Marines participate in Cobra Gold 96

Hawaii Leathernecks take part in 15th of series of joint exercises

Joint Information Bureau, Cobra Gold
Special to the Hawaii Marine

SONGKHLA, THAILAND -- U.S. Ambassador to Thailand William H. Itoh and General Viroj Sangsrit, Royal Thai Supreme Commander, jointly presided over opening ceremonies of the 15th annual Cobra Gold here, May 2, kicking off one of the largest exercises involving U.S. forces in the Pacific this year.

More than 19,000 soldiers, Sailors, Marines and airmen from both countries are participating in the exercise which focuses on improving interoperability among services and between countries.

"For the United States, Cobra Gold is tangible evidence of its commitment to remain actively engaged in the Asia Pacific region," Itoh said during his remarks. "The bonds between our armed forces have been forged over decades of close cooperation and continue to grow as U.S. and Thai troops work to plan and implement exercises such as this one. The valuable experience that Thai and U.S. forces gain from this and other exercises will make it considerably easier should our two nations ever be required to respond to a real world conflict."

As in previous years, Cobra Gold '96 is scheduled to include joint and combined land and air operations, combined naval operations, amphibious operations and special operations.

Senior officials from both U.S. and Thai military forces praised the exercise and all its' upcoming operations.

"It's a learning experience. The Thai Army teaches U.S. forces some of their tactics and U.S. forces give back to Thai Army and Thai people," said Army Lt. Col. Richard W. English, 17th Corps Support Battalion commander. "Command Post Exercises with medical forces and engineer forces, helping out the Thai forces and supporting all different units out in the field is what this exercise will entail," English added.

Itoh agreed saying, "An often over-looked element of Cobra Gold each year is the humanitarian, engineering and civic action projects that U.S. forces implement in small communities throughout the kingdom."

Throughout all the operations both Thai and U.S. forces will be strengthening their readiness.

"The valuable experience that

Marines and other servicemembers participating in Exercise Cobra Gold 96 will meet the namesake of the exercise as part of training with Royal Thai Marines. The owner of the boat at right is about to meet a cobra perhaps too intimately.

Thai and U.S. forces gain from this and other exercises will make it considerably easier should our two nations ever be required to respond to a real world conflict," said Itoh.

The opening ceremony included a flyover by Thai and U.S. combat aircraft and a High-Altitude, High-Opening mass tactical parachute jump by 44 Royal Thai Special forces soldiers.

Attending the ceremony were military observers from Australia, Bangladesh and Singapore.

More than 60 members of the news media from Bangkok, as well as reporters from Japan, China, and South Korea were also at the ceremony.

Police continue search for missing Marine

LCpl. Steven Williams
Staff writer

The Honolulu Police Department and Naval Criminal Investigative Service are still searching for clues in the case of a 20-year-old Marine who left his barracks room May 7 and never returned.

LCpl. Juan Guerrero, from Headquarters Company, 3d

Marine Regiment, here, was reported missing May 8 after failing to show up to work. That same day, his 1983 Oldsmobile was found illegally parked on Sand Island Access Road in Honolulu, according to Detective Mark F. Wiess, head of HPD homicide detail.

Guerrero was last seen at 9:30 p.m. May 7, by his roommate in his barracks room, according to Wiess.

"He was going to run some personal errands and hasn't been seen since," said Wiess.

Guerrero's section reported him missing the next day. At the same time, Wiess said Guerrero's car was being towed by Ace Towing in Honolulu.

Two of Guerrero's fellow Marines examined the vehicle May 9 and reported a significant amount of electronic equipment missing from the trunk. With the possibility of foul play involved, the case was given to HPD homicide for investigation, according to Wiess.

After three days, "with no bodies, John Does at hospitals or other clues," Wiess said the case was given back to HPD's missing persons detail.

Wiess said despite the information of missing equipment from the vehicle, the department is leaning more toward unauthorized absence. However, foul play has not been ruled out.

"There is no way this Marine would ever go UA," said GySgt. John E. Diggs, Guerrero's staff noncommissioned officer in charge. "He's an outstanding Marine. This is completely out of his character."

Guerrero's absence remains under investigation.

LCpl. Casey Myers monitors a Squad Automatic Weapon while a participant in 1st Battalion, 3d Marines' "Jane Wayne Day," fires. The event was held throughout the base May 16.

Tailor shop adopts extended hours

LCpl. Douglas LaGore
Staff writer

As of today, the Tailor Shop here is under new management meaning extended hours for the community aboard base.

The Morale, Welfare and Recreation Contracting office awarded the new contract to Ida Williams, manager, Tailor Shop, due to her commitment to increase service for those who need alterations on a timely basis.

The new hours are Monday to Friday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with the shop closed Sunday. The shop is staying open one hour later each week day.

