Easy Riders move to K-Bay

Cpl. Barry Melton
Combat Correspondent

Helicopter Anti-Submarine Light Squadron 37 changed its address from Naval Air Station Barbers Point to K-Bay last week, becoming the first of several Navy squadrons to move from NAS Barbers Point to MCB Hawaii.

Although the squadron, known as the "Easy Riders," flies helicopters, they will rarely work directly with the Marine CH-53D squadrons presently here, said Navy Lt. David Rockwell, the aircraft division officer with HSL-37.

"We're happy to be on a helicopter base, because the people in the (flight) tower won't have any problem with the way we operate," said Rockwell. "Because they work with helicopter squadrons already, they will know how to handle us."

The Easy Riders fly the SH-60B, a light, armored, multi-purposed system, and serve mostly as extended weapon and search platforms for smaller combatant ships such as cruisers and destroyers, said Rockwell. The planes are armed with torpedoes and specialize in anti-surface and under-sea warfare.

The helicopters also possess search and rescue capabilities and can provide logistical support, Rockwell added.

Because the squadron has a wide range of abilities and responsibilities, they will fly often here, sometimes at night, to keep pilots and crews in good practice and ready for deployment, according to Rockwell. The training, however, shouldn't disturb base residents.

"I think the impact on residents here will be minimal," Rockwell said. "Much of our training takes place at West Field (here) and we're not as loud as the CH-53s."

The Easy Riders' move here is part of the most recent Base Realignment and Closure initiatives passed down by Congress, requiring Barbers' HSL and P-3 aircraft squadrons to move to K-Bay. It's a move, however, that the squadrons' members don't seem to mind. "It's a lot more quiet over here and the view is nice," said Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Mario Greaves, an aviation machinist mate with HSL-37. "At Barbers, there's mostly fixed-wing aircraft and it's loud. It's always quiet as long as those fixed-wings aren't around."

Many of the squadron's 200-plus members have already relocated to base housing or bachelor quarters here, said Greaves. However, Sailors like Greaves, who are changing duty stations soon, will remain in housing at Naval Station Pearl Harbor or NAS Barber's Point.

Adm. Blair assumes CinCPac duties

CAMP H.M. SMITH, Hawaii — Admiral Dennis C. Blair took the helm of Pacific Command here Feb. 20 in ceremonies with Defense Secretary William S. Cohen presiding.

Admiral Blair, former director of the Joint Staff in Washington, succeeds Adm. Joseph W. Prueher, who retired after 35 years of service. Cohen praised Adm. Blair as an innovative thinker and a man upon whom he has relied for everything from "deployment orders to budget issues."

Cohen presented Prueher with the Defense Distinguished Service Medal and called him "the face of American military engagement" in the Asia-Pacific region. "With foresight and innovation, he has helped craft and enhance our relationships with 43 nations spread over the world's largest ocean," the secretary said.

"Indeed, the footprints of his leadership stretch from Washington to Beijing, from Anchorage to Australia." Admiral Jay Johnson, chief of naval operations, earlier presented the Distinguished Public Service Award to Prueher's wife, Suzanne. He praised her for tireless work on the behalf of servicemembers and their families, noting her extensive efforts to improve service families' quality of life in the Pacific theater.

Also attending the ceremonies were Sens. Daniel Inouye of Hawaii and Ted Stevens of Alaska, Reps. Jerry Lewis of California and Neil Abercrombie of Hawaii, U.S. Ambassador to Japan Thomas Foley, Gen. Charles C. Krulak, Commandant of the Marine Corps, and representatives from Australia, Japan, Korea, Singapore, Thailand, Sri Lanka, the Philippines and Indonesia.

Marines from Assault Amphibious Vehicle Platoon landed their four AAVs on the shores of Fort Hase Beach, MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay during the morning of Feb. 18. They returned from their training at the Pohakulua Training Area on the Big Island of Hawaii.

