Installation Reform Initiative in effect

Ist Lt. Angela Judge

Marines, Sailors and civilian employees aboard Marine Corps Base Hawaii are becoming familiar with the functions of Activity Based Costing and Business Process Reengineering as the base further embarks on its Installation Reform Initiative.

At the time of the A-76 study announcement in February, ABC and BPR were terms used to describe how the base would go about realizing cost savings in order to reinvest into Corpswide modernization projects.

It hasn't been until recently that the military and civilian workforce began their ABC and BPR formal training.

"For ABC, key base personnel have been engaged over the past 15 weeks attending training, participating in storyboarding sessions, completing data calls, and reviewing their completed models.

It's a hard, but ultimately rewarding road that gives base personnel a valuable tool to identify the costs of our activities, services and customers," said 1st Lt. Mark McDonald, base resource evaluation and analysis officer.

In March, base department representatives met to learn how to use the computer software necessary for ABC modeling.

Within the models, departments identify all the services they perform and to whom they perform them.

This data will ultimately tell the departments how much it costs them to perform their functions.

"We have just completed an outbrief with the Commanding General and are transitioning into the Activity Based Management portion of the HQMC sponsored ABC/Management evolution. Contractors from Grant Thornton are reviewing the raw data provided by the ABC model and are assisting base departments with interpreting and making decisions based on the model.

We've already seen positive results with the Finance Office and G1 department," said McDonald.

Once the modeling is complete, it will assist the base by providing a basis for the workforces' Performance Work Statements and Quality Assurance Surveillance Plans, help validate the inhouse government cost estimates and will be a part of the process that will help the base in identifying the Most Efficient Organization.

"This data will be effective as the base begins to achieve the goals intended by ABC. These are to achieve short-term savings goals, improve the visibility of cost and performance data, focus continuous business improvements on high-impact activities, provide information to support the base's A-76 study and transfer this knowledge to base personnel," said Lt. Col. Linda Gandee, base comptroller.

Business Process Reengineering uses studies such as ABC to help transform the base into a more effective and efficient organization in terms of time, cost, quality and service.

"Business Process Reengineering and Activity Based Costing are not analogous. ABC can fall into the overarching concept of BPR (ABC is used as one of a number of tools to achieve BPR). We are currently performing ABC and hope to use the ABC/M results to conduct BPR in the future," said McDonald.

Once the base determines how much it costs to perform all its present functions, BPR steps in to research ways in which the base can still provide the same services even with the cut in funds from its operating budget.

Whereas in the past when an installation is faced with a budget cut, this typically means that some of the installation's functions will he lost due to the decreasing funds.

With BPR, new approaches are used to realize savings within the base so it can continue to provide the same services it already offers.

This is where the data collected within the ABC study can be useful; while the ABC study focuses on short-term savings, the BPR will be used to ensure the base continues its approach towards efficiency and cost effectiveness.

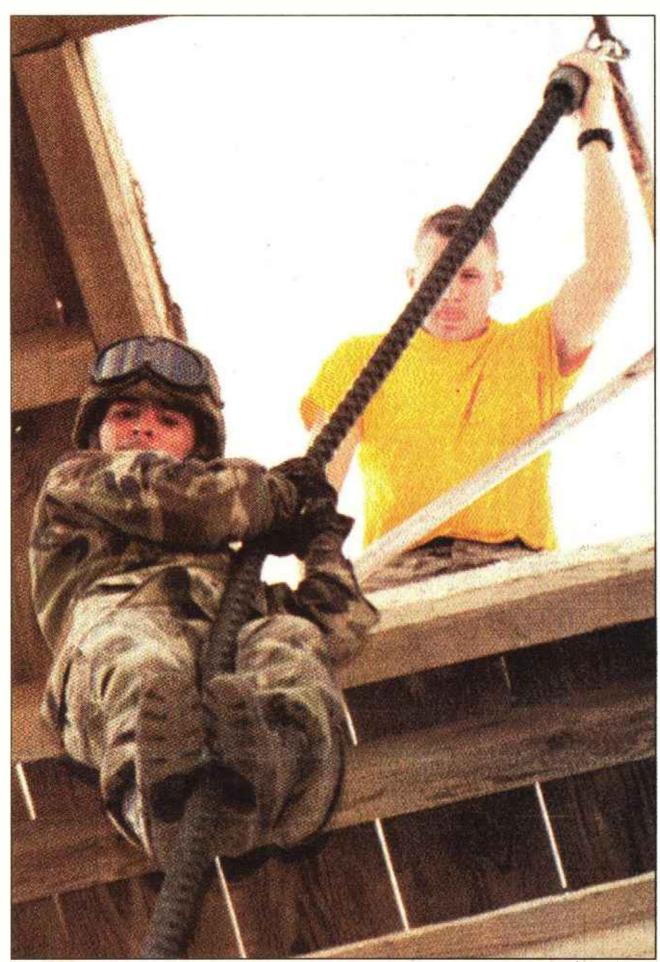

Base personnel are becoming familiar with BPR by attending a series of command sponsored classes. The command offers three of the classes in the series and is considering offering more.