As a one day, grand opening promotional, 5 percent discount all work done will be given by the shop today only.

"We are extending the hours to match those of the cleaners," said Williams. "The price will be lower than before and we here at the shop will work around the schedules of the Marines on base."

Patrons can expect a 20 percent decrease in tailoring charges and hours that are more suitable to their work schedules. Williams said the shop will stay open longer during Commanding General's inspections and around the time of the Marine Corps Ball.

Marines to soon see benefits of AT&T telecommunications pact

QUANTICO, Va. — The Sea Services Personal Telecommunications Contract, signed with AT&T last December, is making its presence felt around the Marine Corps.

The contract, with joint participation by the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, features eight service platforms: in-room telephone service, temporary lodging facility service, pay telephones, prepaid debit long distance cards, long distance centers, long distance calling cards and brig pay phone service.

Perhaps the most important platform is the wiring of bachelor quarters for personal telephone service. Marines listed this as one of their most pressing needs and is a strong quality of life improvement project.

Implementation meetings have been held at Marine Corps Base Hawaii, Camp Pendleton, and Camp Lejeune, among other places. Cable and infrastructure installation at these commands is scheduled to begin by early summer.

AT&T's Global Prepaid Long Distance Cards went on sale at Marine Corps Exchanges April 1. The cards are available in $10, $20 and $40 denominations, and give Marines approximately 40 minutes of talk time per $10. This equals a rate of 25 cents per minute rate for calls made anywhere in the U.S., any time of the day any day of the week. The cards can also be used for international calls, but at a higher per-minute rate.

Marines will be able to buy long distance cards with more convenience. Ten and $20 prepaid phone cards will soon be available in over 70 vending machines at 14 Marine Corps commands. Machines will be located in high-traffic areas near points of use.

General Krulak inducted into National Wrestling Hall of Fame

HEADQUARTERS, U. S. MARINE CORPS, Washington D. C. -- General Charles C. Krulak, Commandant of the Marine Corps, has been inducted to the Hall of Outstanding Americans at the National Wrestling Hall of Fame. Krulak will be installed during a ceremony at the 20th Honors Banquet Saturday in Stillwater, Okla.

The Hall of Outstanding Americans honors former wrestlers who have achieved national and/or international acclaim in various areas of endeavor to include business, government and the arts and sciences.

The hall's membership includes three U. S. Presidents and a Nobel Prize winner, as well as an author, an astronaut, and business and government leaders. As one of its newest members, Krulak will join the ranks of other well-known grapplers to include Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Kirk Douglas and Norman Schwarzkopf who have received the honor.

Krulak, who was a varsity wrestler at Phillips Exeter Academy and at the U. S. Naval Academy, credits wrestling as a key character builder and positive influence.

"Wrestling played a big role in my life. It was wrestling that taught me the importance of sportsmanship and camaraderie. Wrestling also helped instill in me an appreciation for self-discipline and mental toughness. Together these lessons have helped me in my career as a Marine and in my life. Being inducted into the Hall of Outstanding Americans is truly an honor," said Krulak.

Krulak will be joined by blind actor, singer and author Tom Sullivan. Sullivan, who wrestled in high school and in the 1968 Olympic trials, was elected last year but was unable to attend the 1995 induction ceremonies. (Division of Public Affairs, HQMC)

Yuma Marine carries 1996 Olympic flame

HEADQUARTERS, U. S. MARINE CORPS, Washington, D.C. — Thousands of years ago in ancient Greece, runners called "heralds of peace" traveled through the countryside, issuing the call to the Olympic Games. In 1936, the tradition of the ancient call of the Olympic Games was reborn, adding the symbolism of a torch lit by rays of the sun in Olympia.

Sgt. Shane Rosenthal carried on that time-honored tradition April 29, when he carried the flame through the streets of Yuma in the 1996 Olympic Torch Relay.

In the past, torchbearers have been Olympic athletes or have been required to raise or pay high amounts of money for the honor of carrying the flame. Thanks to the "Share the Spirit: Who Would You Choose" program, Americans like Rosenthal now have the opportunity to participate in the special event.

With accomplishments including becoming 1995 MCAS Yuma Athlete of the Year, 1995 Yuma Marine of the Year and his recent acceptance into the Marine Enlisted Commissioning Education Program, Rosenthal proved himself worthy of the privilege.

"I've seen a lot of people selected to represent the air station, a unit of the Marine Corps in general, but I think in this particular case, we couldn't have selected a finer individual to represent the air station and the Marine Corps," said LtCol. Alex Torrance, executive officer, MCAS Yuma.

MCAS Yuma's 1996 Sailor of the Year, Petty Officer 2d Class Sean Bly, ran at Rosenthal's side as an official escort. He said the torch run took the top position in his list of accomplishments in the Navy.