The platoon was divided into three sections of 20-25 Marines that took turns training at PTA since Jan. 19. Each group had about 10-12 days to fully train. The last group returned with the AAVs.

"Our training was very successful," said Staff Sgt. Dennis Smith, platoon sergeant for AAV platoon. "Our Marines were able to upgrade their gunnery skills and learn how to navigate at night with their night vision goggles."

Marines were given a six-point grid coordinate and they had to go to their check points using terrain features and roads to guide them, according to Lance Cpl. Anthony Caruthers, AAV driver with AAV platoon.

Besides land navigation, Marines also carried out formation-driving attacks, according to Smith.

The wide open fields and rugged terrain of PTA gave Marines a chance to fully operate and maneuver their AAVs according to Caruthers.

"It was a great chance to practice terrain driving," said Caruthers. "We did a lot of driving, which we don't get to do much of at K-Bay."

Corpsmen named Sailors of the Year

Lance Cpl. Otto C. Pleil-Muete
Combat Correspondent

In recognition of their diligent work, two hospital corpsmen from 3rd Marine Regiment were named the 3rd Marine Division's 1998 Sailors of the Year.

After winning the titles of Sailors of the Quarter at the regimental level, Petty Officer 1st Class Fred Kasper, Senior Sailor of the Year, and Petty Officer 2nd Class Mark O. Smith, Junior Sailor of the Year, traveled to Okinawa, Japan to win their titles for 3rd Marine Div.

"They're both outstanding and well-rounded sailors," said Chief Petty Officer Mark Youdell, leading chief petty officer of the regimental aid station here and member of the Sailor of the Quarter board.

Aside from being recognized as Sailors of the Quarter, Kasper and Smith had to compete with other Sailors in several areas, including responsibilities, deployment and field operations, academic achievements, personal awards, physical fitness and a final presentation in front of a board.

"The board is the toughest part," said Kasper, a native of Missouri, "because you don't know what kind of questions they're going to ask."

Kasper, father of two, said he's devoted several hours to volunteering, including work on the U.S.S. Missouri, as well as having achieved three years of college education and completed several advanced military courses.

Smith has also had his share of accomplishments, having earned three Navy/Marine Corps Achievement Medals. He also has participated in the command nuclear, biological and chemical battalion survey team as well as several division shooting matches with an M-16A2 service rifle and 9mm pistol.

Along with spending his free time at the beach and sailing, Smith said he has also completed several Navy-Marine Corps correspondence courses.

The fact that both Kasper and Smith are both from the same unit is a great honor, said Youdell, and they both seem to enjoy their jobs here.

"I really enjoy working with Marines here at K-Bay," said Kasper. "It's good training and the opportunity to help others is the greatest reward for me — to treat each individual Marine effectively and see them get better."

Both Kasper and Smith agree their jobs aren't easy. "There's a lot of responsibility in this field," said Smith, "they expect me to be 'on top' of everything, all the time."

As for the future, Smith said he hopes to enter a commissioning program at a Navy school. He also plans on earning a bachelor of science degree and pursuing a career in emergency medicine.

Kasper said he is also pursuing a future career in medicine but would like to specialize in surgery.

1/3 bids g'day to Aussies

Cpl. Trent Lowry
Combat Correspondent

To risk using a hackneyed phrase, Marines from 1st Battalion, 3rd Marine Regiment gave a hearty "g'day" Feb. 18 to a company of Australian soldiers training in Hawaii this month.

The Australian soldiers, Company B, 2nd Royal Australian Regiment, arrived in Hawaii Feb. 15 to train with B Co., 1/3 Marines, in Operation Golden Eagle. The operation is an exchange of military training and strategy. Marines from C Co., 1/3 travelled to Australia to perform exercises during the same time period with other 2nd RAR soldiers, on their home turf.

"We train together, we learn together, and we must become better prepared to fight together," said Lt. Col. Brian Manthe, 1/3 commanding officer, stressing the many years and wars in which American and Australian forces have fought shoulder to shoulder.