The classes include BPR fundamentals, process modeling and process analysis.

"Two of the classes have been provided, but more are scheduled for the near future. Each class accommodates 25 students," said McDonald.

For more information regarding either Activity Based Costing or Business Process Reengineering, contact the Installation Reform Office at 257-1283.

Space-A travel opportunities expand

Sgt. Robert Carlson

The Air Force's Air Mobility Command recently approved Space Available flights to overseas duty stations for non-command sponsored family members.

For Marines, this change means an unaccompanied assignment to a place like Okinawa, Japan, no longer requires complete separation from family.

In the past, Space-A travel was restricted to command-sponsored family members, and anyone on an unaccompanied tour had to shell out the price of a commercial international airline ticket if they wanted to have their family visit. In addition to the price of the ticket, there was the extra burden of obtaining visas and paying international airport

Although passports and visas are still necessary with Space-A travel, family members can now take advantage of the convenience and savings of AMC's military flights.

Non-command sponsored family members travel in Category three if they are accompanied on the flight by the active duty servicemember, and the lower-priority category five if they are not.

To be considered for a flight to bers need their identification card, passport, visa, and a letter from the overseas command authorizing the trip. Currently the Korean theater and Diego Garcia areas are off limits to non-command sponsored guests. All other locations require a letter of approval that can be obtained from the unit commander through the servicemember's chain of command.

an overseas location, family mem-

The command letter must include the sponsor's name, rank, approved overseas location, contact information, length of stay authorized, and the timeframe of validity for the letter. It also must include the family members names and current residence information.

In addition to the required travel documents, sponsors must insure family members have enough money to buy a commercial ticket if Space-A travel becomes unavailable during the trip. Family members under age 18 must be accompanied by an eligible parent or guardian.

For more information about flights to and from Hawaii, call 257-0777 for MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay's Flight Clearance Section, or 449-1515 for Hickam's Passenger Terminal. Your personnel section can provide info about obtaining an authorization letter.

CAMP H.M. SMITH – Retired Gen. Alfred M. Gray, Jr., the 29th Commandant of the Marine Corps, spoke to several hundred Marines here May 23 following a two-day safety stand-

Gray addressed such topics as the current condition of the Marine Corps, military funding, the MV-22 Osprey, and education within the Corps before fielding questions from the audience.

The former Commandant commenced his speech optimistically, saying, "We're in great shape as a Corps of Marines."

Gray went on to add that the military will need America's support in the coming years.

"The American people need to debate on how much we spend for national security. That debate has to take place through the congress," Gray stated. The retired general urged that an aggressive public interest in congress could be the answer.

After the stand-down, Gray spoke with Marines including Lance Cpl. Diego R. Arangopuerta, personnel clerk, Headquarters Service Battalion, Marine Forces Pacific.

"He was open to suggestions from everyone. Even though he's retired, he's not in the shadows, he's still working for the Marine Corps," Arangopuerta explained. "He's a fresh breath of air from the old Corps."

General Alfred M. Gray, Jr., retired, speaks to Hawaii Marines.

SERGEANT MAJOR'S CORNER

"Rules of engagement" highly recommended

Sgt. Maj. Robert W. Holub Marine Forces Pacific

I don't usually do movie reviews in this column, but every once in a while a movie comes along that I think we, as Marines and Sailors, can get some food for thought from. or at least can stimulate some lively leadership discussions among us. One such film is "Rules of Engagement," and it is this film that I would like to speak to you about this week.

Using a Hollywood movie to stimulate the "gray matter" on leadership is really nothing new, so don't call the guys in the white coats to come and get me.

As a matter of fact, many of you will remember the World War II movie, "12 O'Clock High," starring Gregory Peck has been and is still being used as a training film at many of our Professional Military Education resident courses to stimulate discussions on different styles of leadership techniques. The film "Rules of Engagement" is no different.

Now, before I go any further, you need to understand that this movie is a work of fiction. and first off, you need to take the film for what it was intended for - a piece of entertainment. However, the fact that the subject of this film deals with our core values of "Honor, Courage and Commitment" makes it a sure winner to stimulate conversation.

Aside from really enjoying the movie myself, I think Marines and Sailors should see it because of who wrote the screenplay. Let me explain.

While I was in Washington a few weeks ago with the commanding general, he and I had the opportunity to view a special screening of the film as guests of the man who wrote the screenplay. The writer in this case is no "Hollywood warrior wannabe," but none other than the former Secretary of the Navy, the Honorable James Webb.

For those of you who don't know of whom I am speaking, former Secretary Webb was a Marine who fought in Vietnam in the late 60's. While there, he was wounded in battle and received the Navy Cross, our nation's second highest decoration for heroism medically retired from the Corps due to the wounds he received, and then went on to a successful career as a lawyer and writer working in Washington before becoming Secretary of the Navy.