"This will be my last hurrah, my final mission for the Navy," said Bly, who felt Rosenthal deserved to carry the torch. "I think Rosenthal is a pretty good guy. I'm happy for him."

The opportunity to carry the torch was overshadowed at first by Rosenthal's recent acceptance into MECEP. However, once it sunk in he would actually be carrying the Olympic flame, he was more than enthusiastic.

"This is a once in a lifetime opportunity," said Rosenthal. "I really looked forward to being on of the 10,000 people across the nation who get to carry the Olympic Torch." Rosenthal planned to purchase the torch after the relay and keep it for generations to come.

"It's something I'll be able to show my grandchildren," said the 21-year-old, Loveland, Col., native. "Something I'll have forever, and I think that's a really big deal." (Cpl. Benjamin Armour)

Motorcyclists: ride to live, live to ride -- or die

Sgt. Jesse Faleris
Headquarters Battalion

A Marine lies in a hospital in critical condition after yet another motorcycle accident. Doctors say he faces permanent loss of sight in one eye.

Faleris

You can guarantee Marine leaders here are searching for a way to keep motorcycle riders safe, but their only option is to stress safety precautions already outlined by the Department of Defense and the Marine Corps to identified riders -- people with a motorcycle license and a completion card from the Motorcycle Safety Foundation.

Problem is, the individuals involved in the accidents weren't riders. In some cases they were on a borrowed motorcycle, unlicensed and without the experience of a motorcycle safety course. They are putting a bad light on those of us who ride responsibly, and it is up to us to pass the word about riding to live.

For starters, raise your hand if you've loaned out your motorcycle. Would you loan an infant a loaded gun? Loaning a motorcycle to a novice rider is comparable. We're talking about a vehicle with an engine powerful enough to propel a car in a chassis lighter than the engine itself. I wouldn't think about loaning my bike or my gun unless I was certain of the person's experience. Now, let's talk about experience.

Riding a dirt bike around the grandparent's dirt trail for two weeks one summer when you were a kid is not experience. To be experienced, you have to be familiar not only with the motorcycle but also with the road you are traveling.

This means even a veteran rider of 14 years can have an experience deficiency the second he or she rolls on unfamiliar roads. But these individuals generally know their limitations and slow down.

Knowing your limitations and those of your motorcycle are crucial to surviving, but there is a time and place for everything. Public streets just are not the place to push your limits. Some riders seem to forget the streets aren't a race track.

I've lost count of how many motorcycles have passed my bike out the H-3 gate. It seems like I'm standing still to them. This is a poor example to potential riders. When a new rider finally gets his or her first bike and tries to hug the first corner out the gate like the pros do, it may very well be the end -- the end of a riding era, a Marine Corps career, and very possible a precious life.

Hawaii has a motorcycle racing school equipped with a track for individuals who feel the need to push the envelope. Maybe this is an outlet for individuals with the "need for speed."

For street-survival instruction, the Motorcycle Safety course here offers a free five-day course to active duty servicemembers. I know at least a dozen riders, with as many years experience, who will testify to the necessity of the course. It is truly effective at identifying bad riding habits and killing them before they kill the rider.

Riders, be careful loaning out your machine, recognize your limitations and encourage your riding buddies to take the Motorcycle Safety Course. Let's pass the word about riding responsibly. We can't afford to lose any more Marines or Sailors in peace time riding accidents. Ride to live, live to ride and Semper Pi.

Spooky sitreps from Makalapa security

LCpl. Steven Williams
Staff writer

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii — As the stroke of midnight approaches, the sounds of the night become the only company for a young lance corporal guarding the gate of Makalapa Compound here.

An occasional headlight ricochets across the trees breaking the silhouette of the mountainside. He searches the darkness for any abnormal shapes or shadows he may have to challenge.

He is startled by a movement deep in the shadows before him. After adjusting his eyes, the guard makes out a figure easing through the darkness. He identifies it as another Marine in dress blues. But the figure remains in the shadows and disappears into the darkness.

If one heavy-eyed sentry was the only Marine who brought back a story of a dim figure passing by Borchers Gate on Makalapa Compound, it might have been passed off as another long night on post. However, several people have reported seeing the Marine passing the gate in the evening.

The sightings are connected to the death of LCpl. Jeffrey Allan Borchers, who lost his life on the post March 12, 1990, according to Sgt. Randall E. Borchers, sergeant of the guard and distant cousin of LCpl. Borchers.

"Two civilians were driving around and saw the Marine sentry down on Post 19 (Borchers Gate)," said Sgt. Borchers, describing what he had read in the incident report. "They pulled up outside of the gate where the sentry couldn't see them and dropped off a passenger. The driver pulled up to the gate three times waiting for the other person to jump the fence and come around the other side. On the third time he pulled up, the sentry went up to the side of the car. The other person came around behind him."

