 1990 when one of my favorite players in the college ranks ran down the court and mysteriously collapsed, much like Lewis did in the play-offs. His name was Hank Gathers. Gathers, the nation's leading scorer, died on the court of cardiomyopathy, the same disease originally diagnosed to Lewis.

The decision of love of life or love of sport was perhaps the deciding factor for Lewis, but perhaps one could not exist without the other. The questions will be asked and some answered in the next few weeks and months in regards to his untimely death. Was he pushed by the struggling Boston organization? How could two medical teams have such very different prognosis of Lewis? How much pain had Lewis endured and never spoke about to anyone?

The accusations will fly and perhaps lawsuits will be filed but in the end it will not bring the rising young star back.

The NBA All-Star player left behind an expectant wife and small son and many fans who respected him as a player and a man.

In the tragic and untimely death of Reggie Lewis, one point should be made amid all the controversy: He died doing what he did best - playing basketball.

Menehune Rainbow Preschool

The station Preschool, Menehune Rainbow, wishes to remind parents that 3- and 4-year-olds are currently being registered for September classes on an on-going, first-come, first-serve basis. The school offers five-day and three-day classes for 3-year-olds who will be 3 by Oct. 5 and similar classes for children who will be 4 by Dec. 31.

Morning classes are offered from 8:05-11 a.m., and afternoon classes are offered from 12:15-3:15 p.m.

Parents interested in enrolling their child are encouraged to contact the preschool at their earliest opportunity to make the necessary arrangements since class and hour choices become increasingly less as spaces are filled.

The preschool is located in building 1391, across from the Vet Clinic. Office hours are Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Parents desiring additional information are invited to visit the school or to call 257-1593 during office hours.

Windward C.C.

The story and music of Oscar Hammerstein will be performed Saturday from 5-7 p.m., the final event of the Summer Storytelling Festival, "Telling Under the Trees."

Allan Fisher at the keyboard will tell stories about Hammerstein's life and show how he wove the major themes around which he composed into his early hits. Fisher will play medleys from the musicals "South Pacific," "Showboat," "Old Man River," "Sound of Music," "Carousel," "Oklahoma," and "The King and I."

The festival is free and open to the public. Law classes for the Layman, a series of courses covering practical law information will be taught by real estate attorney Robert Morris.

Tuesday: Wills, Trusts and Estate Planning will cover the basic concepts of estate planning.

Aug. 12: Hawaii Residential Landlord-Tenant Law covers the laws and practices in Hawaii for residential landlords and tenants, including the making of rental agreements, security deposits and inventories.

Saturday and Aug. 14: Using the Law Library is a two-session course designed for people who have no training in law but want to know how to do basic legal research.

All classes are $45 each. For further information, please call Windward C.C. at 235-7433.

Joint Education Center

Anyone interested in law enforcement after separating from the Marine Corps should stop by the Joint Education Center and talk to Cpl. Johnson. There are a number of options available that will allow people to work toward and obtain their degrees through distance Learning Programs.

Everyone is encouraged to stop by JEC to participate in a needs assessment survey. This survey only takes a minute to complete and will help us meet your educational needs and desires in the most timely and efficient manner.

Anyone with questions about education can stop by JEC or call 257-2158/1232.

funding of low revenue/low cost activities aboard the air station. Events such as intramural sports, aerobics and the fitness centers as well as other morale enhancing activities will receive the funding to offset their operational cost. "The Bayfest '93 weekend was an excellent example of cooperation from everyone to make it a success," said Walt Skierkowski, director of Morale, Welfare and Recreation. "The Marines and civilians alike working hand in hand to make it work is what it was all about. I would like to thank everyone, but especially my executive staff for all of their hard work and dedication they displayed in preparing for the weekend."

SPICE of life!

By Maggie Milham

Editor's Note: Spice of Life is a column for military spice (plural of spouse). You are invited to write to Maggie with any questions you have concerning military life. Please address your letters to: Joint Public Affairs Office, MCAS (Hawaii Marines, Spice of Life), Box 63003, MCAS Kaneohe Bay, HI 96863-3003.

Dear Spice of Life,
I'm writing concerning an article that used to be in the Hawaiian Marine. It was the Spice of Life article. What happened to it? I enjoyed reading it and I'd like to see it in there again.

Thank you, Patricia Culp

Dear Patricia,
Thanks so much for the kind words. The paper wasn't responsible for Spice of Life's disappearance. I was called away on an emergency to the mainland and only returned last week. Like most military wives, my family is a loooooong way away. Unfortunately, things dragged on for seven weeks before I could get back. I'll try not to disappear again, though. You're a sweetheart for asking.