Eventually, resigned his position due to differences of opinion with the Secretary of Defense

Holub over some cuts in the Naval Service he would not, and could not,

He is a deeply principled man who does not take any guff from anyone who would sell their honor for any price, or compromise their

I have read several of his books in the past, and one of them, "Fields of Fire," is on the Commandant's reading list.

My wife and I had the pleasure of meeting him here in Hawaii a few months ago, and I was flattered that he remembered me when I met him again in Washington.

He is a Marine in every sense of the word, and you can sense his deep love and respect for our Corps, the Naval Service and the core values we live by.

Before the film was shown, Secretary Webb gave a brief introduction of the screenplay he wrote, and what brought about the story line.

He told us while the film is a work of fiction, three distinct incidents in his life gave him the main ideas of the story.

The first was his experience in Vietnam as a platoon commander. The second was as a lawyer when he was defending a Marine in court who was accused of war crimes. Lastly was his experience as Secretary of the Navy. hammering out rules of engagement for our nation's servicemembers during the first shooting war in the Gulf in the mid 1980s.

Now, without giving away too much of the plot, it involves a Marine Expeditionary Unit commander who is sent to do a Non-combatant Evacuation Operation in a Middle Eastern country. The NEO turns non-permissive, and some people who are members of what seems to be a group of innocent civilians are killed on the MEU commander's order at the U.S.

The MEU commander, a Marine colonel, is sent to face a general court-martial where he chooses to be defended by an old friend, a Marine lawyer played by Tommy Lee Jones. The rest of the story deals with the trial and the complexities of the rules of engagement we routinely operate under anywhere in the world that finds the Corps on watch.

I think the film does a great job of portraying us — in that it does not have any of the usual stereotypes Hollywood is famous for when portraying Marines on film.

Happily, you won't see a 2nd Lieutenant in the film who can't find his butt with both hands or wilts under the strain of command. Nor will you see the foul-mouthed, cigarchewing, all-knowing sergeant who takes charge when the lieutenant falls to pieces.

You will, however, see a lot of Marines you may know who acted as extras in the film and really look as though they had a good time

But remember, after all it is just a movie, and hopefully would never happen in real life. At least I would hope so. Semper Fi.

Know your TRICARE coverage requirements

Tricare Operations, Queens Hospital

If you or your family have other health insurance with an HMO and plan to use TRICARE, please read this important information to avoid paying higher costs for care. If you have other health insurance, federal law requires that TRICARE only pay after the other insurance is used. Only Medicaid and TRICARE supplemental plans are exempted from this rule.

If you have health insurance with an HMO and wish to use TRICARE, be sure that the providers you use are available through both your HMO and TRICARE. By doing so, you will avoid paying costly health care bills. You must know what the coverage requirements and limitations are for both your HMO and TRICARE.

If your other insurance is an HMO and you choose to see a provider outside your HMO plan. under federal law, TRICARE cannot cover your charges and the provider can bill you for the entire amount. HMOs limit their coverage to a panel of providers and will only pay if you see one of the providers in the HMOs' panel.

TRICARE will pay secondary to an HMO in certain instances, such as when the service is not a benefit of the HMO, but is a benefit of TRICARE. Examples of such situations include mental health care or prescription coverage.

Also, in additional news, if you are moving out of town, transferring, sending a child to college, or retiring, take TRICARE with you. Enrollment portability will help you whether your move is short-term or long-term. There is no limit on the number of transfers for active duty family members.

Before you move, stop by your local TRICARE service center or phone (800) 242-6788 for advice about transferring your enrollment. Not all areas offer TRICARE Prime, so check with your local TRICARE service center to see what options you will have in your new area.

Don't disenroll before you leave. Transfer your TRICARE Prime enrollment when you arrive at your new home.

Once you reach your new location, contact the nearest TRICARE or military treatment facility to select a new primary care manager and to complete an enrollment application.

This way, there will be no break in your health care coverage when you move. Your primary care manager provides your health care and arranges for speciality care as needed. Phone (800) 242-6788 or find additional information online by visiting www.fhfs.com or www.tricare.osd.mil.

Oahu Water Board

The Honolulu Board of Water Supply has issued an appeal to the public for voluntary water conservation to Oahu consumers.

The low rainfall this past winter has raised concerns about the impact on Oahu's water recharge areas. Consumers are asked to control their water use.

The Power of the Vote

Voting, just like good manners, is a practice that is seldom exercised. If you're not located in your state, you can vote absentee. You may acquire an absentee ballot request form by logging on to www.fvap.ncr.gov or visiting the Legal Services Center, Kaneohe Bay. This is not only for military members, but also for family members. Election day is November 7.