The assailant shot LCpl. Borchers six times with a stolen pistol before grabbing Borchers' weapon and ammo and fleeing the scene, according to Sgt. Borchers. The incident happened around 3:30 a.m.

Today, at zero dark thirty, it is said the lance corporal still roams his post, according to reports and stories from Marine sentries guarding Makalapa Compound. Rumor has it the lance corporal's spirit also takes the form of a white owl which revisits the post regularly. With several years to bounce down the grapevine, the rumor also says seeing the owl three times means someone has died.

One evening, a lady who was working in the cellar of the compound's Command Center offered three sentries coffee, according to Cpl. Bradley I. Adams, 3rd Platoon, 3d Marines squad leader. The woman returned with three cups of coffee asking where the third Marine went. The lady was adamant there were three Marines on post.

"She kept asking us where the next Marine was," said Bradley, reanimating the late-night scene on duty. "We asked her what he looked like. She described LCpl. Borchers."

The lance corporal isn't alone as the source for abnormal activities or spooky ghost stories on the compound. Sentries from posts around building 250 on Makalapa Compound have reported hearing the voice of a girl who died next to the building. Several years ago, the girl was chasing her ball on one of the upper decks of the building and fell off the edge. The sentries say sometimes late at night, they can hear her running and giggling as she chases her ball. One Marine reported feeling a tug on his uniform as he passed the area the girl fell from.

Some Marines have reported hearing voices and squeaking rail cars from the depths of the network of tunnels which run through the craters beneath the compound. The stories drifting through the posts say the tunnels were used in World War II to transport bodies.

There is no hard evidence of what really happens beyond life as humans know it. The spirit world seems to remain within the confines of those who believe in it. No one can prove most of the things they see or hear.

Although LCpl. Borchers' return remains within the stories and rumors of Makalapa Compound, he may still be visiting his post, assuring the safety of his old watch and assuming the responsibilities of Borchers Gate.

Then again, he may be just carrying out the motto he learned in boot camp; Once a Marine, always a Marine.

AT YOUR SERVICE.

AT&T JOINS YOUR EXCHANGE TO BRING YOU BETTER TELECOMMUNICATIONS.

AT&T is working together with the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard exchanges to offer a wide array of advanced communications services to make life a little easier, on base and off.

In addition to installing hundreds of new pay phones on bases around the world, other new services will make it even more convenient for you to keep in touch with home.

AT&T Global Pre-Paid Cards, customized for your branch of service, are available at base exchanges. There's no simpler way to help you keep tabs on your budget.

Soon you'll even be able to call long distance from the comfort and privacy of your own barracks. We're in the process of installing private phones in the rooms of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard barracks throughout the U.S. So the voice of a loved one will only be a few short steps from your rack.

These are just some of the changes to come as AT&T and your exchange work together to bring the people you love closer to you.

Military nurse wins award of excellence

HM2 Pamela Chambers Special to the Hawaii Marine

An Adult Care Clinic officer won the Award for Excellence from the American Academy of Nurse Practitioners here recently.

Navy Capt. Elizabeth Barker received the award for her work on the implementation of the domestic violence prevention program aboard base.

Barker is responsible for this program which deals primarily with spouse abuse. The program identifies domestic problems, intervening in some cases, and assists with counseling support.

She is the first military nurse practitioner to ever receive this award. Barker's history of involvement includes instructing and educating victims in the Sexual Assault Intervention Program, anger control management, cancer awareness and smoking cessation classes.

Barker began her military career as an E-1 in 1964. Her career veered toward education in the medical field where she entered the nursing program, earning a commission as an ensign. She received her master's degree in 1974, followed by a Nurse Practitioners license in 1984, and continued on to receive a doctorate in 1989.

Family member clinic begins 'empanelment'

HM2 Pamela Chambers Special to the Hawaii Marine

The Family Practice Clinic here, is offering improvements to family member care.

Beneficiaries are receiving quality care, and the need for improvement has been met with the new system known as the Kaneohe Bay Family Member Clinic. The KBFMC has begun a new empanelment program.

Beneficiaries are currently calling the appointment line and receiving the next available appointment with any provider. Under the new empanelment program, there are two teams of active-duty family practice providers consisting of two physicians on each team, allowing for cross coverage.

Beneficiaries can call and request a certain physician or team they feel will best meet their needs. If a patient has no preference of who they are seen by, the patient is booked with one of the teams. Once an assignment is made, the patient is encouraged to stay with the same team for future appointments.

Benefits of this program include an improved patient-physician relationship, and allowing patients to choose a physician. There is no additional cost or support required, and the program increases continuity and customer satisfaction.

The new empanelment program is a way to help the clinic meet its mission statement of being committed to extending quality health services to all those entrusted to the clinic's care. This new program will not only help patient continuity, but also the quality of care all beneficiaries deserve.