The training is designed to increase the inter-operability of both units, according to 1st Lt. Andrew Ledford, 1/3 assistant operations officer.

The highlights of the four-week training evolution include armored amphibious vehicle operations, helicopter assault missions and military operations in urban terrain training.

"We're particularly looking forward to the amphibious assault operations on Bellows (Air Force Station), and the field phases of training," said RAR Capt. Chris Miles, executive officer of Co. B.

"We have no designated marine force, so the role our battalion can offer our brigade, by taking amphibious knowledge back, is tremendous," Miles said. He said that the 2nd RAR uses Vietnam-vintage M113 armored personnel carriers, which have limited aquatic landing capabilities.

The Australian soldiers' role will not simply be to learn amphibious doctrine. They will share their strategies and techniques, which will be invaluable for Marine Corps training as well.

"These guys work hard and they are very good, just like the Marine Corps," Manthe said. "It's like playing on an all-star team."

"The Australians have a lot of small unit standard operating procedures we'll benefit from," Ledford said. "They'll probably learn a lot at the battalion and company levels."

While in Hawaii, the six officers and 119 soldiers of the 2nd RAR will train hard, but they'll also be afforded the opportunity to play hard. In addition to field exercises, the Aussies will join B Co. in a visit to the USS Arizona and USS Missouri memorials, and a liberty day at Hanauma Bay.

Marine musicians launch SW Asian goodwill tour

Sgt. Melinda Weathers
MarForPac Combat Correspondent

ABOARD THE USS BELLEAU WOOD, Bahrain — For the premier concert of a goodwill tour through Southwest Asia, U.S. Marine musicians from Southern California performed here Feb. 15 — more than 8,200 miles from home.

Members of the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing Band departed Friday from Marine Corps Air Station, Miramar, Calif., and played the tour's first gig to a crowd of several hundred Marines and Sailors aboard the USS Belleau Wood. Among the notables in the crowd was Secretary of the Navy Richard Danzig, who enjoyed the performance alongside a handful of local dignitaries.

Danzig spoke to servicemembers afterward and thanked them for their dedication. The Sailors and Marines, including members of the 31st Marine Expeditionary Unit, have been on duty in the Arabian Gulf since Nov. 26.

"This is an excellent opportunity for the band to play and (make new friends) with the people of Bahrain, Oman, UAE (United Arab Emirates) and Kuwait," said Lt. Col. Michael Bulawka, a planning officer from Marine Forces Pacific, Camp H.M. Smith, Hawaii, who deployed with the band to oversee security during the tour. "The tour is also a way to show appreciation for the hardships and challenges (endured by the Sailors and Marines) while they're separated from their families."

Troop morale is the band's number one mission, said Master Sgt. Daniel J. Connelly, the band's drum major. "When the music starts playing, the audience stands a little taller," the Green Bay, Wis., native said.

"This is such a super opportunity for the young Marines," Connelly said. "Ninety percent of our Marines have never been out of the continental United States, so this is an experience they will probably never top as Marines and musicians."

"The tour is a good opportunity for us to represent the Marine Corps, as well as the U.S.," said Cpl. Joanne M.

Matibag, a flute and piccolo player. "From one side of the world to another, music is an international language," said the two-year band veteran. "I'm excited to experience so many different cultures on this trip, and to communicate with our music."

"It's really great that the band is here playing for us," said Sgt. William D. Burton, a 31st MEU Marine assigned aboard the USS Belleau Wood. "We've been moving around quite a bit during these past 10 months, and the secretary of the Navy and the band being here really shows their support and appreciation," he said.

"We're all part of the human race," said Bulawka. "And music has played an important role in society throughout history," he said. "In today's world, you don't really get to know someone unless you're in their environment. This tour and music will help foster understanding and an exchange of ideas in a peaceful (way)."

The band is scheduled to finish their tour and return home next week.