MCBH sewer system

All materials entering the MCBH sanitary sewer system via plumbing fixtures (toilets, basins, sinks, floor drains, oil water separators, etc...), must meet the requirements outlines in the sewer use ordnance. Prohibited materials include such things as flammables, toxic pollutants, and oil. Oil includes any petroleum product or organic solvent. It does not include animal or vegetable products. If you have questions regarding the suitability of a product, please phone Jeff Larson at the Environmental Department at 257-6920, extension 234.

Base Veterinary Facility

The hours of operation for the Kaneohe Marine Corps Base Veterinary Treatment Facility are Monday, Thursday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Tuesday and Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. for over the counter sales. Scheduled appointments occur only on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. The facility is closed on the last working day of every month for inventory.

Volunteers Needed for NMCRs

Volunteering at your local Navy Marine Corps Relief office can increase your self esteem and self confidence as you grow professionally. You can acquire marketable skills in interviewing clients, public relations, retail sales management, working with computers, and more. The society routinely attracts people with compassion and commitments to be of service. For more information, phone the Kaneohe branch office at 254-1327.

June's Focus is Domestic Violence Awareness

Are You Being Abused?

Domestic violence is a pattern of physical, sexual, verbal and psychological behavior, which adults or adolescents use against their intimate partners.

Does the Person You Live With:

- Embarrass you with bad names and put-downs? Control what you do, who you see or talk to, or where you go?
- Take your money or refuse to give you money?
- Make all of the decisions?
- Tell you that you are a bad parent or threaten to take away or hurt your children? Act like the abuse is no big deal, it's your fault or even deny doing it?
- Destroy your property or threaten to kill your pets?
- Intimidate you with guns, knives or other weapons?
- Shove you, slap you or hit you?
- Force you to drop charges? Threaten to commit suicide?
- Threaten to kill you?

Safety Measures If You Are In An Abusive Relationship:

- 1. Memorize your family and friends phone numbers and teach your children how to dial 911.
- 2. Keep important information about domestic violence in a safe place away from your batterer.
- 3. If you can, open your own bank account.
- 4. Stay in touch with your friends and neighbors. Don't cut yourself off from others.
- 5. Rehearse an escape plan.
- 6. Keep enough coins with you at all times for a payphone.
- 7. Leave a set of car keys, extra money, a change of clothes and copies of important documents with a friend or relative.

Confidence and teamwork is built on the Boondocker Tower

Sgt. Richard W. Holtgraver Jr.

Leaning over the edge of the 60foot rappelling tower at the Boondocker area and staring down the wall at the ground can rattle the nerves of even the hardest of Leathernecks.

Last week a platoon from Combat Service Support Group 3, Maintenance Co. experienced that feeling of vertigo a person gets when they reach the top and look over the edge of the tower during rappelling and fast rope training.

Rappelling and fast roping builds confidence and prepares Marines for the experience of exiting a helicopter dozens of feet over an objective or scaling a battle field obstacle, according to Sgt. Neil J. Chandler, a meteorology technician for Maintenance

"We don't get the opportunity to do this type of training very often, and a lot of our Marines haven't done this since bootcamp," said Chandler. "Its something we wanted to do and we were able to squeeze it into the training schedule."

Sometimes the initial fear of getting over the edge of the tower is the largest obstacle Marines need to conquer in this type of training he added.

"A lot of guys seem kind of scared, but once they do it they feel comfortable with it," said Pfc. Dominic P. Alfaro, a telephone switchboard repairman for Maintenance Co. "(Rappelling) builds up confidence, increases people's morales and it's fun training.'

Ensuring the safety of the Marines conducting the rappelling and fast rope training at the Boondocker Tower are the Helicopter Rope Suspension Training instructors from Regimental Schools.

"A lot of units use rappelling to motivate their Marines by doing something different for training," informed Sgt. Christopher B. Gaulter, an HRST, close-combat and infantry squad leader instructor for Regimental Schools.

Going down the wall of the tower is not the only skill Marines can execute at the Tower.

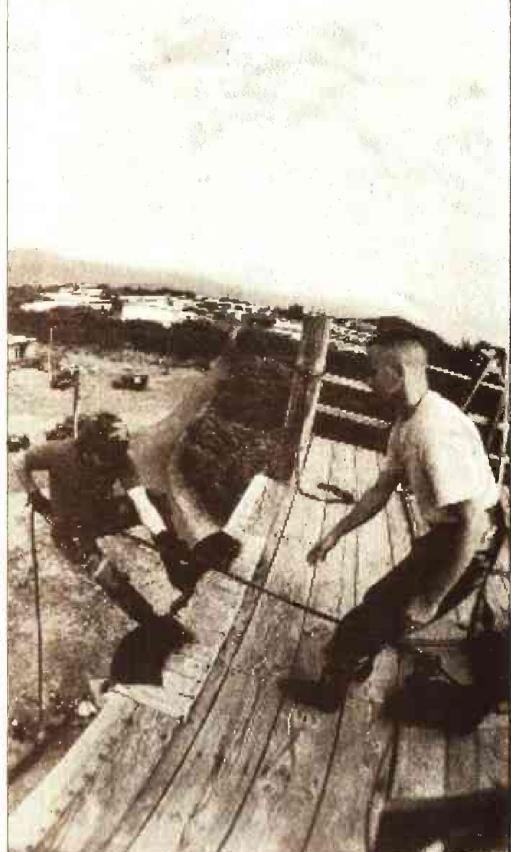

Fast roping is another way to get to the ground fast and doesn't have the safety of a harness or a wall to lean against and most closely represents exiting a helicopter while it hovers above the ground. Marines must rely on braking with the rope between their feet to slow their descent.