Naratiwat, Thailand — Sergeant Arkom Jaiwitt, a Royal Thai Marine with 1st Company, 9th Battalion, 3rd Regiment, sights in on his M60 mounted machine gun while Sgt. Marines, soldiers work together to offload MPS

Spc. Mark Porter
Special to the Hawaii Marine

SURAT THANI, Thailand — Never was the international aspect of Cobra Gold '96 more evident than at the port here Saturday, where U.S. Marines from Okinawa and mainland Japan joined Thai workers to off-load vehicles and equipment destined for use by servicemembers from Hawaii, Washington and Alaska — making the operation an "It's a Small World" of logistics.

The mission was one of the first phases of Cobra Gold '96 and one of the few times the exercise would bring together Marine and Army personnel, as well as Thai nationals.

Each group handled a separate part of the off-load. Thai workers labored deep within the hull of the Thai freighter, Korat Navee of Bangkok, strapping vehicles and equipment containers onto an enormous crane and hoisting them to the dock. From there, Marine mechanics moved the vehicles to a staging area and inspected them for damage.

Next, soldiers who had traveled more than six hours by ground from Nakhon Si Thammarat conducted a second inspection, making any necessary repairs, and prepared the vehicles for convoy to their final destination 177 kilometers south at Nakhon Si Thammarat.

"Considering this was the first time any of us had worked in this type situation, I think things went very well," said 2nd Lt. Michael Gavre, officer in charge of the Marine's Port Operations Group. "We were able to get ahead of schedule on the first day and stay ahead until all the equipment was offloaded."

By sunset, the freighter was empty, and the dock was lined with more than 400 vehicles and 100 equipment containers.

"We helped each other meet our high standards," said Army Staff Sgt. Paul De La Cruz, Army noncommissioned officer in charge.

Marines practice maritime ops for Exercise Freedom Banner

LCpl. Teresa A. Brown
Special to the Hawaii Marine

This year's Cobra Gold in southern Thailand is the 15th in a series of U.S.-Thai combined/joint land, air and sea exercises. The exercise is designed to improve the combat readiness of both countries, while demonstrating U.S. resolve to support the security interests of friends and allies in the Asia-Pacific region. Humanitarian assistance, in the form of medical/dental/veterinary services and engineering civic action projects, offer quality-of-life improvements for the people in the exercise area.

More than 19,000 Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force personnel from both countries are participating in Cobra Gold 96, which focuses on improving interoperability among services and between countries.

NARATHIWAT, Thailand -- Marines and Sailors of 3rd Force Service Support Group Forward, along with the crew of the Motor Vessel 1st Lt. Baldomero Lopez, began offloading cargo as part of maritime prepositioning operation exercises for Freedom Banner 1996, in conjunction with Cobra Gold 1996.

The mission of the offload was to provide a means of delivering supplies and equipment for Marine Air/Ground Task Force training needs, through the Maritime Prepositioning Force, said Capt. Erick Thomas, Arrival and Assembly Operations Group watch officer.

According to Thomas, the MPF provides an alternative to air transport for MAGTF equipment. For example, a Maritime Prepositioning Ship carries the same amount of equipment as about 4,500 C-141 missions, enough equipment to sustain 16,500 Marines and sailors for 30 days without re-supply.

Along with its operational capabilities, Thomas said the mission is one of service. "The purpose (of the exercise) is humanitarian relief and disaster preparedness from a single ship."

The Lopez, along with the MV 1stLt Jack Lummus, both part of Maritime Prepositioning Ship Squadron 3, began unloading cargo

May 1, to conclude the offload by May 8.

The ships arrived in Thailand April 30 with transportation, engineering, medical and water producing equipment for the entire Marine Forces Thailand, according to Thomas.

Once the ships arrived, the offloading process was established. According to Maj. Jose L. Aguirre, MPF offload operations can be accomplished in several ways, which include pierside and instream. The Lopez and the Lummus, anchored about three miles offshore, used the instream system of cranes and lighterage.

A lighter is a barge-like landing craft, loaded along side the ship with one of two single or double cranes on deck, and then rammed into the shore at high speeds in order to offload the cargo, according to Aguirre.

The offload was divided into seven operation days, in which equipment as diverse as fuel and a 25-ton crane were shipped to shore.

The operation concluded May 9, with the re-deployment of the ships.

'Cruse' control sets a course for educational opportunity

LCpl. Steven Williams
Staff writer

He joined the Marine Corps for a college education. Now, Cpl. Cornell I. Cruse, 3d Marine Regiment logistical embarkation specialist, uses his educational benefits to boost his military proficiency and get a head-start for the New York Stock Exchange.

The 22-year-old Chicago native started his slow college climb with evening courses from Maryland University while stationed in Okinawa, Japan.

As a successful Marine who handles transportation logistics for hundreds of Marines, Cruse said he has only been able to sneak into school for a few hours.