Black Marines overcome war, racism

Cpl. Trent Lowry
Combat Correspondent

This is the final story in the Hawaii Marine's Black History Month series.

The decade of the 1960's brought a heightened awareness of black culture and the absence of equality between the races.

Because society was rapidly changing peoples' opinions on social and racial issues, there was a gap between the attitudes of veteran black Marine non-commissioned officers and the new African-American recruits joining the Corps.

"The veteran black Marines...had experienced segregation at its demeaning worst...but they could see progress against discrimination," according to Henry Shaw and Ralph Donnelly, authors of "Blacks in the Marines Corps." "(They) were in the mainstream of Marine Corps life, (while) the...younger blacks at times appeared to stand apart from it; neither fully appreciated the others' backgrounds and attitudes."

The Marine Corps took steps to improve the quality of life for black Marines. One example of these steps is when Maj. Gen. James Berkeley, and later Maj. Gen. Alpha Bowser (a current Hawaii resident), went to the mayor of Jacksonville, N.C., the neighboring community of Camp Lejeune, and requested integrated businesses. The response was a success.

Despite this and other steps taken by the Marine Corps to combat discrimination, younger black Marines still felt they were treated unequally with regards to promotion, job assignment and military justice, according to Shaw and Donnelly.

Unfortunately, the problems came to an ugly head in the form of riots involving black and white Marines. Extremely violent assaults on Marines of 1st Battalion, 6th Marine Regiment occurred on July 20, 1969.

In August of the same year, black and white Marines rioted at Marine Corps Air Station Kaneohe Bay, while similar violent events occurred throughout the Corps.

The Marine Corps recognized the need for immediate change to eliminate the causes of racial strife that was pitting Marine against Marine. Toward that end, programs were initiated to recognize African-American culture, raise the number of black Marine officer candidates and discontinue unequal promotion, assignment and discipline procedures, according to Shaw and Donnelly.

Meanwhile, the Vietnam Conflict raged.

About 41,000 black Marines served in Vietnam between 1965 and 1973, and a great number performed above and beyond the call of duty, sacrificing themselves for their fellow devildogs.

Five African-American Marines were posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for their roles in the Vietnam conflict. One of these Marines was Pfc. James Anderson, Jr. for whom the base dining facility is named. Anderson absorbed the force of an enemy grenade in order to save the Marines in his platoon, which was pinned down by enemy automatic rifle fire.

The current deputy commander of U.S. Forces Japan/Yokota Air Base, Japan, also began making his mark in Marine Corps history during the Vietnam conflict.

Major Gen. Charles F. Bolden began his career as an A-6A fighter pilot, completing more than 100 combat missions in Vietnam. He went on to become an astronaut for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in 1980, and has been a part of four space missions. One mission involved deploying the Hubble Space Telescope, and for his final mission he commanded the first joint U.S./Russian venture in space.

The history of black Americans in the Marine Corps is one of distinction. The Montford Point pioneers stayed faithful to the Corps despite shouldering the humility of a segregated society. Amid social troubles and struggles to gain equality, African-American Marines have excelled in all areas, in all military occupational specialties.

This Month in Marine Corps History

February: The one hundred hour ground war

Cpl. Trent Lowry
Combat Correspondent

This article is published as part of the Hawaii Marine's Historical series.

In a period of only 100 hours between February 24 and 28, 1991, armed forces from the United States and a coalition of United Nations members routed Iraqi troops in Kuwait to put an end to the Persian Gulf War.

In August of 1990, the Iraqi military invaded the petroleum-rich nation of Kuwait. United Nations forces immediately responded to the antagonistic act by Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein by sending armed forces to patrol the region to deny any further aggression.

Marines from the I and II Marine Expeditionary Forces; the 1st (from Hawaii), 4th and 7th Marine Expeditionary Brigades; the 13th Marine Expeditionary Unit (Special Operations Capable), and the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing (Reinforced) deployed to the Persian Gulf.