As the morning progressed, everyone grew more confident with the training and many Marines turned right back around and went back to the top of the tower after coming Encouragement from peers also grew as the day wore on. Marines on the ground often shouted "You can do it! Use your hand brake!" or "That's it, good job! Way to go!" The support from fellow Marines inspired those who were not comfortable with the exercise.

"You see Marines cheering those people on who are having trouble, and pointing out what they're doing wrong," said Gaulter. "It definitely builds teamwork within the unit."

Units that are interested in rappelling and fast rope training at the Boondocker Tower can call Regimental Schools at 257-1337.

Sgt. Christopher B. Gaulter, an HRST, close-combat and infantry squad leader instructor for Regimental Schools, ensures the safety of a Marine from CSSG-3 going over the edge of the rappelling tower.

Memorial Day remembrance

A 75mm "Pack" howitzer from 1st Battalion 12th Marines Charlie Battery is fired during a 21-gun salute at the Hawaii State Veterans Cemetery in Kaneohe on Memorial Day. The salute was part of the 2000 Hawaii Governor's Memorial Day Ceremony and marks the 50th anniversary of the beginning of American involvement in the Korean War. Governor Benjamin J. Cayetano spoke to a crowd of about 300 people and stressed the importance of remembering those who served during "The Forgotten War"

Lance Cpl. Justin Von Der Heyde, a 2/3 radio operator, wipes out during an exercise at Marine Corps Training Area Bellows last week. Students wear helmets, gloves and shin guards to protect them from injury.

Loosing control is what it is all about, and Cpl. Jacob A. Poma, 2/3 Communication Co. radio operator, knows that in order to learn how to ride a motorcycle you need to fall down a couple of times. Here, Poma gets a little air between him and the bike during a wipeout. Don't worry, it looks more painful than it actually is.

Tactical motorcycle course provides exciting training

Sgt. Richard W. Holtgraver Jr.

Marines from 2nd Bn., 3rd Marines took communicating to the extreme, daredevil style, during the Regimental School's Tactical Motorcycle Course.

Last week five Marines from 2/3 Communications Co. left their radios behind and went to Marine Corps Training Area Bellows for three days of the advanced off-road skills training.

The Tactical Motorcycle Course doesn't require that the Marines participating have motocross experience, because by the time they graduate these motorcycle operators will have enough knowledge of riding to qualify for the American Motocross Association.

Taking Marines who have never been on a motorcycle and transforming them into M1030 motorcycle riding experts is the job of the TMC chief instructor Cpl. William J. Bryant.

Students find out that riding tactical Kawasaki 250cc motorcycles through sand, woods and steep hills is not as easy as looks.

Flying through the air and falling regularly is part of the learning process, even for Marines who have experience riding a motorcycle through harsh terrain.

"I've been riding motorcycles for years," said Cpl. Jacob A. Poma, 2/3 Communication Co. radio operator. "I'm from Louisiana and I'm used to riding in dirt and swamp areas, not on sand and hills. I thought I knew how to ride and when I came here it taught me things I didn't realize I needed to learn."

"I like taking someone who doesn't know anything about motorcycles and building their confidence to the point they can ride on any terrain," said Bryant. "The course is designed in four levels and when you graduate from one level to the next, the confidence in your riding skills builds.

Poma also noticed a change in his classmates as the two week course progressed.

At the beginning of the motorcycle course, Marines who were timid and nervous riding the motorcycles soon became confident and started to enjoy themselves, noted Poma.

Repeating skills is the key to learning how to ride a motorcycle. according to Bryant.

Bryant had the Marines practice going up one curved hill for almost an hour and a half until he was confident that the students understood the mechanics of performing the simple maneuver

JCPenney

Ala Moana Shopping Center

946-2020

"The course begins with the students just pushing the bikes and getting familiar with the controls," informed Bryant. "Nine days later they are out here going over different terrains and jumping with their motorcycles. They learn everything (I can teach them about riding) in just ten days.

Marines will need to get comfortable with their riding skills on the old 250's, because the unit will be receiving the new, more powerful Kawasaki 650's soon.

"Motorcycle operators are basically used for couriers, so right now all the Marines I have in the class are (in communications)," said Bryant. "Couriers take messages that can't be passed through the radio from Command Post to Command Post."

The Tactical Motorcycle Course isn't all about hard work, the students actually have a lot of fun according to Poma.