Maggie

Dear Maggie,
On June 29 there were only 6 of 16 cash registers open at the commissary. Since they knew for months that the commissary would be opening, they should have had plenty of advanced notice to hire and train adequate help. What good does it do to have the much vaunted 16 cashier lanes, if less than half are open? The long lines are still here.

Disgruntled & Dissatisfied

Dear Disgruntled,
Interesting question. I talked to the commissary about it and here's the answer I got: DECA (a separate government entity) controls all the commissaries. There is a federal rule that says that DECA must be self-supporting. Therefore, the commissary has to prove that it can support new cashiers before it can have them. There is a three month delay in effect, until the commissary has improved its sales figures to about $2.4 million per month. The good news is that the commissary has been given the go-ahead to hire nine new people just this week. If sales continue to increase, more people will be hired.

Just like all new things, there are some kinks that have to be worked out in the system. The commissary has been working on carrying more items now. Frankly, I just like to go down there and visit the place! Now, if we could get them to put up some tables near the deli and serve lunch.... Hope that helps. Thanks for your letter.

Kaneohe Bay offers excellent diving sites

By Capt. Phillip Thompson
Deputy Director Marine Forces Pacific PACO

Kaneohe Marine Corps Air Station provides ample opportunities for scuba divers practically year-round. When conditions permit, the Mokapu Peninsula can be a treasure waiting to be discovered for the interested diver. For those not certified, but interested in the underwater world, the Scuba Locker aboard the station offers lessons which provide the key to the dive sites located in the immediate area.

Pond Road is perhaps the most popular dive site aboard the station. Its easy access and large beach make it one of the most convenient dives around. It is also an excellent dive for beginners; in fact, some training dives are conducted there by the Scuba Locker.

The entry point is as simple as walking down to the beach. Divers suit up and wade into the cove for a very short swim through a cut in the rocks to the decent point, or walk out to a shelf on the right-hand side of the beach, then step off into the ocean.

This dive is shallow, no more than twenty feet, and is very susceptible to the winter trade winds and high surf. During these months, the surge can be strong enough to be dangerous, and the visibility is minimal. During the summer months, however, it is an excellent spot to view parrotfish, tangs, trigger fish, and an occasional small eel. Flounders also make an appearance every now and then.

The coral heads, while mostly dying or dead, provide interesting underwater formations, including arches and crevices. In some crags, large sea urchins and puffer fish have made the area their homes.

Because of the shallow depth, Pond Road is an excellent dive if time allows only one tank — the average diver can get over 30 minutes underwater on one tank.

Another easy-access dive is Fort Hase Beach, also known as the "Rifle Range." The dive itself follows the shelf along the same path as the Rifle Range Road. Like Pond Road, this is a shallow dive from the shore. There is a fine entry point located in a clump of bushes just past the pavilion at the beach.

Because winds swing around Ulupau Crater, care must be taken here to avoid strong surges. But on calm days, and during lobster season, this area, with its multitude of rock formations and hidey-holes, can yield a large amount of lobsters. Care must be taken not to investigate a hole with a hand — eels also live in holes. I have seen lobsters along the open sandy bottom in broad daylight in this area, in about 25 feet of water.

The fish life here is not as abundant as Pond Road, probably because the shelf juts out over the ocean making it a favorite fishing spot. This creates another consideration for the diver. Beware of hooks, lead sinkers, and fishing line, all of which can become entangled in scuba gear.

Swimming in the direction of the rifle range, the bottom becomes sandy and opens up into a wide plain punctuated with low coral heads and rocks. Occasionally, the lucky diver can find a seashell or two which has been abandoned by its original owner.

These two dives are easiest, obviously because both are shore dives. For those who prefer boat dives, there are two excellent sites within easy reach of the Station Marina.

The first site is the Moku Manu islands, located off the north end of Ulupau Crater. Recommended for advanced divers, this site is seldom dived, and is thus almost pristine. The current and ocean swells are considerations not to be taken lightly.

I dove this site from a small boat anchored between the islands, in the lee of the wind. The view of these rocks at close range is spectacular; it is reminiscent of the villain's hideout in a James Bond movie.

Underwater, the sea opens into a vast expanse of rock formations and skirt-like coral clusters around the bottom of the islands at about 65 feet. Colorful fish abound, and see so few divers they are curious enough to investigate.

The highlight of this dive is an immense "false" cave — false because the top is open to the sunlight. Entering is like swimming into a huge underwater cathedral, with slick walls of rock rising vertically on either side, then arching gracefully overhead, forming the "sunroof." Light filters down, casting rays of scattered light inside the chamber.

As mentioned above, this dive, although exhilarating, is recommended for experienced divers only.