But the U.N. presence wasn't enough to contain the threat, and Hussein continued to ignore economic sanctions imposed on Iraq. In order to persuade Saddam Hussein to order his troops to vacate Kuwait, then-President George Bush ordered more Americans into the Gulf.

By February, more than 94,000 Marines were in the Persian Gulf area. Marine units patrolled the area near Kuwait City before the ground campaign began, in order to distract the Iraqi forces from the allied military massing near the Iraq-Saudi Arabia border.

When the ground war began, Feb. 24, 1991, Marines performed above the expectations of the allied military leaders.

"By the morning of the second day, the 1st Marine Division was fighting in and around Kuwait City International Airport," wrote retired Army Gen. Colin Powell in his memoir, "My American Journey." "The Marines would have fulfilled their mission even if they had only tied down the Iraqi forces. Instead, by the end of the day they had encircled Kuwait City."

Marines from the 4th Marine Expeditionary Brigade and the 13th Marine Expeditionary Unit, afloat in the Gulf, never had to leave their ships. The threat of their landing, though, had Hussein's forces spread thin, which was helpful in forcing the Iraqi retreat.

By the afternoon of February 28, Iraqi time, President Bush ordered the end of the ground war. Once again, the U.S., cooperating with the United Nations, was an integral part of the world's peacekeeping force, and the Marines were the 911 unit that played an invaluable role.

CSSG-3 Marines hold embark exercise

Lance Cpl. David Salazar
Combat Correspondent

Marines from Combat Service Support Group 3 underwent embark training using a Landing Craft Air Cushioned at West Field here Feb. 17-18.

The LCAC transported the Marines and supplies to one of the Navy's newest vessels — the USS Bonhomme Richard, off the coast of Hawaii.

"These Marines received training in what they would do in combat — load supplies and vehicles onto a ship for transport to the combat zone," said Lance Cpl. Wade Cotter, the noncommissioned officer-in-charge of embark with the safety and hazardous materials section at CSSG-3.

Cotter said CSSG-3 performs this type of training every four to five months, but this was the first LCAC and shipboard experience for many of the CSSG-3 devildogs participating in this exercise.

As an added bonus, the Marines had the opportunity to stay aboard the Bonhomme Richard overnight to procure sea-life experience.

"This was a good way to let us get the feel of what ship life is like," said Lance Cpl. Jason Crigger, an embark specialist with CSSG-3 here. "It's ten times better than just sitting in the office."

"Training like this is important because it gives us more knowledge about our jobs — and knowledge is power," said Sgt. Maria Streams, noncommissioned officer-in-charge of supply with Landing Support Company, CSSG-3. "Events like this make us stronger as a team."

"Embark/logistics is a very important aspect of deployments," said 1st Lt. Greg Clayton, executive officer of Landing Support Co. "If you don't practice enough, you won't become efficient. Practice makes perfect."

"It was really exciting to see what we could accomplish and to see that we were really ready for combat," said Streams.

"In the greater scheme of things, this better prepares the Marines for bigger deployments," Cotter said. "If ever we have to work with an LCAC again, we'll be that much more prepared."

Safe on both bases

Navy Capt. Robert Kernan, left, Naval Air Station Barbers Point Commanding Officer, and Col. Mike Olson, Deputy Commander of MCB Hawaii display certificates presented to them at the initial Hawaii Field Federal Safety and Health Council meeting held at the Fairways Club Thursday.

Olson was presented with a copy of the Federal Safety and Health Council charter certificate for the Hawaii Council, and Kernan was recognized for his outstanding support to the council during 1997 and 1998. The council facilitates an exchange of ideas leading to the reduction of occupational injuries and illness, disseminate information about occupational health and safety hazards, share information on effective hazard prevention techniques and programs, and assists in professional development of employees with safety and health responsibilities. The council consists of a forum of safety professionals in the federal government as well as the private sector.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE
Most manufacturers take advantage of our modern technology by using computer software to cut their designs, cut enamel and raised letters by machine, thereby losing the traditional value of their Hawaiian Heiloom Jewelry. We at Solid Gold Hawaiian Jewelry, after more than 10 years, are still doing our jewelry the old-fashioned way, with traditional hand-cutting, hand-engraving and hand-lettering of our Heiloom Jewelry and we use Glass Enamel. THAT MAKES A LOT OF DIFFERENCE... AND IT SHOWS!