"It is definitely a great experience," said Poma. "It gives Marines a lot of morale, because it's a fun course. If any Marine gets the chance to take this course, I would definitely recommend it."

21 Asian American World War II Vets to Get Medal of Honor

Rudi Williams

American Force Press Service

WASHINGTON D.C. -Twenty-one Asian American World War II heroes are scheduled to have their wartime Distinguished Service Crosses upgraded to Medals of Honor during White House ceremonies on June 21.

Seven of the 21 recipients are still living. They are: Rudolph B. Davila of Vista, Calif.; Barney F. Hajiro of Waipahu, Hawaii; Shizuya Hayashi of Pearl City, Hawaii; U.S. Sen. Daniel Inouye of Honolulu, Hawaii; Yeiki Kobashigawa of Hawaii (city not available); Yukio Okutsu of Hilo, Hawaii; and George T. Sakato of Denver.

The Distinguished Service Cross was conferred on 11 of the heroes posthumously. remaining three have died since the war.

President Clinton approved the Army's recommendations for the upgrades on May 12. Nineteen of the 21 veterans were members of the all-Japanese 100th Infantry Battalion or 442nd Regimental Combat Team — for their size, among the most highly decorated units in U.S. military history.

The 100th, comprised mostly of Japanese American National Guardsmen from Hawaii, was the first all-Japanese American combat unit. While the 442nd was being formed in 1943, the 100th Battalion was already fighting in Italy. The 100th merged into the 442nd in 1944 and became the regiment's first battalion though it retained its unit designation.

The upgrading of the medals stems from efforts by Senator Daniel Akaka of Hawaii, who authored the provision of the 1996 Defense Authorization Act mandating a review of the service records of Asian Pacific Americans who received the Distinguished Service Cross.

"The number of nominations made by the Army and approved by the president underscores the reason I sought this review: to dispel any doubt about discrimination in the process of awarding the Medal of Honor," Akaka said.

He noted that the 100th and 442nd fought with incredible courage and bravery in Italy and France, well befitting the unit motto, "Go for Broke!" --Hawaiian slang for "shoot the works." Its members earned more than 18,000 individual decorations, including one wartime Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Crosses, 9,486 Purple Hearts and seven Presidential Unit Citations, the nation's top award for combat

"Unfortunately, Asian Pacific Americans were not accorded full consideration for the Medal of Honor at the time of their service," said Akaka, who praised the Army and Secretary of the Army, Louis Caldera for a "tremendous job conducting" the records review.

"A prevailing climate of racial prejudice against Asian Pacific Americans during World War II precluded this basic fairness, the most egregious example being the internment of 120,000 Japanese Americans," Akaka said. "The bias, discrimination and hysteria of that time unfortunately had an impact on the decision to award the military's highest honor to Asian and Pacific Islanders."

Many of the Japanese Americans who served in the 442nd volunteered from internment camps, where their families had been relocated at the outbreak

The 100th and 442nd fought in eight major campaigns in Italy, France and Germany, including battles at Monte Cassino. Anzio and Biffontaine.

The best-known of the 21 heroes is Inouye.

"I am deeply grateful to my nation for this extraordinary award," he said in a brief statement after learning he had been for the selected nation's highest award for valor. "The making of a man involves many mentors. If I did well, much of the credit should go to my parents, grandparents and the gallant men of my platoon. This is their medal. I will receive it on their behalf."

According to his Senate biography, Army Sgt. Inouye "slogged through nearly three bloody months of the Rome-Arno campaign with the U.S. Fifth Army and established himself as an outstanding patrol leader with the Go-For-Broke Regiment."

Inouye's unit shifted from Italy to Vosges Mountains in France and "spent two of the bloodiest weeks of the war rescuing 'the Lost Battalion,' the 1st Battalion, 141st Infantry Regiment, of the Texas heroism while leading his platoon National Guard, which was surrounded by German forces," according to his biography.

The Japanese American unit sustained more than 800 casualties to rescue 211 Texans. The rescue is listed in the Army annals as one of the most significant military battles of the century.

"Inouye lost 10 pounds, became a platoon leader and earned the Bronze Star Medal and a battlefield commission as a second lieutenant," the bio states.

The regiment went back to Italy, and Inouye was cited for out his back and barely missed his spine, he continued to lead the platoon and advanced alone against a machine gun nest that had pinned down his men.

"He tossed two hand grenades with devastating effect before his right arm was shattered by a German rifle grenade at close range," according to the senatorial bio. "Inouye threw his last grenade with his left hand, attacked with a submachine gun captain with a Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest award for military valor, Bronze Star Medal, Purple Heart with oak leaf cluster and 12 other medals and citations.

He became Hawaii's first congressman in 1959 when he was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives. Inouye, a native of Honolulu, was re-elected to a full term in 1960 and won election to the U.S. Senate in 1962.