Before he transferred here in March 1995, Cruse collected 12 college credits in Okinawa. He researched college classes when he got here, but he was unable to get into a school desk before being sent to Pohakuloa Training Area on the Big Island for training with 3d Marines in February.

At PTA, along with coordinating all military transportation in and out of the island, Cruse was in charge of Field Air Refueling Points. FARP's are fuel farms used to refuel aircraft.

The biggest task during the exercise was to coordinate deployment of Marines and food, and track them to make sure they arrive to their destination, according to Cruse. Although he was swamped everyday for over a month with the logistics, he said the exercise ran fairly smooth for him.

"You can tell when you're doing a good job," Cruse said. "It's when things run smoothly. You can also tell when you're doing something wrong. Everyone notices."

Cruse was noted for exceptional work on several other occasions in the military. During a year-long tour in Okinawa, Cruse was awarded a Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal and several letters of appreciation. His accomplishments include training Marines on a Marine Air Ground Task Force Deployment Support System, a data collection device and participating in Toys For Tots fund drives. He also excelled while deployed to Korea, Guam and Exercise Cobra Gold in Thailand. Aside from other duties here, Cruse volunteers his services to Single Marines Program and AMR Baptist Church at Fort Shafter.

Although he's only taken few college courses, Cruse said his college education has been the key to his success.

"A lot of civilians think we're mindless," Cruse said. "They say we just walk around with packs on our backs and do whatever; shoot, kill, fight, whatever. But what it comes down to, is that a lot of us who are in 'pogue' positions have to do a lot of thinking on our feet. Our minds can't just be at a stand-still. We need an education to achieve the missions we're given."

Although he does his best to climb the ranks in the Corps, Cruse said the most important part of his life is education.

"Education plays a big part in society today," said Cruse. "To better yourself or move yourself up another notch, you have to have intelligence or education. Everybody is going to need an education sooner or later."

Cruse is on his way to an associate's degree in accounting and ultimately a master's degree in pharmacy. Later, he plans to earn a seat as a broker on the New York Stock Exchange.

Cruse is facing a long hike to New York to fulfill his long-term goal, but with a college education in his pack, he said it should be an easy one.

LCpl. Steven Williams

Cpl. Cornell Cruse, logistical embark specialist, 3d Marines, is looking forward to a future of trading stocks and bonds with the New York Stock Exchange. The Chicago native believes a college education will get his foot in the door.

Corpsmen develop medical proficiency during Cobra Gold

LCpl. Teresa Brown
Special to the Hawaii Marine

NARATHIWAT, Thailand -- The Sailor was found lying under a tree with several gaping wounds. What the patient was a victim of, no one knew.

Yet, while someone went for help, two fellow servicemembers waited with the victim. Once the corpsman arrived, the victim was taken to the field hospital here to determine the extent of his injuries. The corpsman decided he needed to be medically evacuated to Songkhla Naval Air Station, since the injury was severe. The evaluator who oversaw the whole drill agreed.

It's a scenario the corpsmen attached to Combat Service Support Detachment 72, 3rd Force Service Support Group Forward practice day after day while deployed here as part of exercise Cobra Gold 1996.

Along with the Navy, the surgical company at Songkhla, the Army 68th Medical Detachment here and the Motor Vessel Lopez, CSSD-72 assisted in several MEDEVAC drills throughout the exercise, conducting night operations, shipboard drills and air lifts.

Although the few injuries already encountered didn't need serious treatment, these drills are an essential part of training, according to Navy Lt. Phillip Sanchez, health service support officer for the Combined Service Support Operations Center, 3rd FSSG Forward.

"Like in many operations, to be good, we need a lot of training," he said. The exercise also provides useful training for the other group personnel.

"We start with patients with several injuries," Sanchez explained. "They are stationed throughout the camp to see how the Marines (and other personnel) in the local area respond. Hopefully the group aid station is called."

Once the group aid station is contacted, it is the corpsmen's job to determine the extent of the injuries and if further help is needed through the means of a MEDEVAC.

"This may be training," Sanchez said, "but it's real life to us down here." Once the drill is over, the corpsmen still need to be prepared for another situation, whether it is a drill or real-life.

Sissy cars — the accessories

The "Sissy cars and Marines who love them" article I wrote a few weeks back was very popular, if all the comments I received are any indication.

However, there are some things I need to clarify. Some people were confused about whether their car was "sissy" or not.

First of all I must say Volkswagen Beetles are not sissy cars. Any person who drives a Beetle has my utmost automotive respect, seeing as how their cars are usually regarded as rolling speed bumps.

I give Beetles respect because despite their slowness, their owners still love them. However, and here's my other point, I've noticed other types of slow cars on the road whose drivers seem to regard them as LeMans racers.