• Two Marines were arrested on alcohol-related charges after they were stopped for an ID check at the front gate. MPs smelled a strong odor of alcohol coming from the car when the Marines stopped so the driver was given a series of field sobriety tests, which he failed. They also smelled alcohol on the passenger who was under 21. Both Marines were taken to the Military Police Department where the driver elected to take a breath test. It resulted in a blood alcohol content of .127 percent. The driver was processed for driving under the influence and the passenger was processed for under age consumption.

Guess Who, a softball team comprised of Marines from the MCB Hawaii Kaneohe Bay disbursing office, ousted 3-Ring Circus 15-5, in co-ed softball action at K-Bay's Annex Field Sunday.

From the second inning, the game seemed to lean in favor of Guess Who, who scored 9 runs by the end of the inning, and had 11 by the end of the fourth.

Guess Who went on to add four runs to its already out-of-reach lead in the seventh inning, but good defensive action on 3-Ring Circus' part prevented them from scoring any more, making the final score 15-5.

"Jesse pitched a really good game and hit two home runs," said Guess Who coach John Eller. "He's one of the bigger reasons we've been on top."

Eller said he feels the object of the game is to win, and it should be done in the best of spirits.

"We started the season out having lots of fun and we decided to get serious about it (then) we started losing some," Eller explained. "We're out here having fun again and that's why we're winning."

On the other side of the field, the 'Circus managed to score five runs — ten short of matching Guess Who.

"We're just two teams having a good time," said 'Circus coach Mike Yule.

"We're working on base running. That's one of the areas we need to improve in since we made a few errors in this game," Yule said.

"They had really good hitters, but we managed to make some key base hits of our own when we needed them," Yule said.

"I think we're doing a great job," Yule added despite the loss.

KAILUA — Kaneohe Bay Marines and Sailors lent a helping hand to Kainalu Elementary School in Kailua, during the school's Jog-a-thon fundraiser Friday morning.

The Marine Aviation Logistics Support Element, Kaneohe, volunteers gave their time to help out with the annual event and spent time with their Adopt-a-School kids.

For the Jog-a-thon, Children took home pledge forms on which they asked friends and family members to pay a flat fee or a certain amount of money for each lap they run in the event. Proceeds of the Jog-a-thon will go toward buying new computers and playground equipment for the school, according to Jeannie Case, a parent facilitator with the Parent Community Networking Center at Kainalu Elementary.

"It's very important that we come out here so that the community can realize that we can make a positive impact off base as well as on it," said Gunnery Sgt. Ken Burton, a Quality Assurance representative with MALSEK here. "It's not just for the public relations, though — it's also a fun thing to do."

According to Case, the very presence of Marines on the campus makes a positive impact on the children's lives.

"The children are basically awestruck when the Marines come on campus," Case said. "It makes the kids feel important because a Marine is taking the time out of his day to come and help them out."

"It's fun to see the Marines come out here and cheer for us," said Cory Nemoto, a sixth grader at Kainalu Elementary School, who ran 24 laps in the event.

"The children see that the Marines are in very good shape and at the same time see that Marines are people, too," Case said. "It gives them a goal in life to shoot for."

Burton said that programs such as this one will not only impact the children's lives now, but he hopes they will influence the children later on as well.

"We form kind of a bond with them," Burton said. "In the future, they'll remember that Sailor or Marine that came out here to cheer them on and hopefully, (it will) influence them to do the same."

Fourth Force Reconnaissance Company, a unit that is often a guest at Enchanted Lake Elementary School, played host to their 4th and 5th grade students here Friday.