A 22nd Medal of Honor was favorably considered for another Japanese American, James Okubo, under a separate provision of the law. The decoration can't be formally approved, however, until Congress waives the statutory time restriction in his specific case, Army officials noted. A former Army medic, Okubo was originally recommended for the Medal of Honor but his command gave him the Silver Star Medal in the mistaken belief that was the highest award

"Go For Broke" lives duty, honor, country

Rudi Williams
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON D.C. -They were cold, wet, weary and battle-scarred. Yet that didn't stop the men with names like Hayashi, Inouye, Kobashigawa, Okutsu, Sakato and Kuwayama from answering the call Oct. 27, 1944, to rescue a battalion surrounded by German forces. For the next three days, their unit, the all-Japanese-American 442nd Regimental Combat Team, would fight in dense woods, heavy fog and freezing temperatures near Bruyeres, France, and prove their motto "Go for Broke!" wasn't mere words. "Go for Broke" is Hawaiian slang for "shoot the

The Germans cut off the Texas National Guard 1st Battalion, 141st Infantry Regiment in the Vosges Mountains on Oct. 24. The 442nd was ordered in after the enemy had repelled repeated rescue tries by the 141st's other two battalions.

Nearly half the men in the Japanese American unit would be dead or wounded three days later with the "Lost Battalion" still isolated.

"Then, something happened in the 442nd," according to historians at the Army Center for Military History in Washington. "By ones and twos, almost spontaneously and without orders, the men got to their feet and, with a kind of universal anger, moved toward the enemy position. Bitter hand-to-hand combat ensued as the Americans fought from one fortified position to the next. Finally, the enemy broke in disorder."

"The Lost Battalion" rescue is recorded in U.S. military annals as one of the great ground battles of World War II. The regiment relieved the 211 besieged Texans on Oct. 30, and had gone for broke to do it: It suffered more than 800 combat casualties.

Thankful members of the 141st gave their rescuers a plaque that read, "With deep sincerity and utmost appreciation for the gallant fight to effect our rescue after we'd been isolated for seven days."

on May 12.

All the while the men fought, many of their parents and relatives were being held behind barbed wire in isolated detention camps in the United States.

Following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, on Dec. 7, 1941, more than 110,000 Americans of Japanese ancestry were uprooted from their homes on the West Coast and incarcerated in "relocation centers." Accounts of the rampant racism that fueled the "evacuation" have The "Lost Battalion" is just come to light since the war;

West Coast Japanese Americans didn't fare as well. They weren't allowed to serve in the armed forces even if they had been serving when the war started or they were honorably discharged veterans. A manpower shortage in 1943 changed that. The War Department reversed itself and sent recruiters to internment camps seeking volunteers for a new unit — the 442nd Regimental Combat Team.

While the 442nd Regimental Combat Team trained at Camp Shelby, Miss., the 100th Infantry Battalion was establishing a reputation as a tough combat outfit in Italy. It entered combat in September 1943 and, by the time the 442nd landed at Naples in May 1944, the 100th had earned the nickname "Purple Heart Battalion" because of the heavy number of casualties it had suffered at Monte Cassino and Anzio.

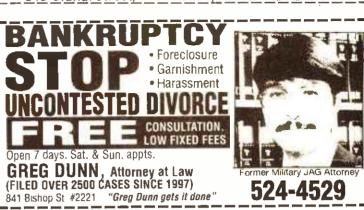

The unit's only wartime Medal of Honor recipient was Pfc. Sadao S. Munemori of the 100th Battalion's Company A. He received the decoration posthumously for valor near Seravezza, Italy, on April 5, Munemori, a Los Angeles native, "fought with gallantry and intrepidity when his unit was pinned down by grazing fire from the enemy's strong mountain defense and command of the squad devolved on him with the wounding of its regular leader," his citation states.

He knocked out two machine guns by dodging direct fire in a one- man frontal grenade attack. Then, "withdrawing under murderous fire and showers of grenades from other enemy emplacements, he had nearly reached a shell crater occupied by two of his men when an unexploded grenade bounced on his helmet and rolled toward his helpless comrades. He arose into the withering fire, dived for the missile and smothered its blast with his body," the citation said.

With headquarters at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, the 442nd and 100th are the only remaining infantry units in the Army Reserve force structure. Under the command of the 9th Regional Support Command, the unit's wartime mission is to be one of the maneuver battalions of the 29th Separate Infantry Brigade, Hawaii Army National Guard.

Unit deployment tests company and platoon skills

2nd Lt. Dan McSweeney

MARINE CORPS BASE

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. "Close attention to detail can make everything you do a success," said Capt. C.J. Williams, of Port Huron, Mich.

With those words he conveyed the essence of what deploying to Okinawa for six months has proven to him. As commander of Company L. 3rd Battalion, 2nd Marine Regiment, 2nd Marine Division, Williams has an important perspective on the matter.