Ground-effects Hyundais

You know what I'm talking about -- Hyundais with ground-effects body kits, Toyota Tercels with big rear spoilers, Ford Escorts with five-inch exhaust pipes.

Since the drivers of these cars are mostly male, I'll address the issue from a male perspective. Do you really think a five-inch exhaust pipe is giving you more power, or making your ride look cool? Or is it making up for a deficiency elsewhere, if you know what I mean... Those five-inch pipes actually rob you of power, because of backpressure loss, and really, who in their right mind is going to believe an Escort, or similar sissy car, has enough muscle to warrant such a manly pipe?

Then there's ground effects. I'm sure Rodney King wishes he had ground effects on the Hyundai he drove before the LA police used him as a punching bag. What would ground effects have added, maybe one mile-per-hour to his top speed? King must have had his Hyundai souped-up anyway, because with him and two other large men in it, the L.A. cops said he was doing 115 mph.

Evidently, they were going down a big hill...

Cosmetics of power

There are accessories a lot of people use here which make no sense to me, such as shiny fender trim. In either gold or silver, it never matches the car. Why would you buy something that makes your car look uglier?

Headlight covers, I understand. I've had a headlight broken by a rock, but it was stupid for me to be following a truck loaded with gravel anyway. Headlight covers usually make cars look better. They have my thumbs up.

Another affectation is the Jack-in-the-Box toy mounted on antennas. What, so now, people can talk to "Jack," the big-headed crony of the restaurant chain, through their radio? "Yeah, Jack, I've got about a buck. What can I get?"

"Nothing. Drive through please."

Spend money wisely

Don't think I haven't been bitten by the accessory bug. I spent big cash on my old GTI in a quest for more power. I bought a camshaft, an exhaust system, a free-flow air filter, blueprinted motor oil, a race-car oil filter, platinum spark plugs and an electronic distributor. Cosmetically, I had a demure rear spoiler, a deep front spoiler, and bigger but lighter alloy wheels with low-profile tires.

The thing is, the car could back up what its exterior promised. Sissy cars with all manner of doodads and trinkets seem backward. Owners seem to be spending a lot of cash for no dash.

Seasoned chefs work barbecue magic at Grill-Off competition

LCpl. Douglas LaGore
Staff writer

Would-be chefs donned their aprons here Saturday in an attempt to dazzle the judges' taste buds during the 2nd Annual Great Grill-Off.

The Morale, Welfare and Recreation event pitted 16 teams against each other with the mission of finding the best barbecue dish on the base.

The teams fired up their grills at 11 a.m. and began preparing their concoctions into the early afternoon hours. The dishes ranged from the standard favorites of chicken, beef and pork to more specialized entrees like fajitas. Although the Grill-Off fostered good hearted competition, the seasoned chefs all knew what they had to do.

Each team's dish was judged on presentation, workmanship, creativity and composition. The competitors were encouraged to practice and have unit participation in picking the best recipe and representatives.

"We have prepared all the ingredients here," said MSgt. Fernando Lazo, Marine Aviation Logistics Squadron Element, Kaneohe Bay. "We are preparing Fajitas for the judges. The team has gone all the way to get into the mood by even decorating the table and garnishes for the food."

The participants were encouraged to come up with original tasting dishes that "harmonize the flavor of the sauces and the meat" together into one distinct taste. Each team was provided nine plates, one cup for the barbecue sauce and a serving tray, making the competition fair and equal. Prizes for the top place finishers included a barbecue party for 50 people and a Voyager Submarine dive for up to 20 people.

Grilling was not the only activity on hand, as cooking did not particularly appeal to everyone. MWR lined up country line dance instructors to teach anybody interested the latest boot scooting step. There were pony rides for the children and horseshoe tosses for the adults.

"I came out here to do something with the family," said GySgt. Charles Bull, company gunnery sergeant, H&S Company, 3rd Battalion, 3rd Marine Regiment. "I'm headed over to do a little line dancing after my daughter is done riding the horses. Its good to have activities like this so the whole family can get involved."

The Grill-Off winners were the Eating Engineers. In second were the Frying Geckos, and in third came the Trashmen.

Marina offers aquatic-style physical training

LCpl. Steven Williams
Staff writer

Summer is still months away, but MCB Hawaii's marina has already heated up Kaneohe Bay with water activities.

The marina offers year-round water recreation rentals for base personnel. Along with a variety of sailing, boating and other aquatic equipment, the Marina holds classes for various licenses such as fishing or ski boat, sailing and wind surfing.

For storage of personal vessels, the marina is also equipped with practically brand new, state-of-the-art floating piers, according to Neil Morgan, marina manager. Patrons can also tie up to bouys or rent dry storage spaces.

The bay is nearly 20 square miles filled with Hawaii attractions such as Chinaman's Hat, coral reefs and Coconut Island with the Koolau Mountains as a backdrop. The Marina brings all these attractions to base personnel with affordable prices.