As part of Adopt-a-School and Drug Abuse Resistance Education, a 17-week course to teach children to stay away from drugs, 4th Force invited the children out for a presentation consisting of divers, scout swimmers and static displays featuring zodiac boats, weaponry and communications equipment.

The trip here was a way to introduce the children to alternatives to drug use and taught children about forming a career, instead of just having a job, according to Sgt. Mark Running, a reserve reconnaissance Marine who spoke to the children.

"I think things like this give the kids a perspective on what we do as the military," said Running. "It broadens their minds and opportunities in life. Maybe one day some of these children might want to join the military themselves."

"The more experience we can give kids," he continued, "the more likely they will choose a path to a career they will enjoy, instead of doing something to just make money."

The presentation Friday was just one part of three events 4th Force participated in between Friday and Tuesday, according to Staff Sgt. Samuel Reed, the DARE officer at the school and supply noncommissioned officer for 4th Force.

Monday, 4th Force set up an obstacle course at the school for a Health and Wellness Week event, and Tuesday, Reed and others from 4th Force were present for the DARE graduation.

According to DARE students, the time spent with Marines has left a positive impression on them. "It's a good experience and we learn a lot from them (Marines)," said Amber Soto, a 10-year-old 5th grader at Enchanted Lake.

"It's interesting how they (recon Marines) find out things about the enemy. It's also good they teach us we shouldn't do drugs because they (drugs) get you nowhere."

CRAFTERS INVITED

Basket weavers, tole painters, seamstresses, bakers, ceramic makers, doll designers and other hobbyists will have the opportunity to display and sell their spring collections at two craft fairs in March:

Camp Smith Spring Craft Fair, held Mar. 18 from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the installation, offers booths for $25, table, chair and table cloth included. Reservation deadline is Friday. For more information, call Camp Smith ITT Office at 477-5143.

KOWC and ASYMCA Spring Craft Fair is scheduled for Mar. 20, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at K-Bay's Mokapu Elementary School. Tables are available for $30, plus a $5 deposit. Reservations must be made by Mar. 8. For more information, call 254-6080.

NO TAPSWEEPER & MORE

You need not be the "King or Queen Pin" to throw a strike on "No Tap Sweeper Thursday" at K-Bay Lanes. This is how it works: if you knock down nine pins with the first ball of each frame, it counts as a strike. When registration opens at 8:15 every Thursday night for the popular "No Tap Sweeper" challenge, bowling enthusiasts have the option of playing just for fun or competing with everyone at the bowling center for a pool of money. The $10 entry fee for the competition pays for three games and contributes to the "Side Pots" and "Strike Pots." At the end of the three games, the highest scorer wins. Are you up for the challenge? Make a rendezvous this Thursday at K-Bay Lanes.

If you need practice, the cheapest time to learn is Monday through Thursday, when games are $1.25 and shoe rentals cost $1 all day long for active-duty servicemembers.

If bowling becomes your favorite pastime, a couple of leagues are looking to recruit new members: the new mixed leagues that play on Sunday and Wednesday nights at 6 p.m., and the Women Bowlers Traveling League that alternates play at K-Bay and Subase every Monday. This league is seeking "four-women-team" members for their upcoming tournament that starts March 22.

For more information, call K-Bay Lanes at 254-7693.

BEACH BASH '99

If the Kona winds pick up and the Northshore swells hit the Mokapu Peninsula this weekend, the RNR Surf & Ski Pyramid Rock Beach Bash '99 will get underway, transforming Pyramid Rock Beach into a premier playground for surfers from around the Island. This two-day event features teen and adult amateur body boarding and surfing competition. The showdown begins at 8 a.m. Come on out and spend a day or two at the beach. Soak up the sun, sample some world-class surfing and cheer on your favorite surfer. Plate lunches will be available to spectators, Menehune Water offers free water to all, and Xtreme Radio 104.3 will provide the entertainment and give away Xtreme t-shirts, stickers and CDs.