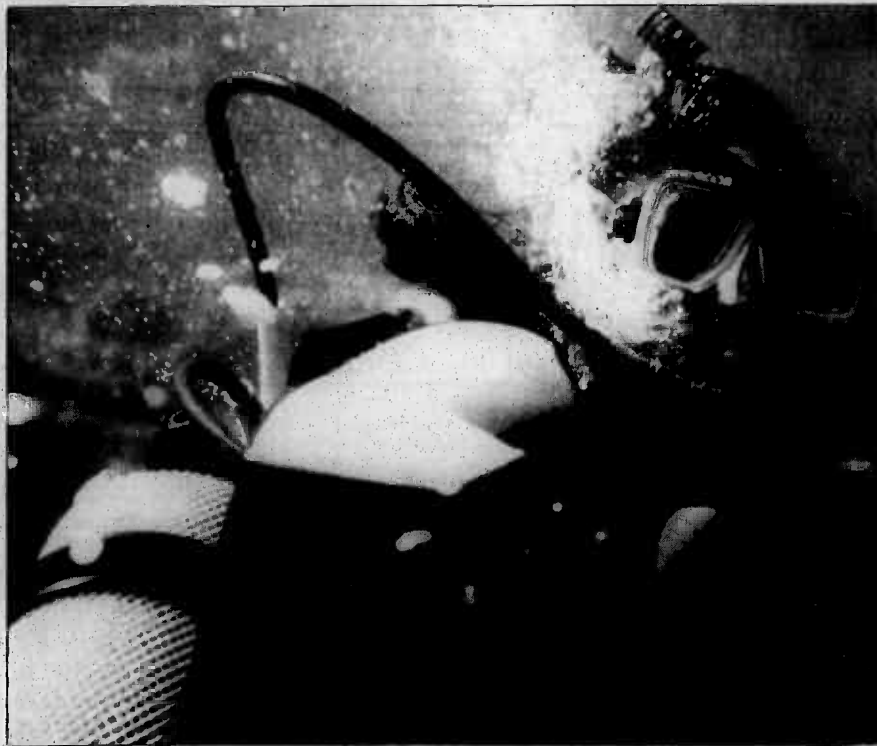

The final site located in Kailua Bay, is Mokolea Rock. This tiny islet is also known by a more common name best omitted here.

It can be reached easily by boat, but again, care must be taken to avoid swells which frequently buffet the rock. Another site for experienced divers, it is recommended only during the calmest of summer days.

The inshore side of the rock is in about 35 feet of water, with a relatively sandy bottom. The seaward side slopes quickly to 60-70 feet. The walls of the islet are packed with countless holes and cracks, home to an abundance of lobsters. Turtles have been known to cruise by, as have a couple of whitetip sharks.

Because the island is small, a diver can quickly swim around its circumference, or swim slowly and investigate each nook and cranny.

Each of these sites offer a unique experience, and unlike many spots around Oahu, do not require extensive transportation or cost. Don't miss these dive opportunities which are right in your own backyard.

Some of the finest diving on Oahu is in the area surrounding the air station.

Hawaii Administrative Rules (HAR)
Amendment to Chapter 13-171

RESERVATION OF WATER

The state Commission on Water Resource Management will hold a public hearing to receive testimony on the proposed amendment to Chapter 13-171 of the Hawaii Administrative Rules relating to the State Water Code.

HAR Chapter 13-171 provides for the designation and regulation of water management areas. The proposed amendment adds a new subchapter for the reservation of water. The following new sections are proposed:

Section 13-171-60 Describes the Commission's statutory authority to reserve water in water management areas and for the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands for future needs.

Section 13-171-61 Reserves 1.724 million gallons per day of ground water for the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands in Honolulu and Leeward Oahu.

Section 13-171-62 Reserves 0.124 million gallons per day of ground water for the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands in Windward Oahu.

The public hearing will be held:
September 8, 1993 (Wednesday) at 6:00 p.m.
Kalanimoku Building, Room 132, 1151 Punchbowl Street, Honolulu

Draft copies of the proposed rule amendment may be obtained free of charge from the Commission at Room 227, Kalanimoku Building, 1151 Punchbowl Street, Honolulu. For a free draft copy by mail, call 587-0214.

All interested persons are urged to attend and submit comments orally or in writing. The Commission will continue to accept written testimony until Sept. 30, 1993. Testimony should be mailed to the Commission on Water Resource Management, P.O. Box 621, Honolulu, Hawaii 96809.

Also, disabled individuals planning to attend the public hearing are asked to contact the Commission at 587-0214 to indicate if they have special needs which require accommodation.