Adventure Training

Marines are infamous for their hard core training routines and service unique physical training standards. Decades of devil dogs have poured hours of sweat and tears into creating and protecting this image.

The Marina here is helping Hawaii Marines with the PT image by spicing up the work out with water sports. A few hours of PT plus a few hours of aquatic fun on the bay equals one complete session of adventure training.

All Marine and Navy units, companies, platoons, etc. are invited to free classes in scuba diving, boogie boarding, surfing, water skiing, sailing, kayaking and more. A limited number of participants are allowed in each activity.

Party Barge

The party barge is a 10-person pontoon which can be rented for birthdays, anniversaries, ceremonies, sand bar picnics, sunset cruises, snorkeling and diving excursions. With a license, the barge can be rented for $20 per hour. If the renter prefers a captain to operate the vessel, the charge is $35 per hour with a six-person limit.

Friends laughing at you because you can't seem to get it right? Don't worry, with Adventure Training at the Marina, in a few short weeks, you'll be the man.

LCpl. Steven Williams
Adventure training will allow you to get out on the water, and after a hard row in the bay, you can sit back and watch for hammerhead sharks.

Here, Sabrina Garibay of Kalaheo High School receives a $1,000 scholarship from Bill Seibert, representative, United States Planning Association-Independent Research Agency. Garibay won the scholarship based on her academics, financial need, essay and desire to continue her education.

Get positive effects with Semper Fit 2000

American Forces Information Service
Staff writer

Semper Fit 2000 is the Marine Corps' health and wellness program. A healthy lifestyle can have benefits over and above a longer life.

In fact, the payoffs are almost immediate. The basic elements of controlling stress, eating right, regular exercise, and avoidance of nicotine, alcohol and drugs can have positive effects noticeable by family, friends and co-workers.

Regular exercise can help you control your weight, quit smoking, reduce high blood pressure and lower your risk of heart attack or stroke.

Exercise increases the efficiency of the lungs, strengthens the heart, and improves circulation, muscular strength, stamina, balance and coordination. It can also increase mental efficiency and give you a general feeling of vitality. People will undoubtedly notice how good you look once you start exercising regularly -- and you'll quickly realize how good you feel.

In order to ensure your readiness for beginning an exercise program, a complete physical exam is a must. Marines need an exam every five years or less.

So don't delay -- get started on your goal of physical fitness today.

Did you know...

— 87 percent of lung cancers are caused by cigarette smoking, causing about 150,000 deaths per year in the U.S.

— In the U.S., approximately 70 percent of the adult population uses alcohol.

— In the U.S., approximately three million people under 21 use smokeless tobacco; 10 million people in all.

Single Marine Program

The Single Marine Program announces new hours. It will be operating from 1 to 10 p.m. in the Devil Dog Room at the Enlisted Club. These hours are temporary. SMP now offers more educational and entertainment programs. All of the regularly scheduled classes and events will continue as before, but SMP will now be able to offer movie nights on both Tuesday and Thursday. Stop by and get a copy of the calendar for a schedule of movies for the month. Come by the SMP center and reserve prime time for golf on Saturday or Sunday. The center also has information about a free golf clinic, so stop in and find out more about this educational opportunity. Friday nights are still the night for aspiring musicians to come to the center and take advantage of free guitar lessons at 7 p.m. There will be a SMP council meeting May 24 at 4:30 p.m. in the Center. Immediately following is Bosses' Night. SMP will sponsor a free financial seminar May 29 from 10 a.m. until noon. The seminar will take place at the SMP center. There are several great events and free seminars being planned for May so check out what's going on at the new Single Marine Program center. The Single Marine Program is thrilled to announce the opening of our new facility at Camp Smith. The center is located in the former Enlisted Club in building 501. Marina, emerges nearly in the middle of the bay. This is a popular location for barbecues, beach sports and other activities. When high tide floods the bar, it's a great place to anchor and kick back for a soothing soak in the bay water. A tide schedule is located at the front desk in the Marina.

The Marina will host a fishing tournament June 1 and 2 at $80 per boat with a maximum of four persons per team. The competition will go all day.

For the younger generation on base, the Marina is holding junior sailing classes. Kids ages 10 to 15 are given classes from June 10-28 Monday, Thursday and Friday. The 10- to 12-year-olds classes will go from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. while the 13 to 15 age group meet from noon until 3 p.m. Ages 16-18 are taught July 8 through 26 from noon to 3 p.m. on the same three days of the week.

The Marina is located on the southern edge of the base conveniently centered between the Scuba Locker and R-n-R Surf and Ski. The Outdoor Recreation Equipment Center is located inside the marina for easy rental access.

The Marina is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday through Monday during winter hours. During the summer, Memorial Day through Labor Day, it expands its weekend and holiday hours to 7 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. For more information call 254-7667.