The battalion is participating in the Marine Corps' Unit Deployment Program, which augments the Okinawa-based 3rd Marine Division with infantry battalions from stateside East and West Coast bases and Hawaii. The program is ongoing: New battalions arrive on Okinawa every six months to relieve outgo-

"The experience of leading a company of Marines is fantastic," he said. "It's one of the best things you can do in life." Still, he conceded, it is an experience fraught with challenges and - at times — downright problems.

Leading Marines in garrison in the United States is one thing. During a deployment, however, it becomes quite a different matter.

Daily issues become potentially more serious and far-reaching for Marines serving in foreign countries

On the tactical level, this led to former Marine Commandant Gen Charles Krulak's "Strategic Corporal" concept. Basically, the idea is that young Marine noncommissioned officers can have a direct effect on international policies and relations because of the political intricacies and media realities surrounding today's military opera-

Outside of tactical issues, there are plenty of other concerns Marine commanders at the company and platoon levels must balance in ensuring the success of their units and individual Marines. As always, the undercurrent of mission accomplishment is felt acutely.

"During deployments, there's an awesome sense of responsibility felt by commanders," said Williams. "This is outweighed only by the great feeling of satisfaction that comes from accomplishing your mission."

With six weeks left before the unit returns to Camp Lejeune, Williams has directed his platoon commanders to conduct training at their own discretion at Okinawa's Jungle Warfare Training Center.

JWTC is known for the thickness of its vegetation, for banana spiders the size of Michael Jordan's hand, and for unpredictably rough terrain, the crossing of which requires the regular use of ropes. It's slow going to say the least.

Lima Company's 2d Platoon Commander 2ndLt Tad Douglas. of Waynesville, N.C., has taken Williams' broad directive and decided that his Marines will conduct three days of patrolling exercises in the jungle.

"One of my main objectives during this exercise is to have the squad leaders develop their subordinates' leadership skills so that our SOPs are well established," said Douglas.

With summertime approaching, many of the Marines in 2d Platoon will be transferring to new duty stations, while some will be leaving the Corps for civilian life.

"We need to ensure that a sense of continuity is established in our operations," said Douglas. "That's really important for us." Douglas also views this exercise as a way of developing his Marines' field skills and tactical knowledge.

"A lot of my Marines will be taking over their respective squads after we get back to Lejeune," he said.

As is par for the course, Douglas' more seasoned noncommissioned officers play a significant role in helping things run smoothly in the platoon.

Enter Sgt Tyler O'Neel, a Minneapolis native with more than three years in the Corps, who is the acting platoon sergeant.

"One of our main concerns is keeping everyone healthy and in the game," said O'Neel, referring to the rigorous training schedule and rugged terrain the unit has come to know intimately.

"During platoon-level training, you can work your Marines in the areas that you directly see they need help in," he said, shedding light on one of the Corps' key principles: decentralization. Overall, the system seems to work. Training is conducted, skills are learned and improved, and morale is bolstered during the Williams, the company commander, explains this by describing one of the more interesting dynamics of Marine deployments. In some ways, it's a kind of alchemy.

"You've got to keep your Marines focused on the mission, vice the separation from home," he said. "If you can do that, you both alleviate bad morale and increase unit effectiveness." That leaves a basic question: How do you do it?

"It's not that hard in the Marine Corps, given our operational tempo," said Williams. "We just stay busy."

Annual attraction draws hundreds

Story and Photos by Cpl. David Salazar Lifestyles Editor

Honolulu — A distinct scent hovered in the Honolulu air, luring hundreds from across the island to a gigantic wheel — the epicenter from which the scent seemed to emit.

The scent, a mixture of the smell of corn dogs, cotton candy, and popcorn, heralded the opening of the 50th State Fair in the lower Halawa (parking) lot at Aloha Stadium, just off

Salt Lake Boulevard.

The crowds partook in conventional carnival favorites such as rides, food, game booths and a

The fair is also host to special attractions, including the Sea Lion Splash Show, Welde's Big Bear Show, and concerts featuring the Backstreet Boyz and Sync'n, traveling performers who will pay tribute to the Backstreet Boys and 'N Sync, respectively. Each show is free with fair admission.

Information and food booths are also scattered throughout the fairgrounds offering passersby everything from long distance telephone service to fried, sugar-coated lumps of dough called malasadas.

The fair is open weekdays from 6 p.m. to midnight, weekends from noon to midnight.

Children 3 years old and under are free, 4 to 11 year-olds are $1.50, and 12 and older are $2 between noon and 6 p.m. and $3 thereafter.

Although no military discounts are offered, servicemembers and their families can take advantage of the fair's "Pepsi Days." Admission is only 50 cents when an empty Pepsi cola can is presented to the admission

"Pepsi Days" are scheduled for the next three Sundays (June 4, 11 and 18.) Aloha stadium is located near Camp H.M. Smith, just off the H-1 West on Salt Lake

The 50th State Fair is scheduled to conclude June 18. The distinct scent is also scheduled to depart the stadium area until next year.

Carnival favorite, The Zipper, operates in full force on the opening day of the 50th State Fair Friday.

Another carnival favorite, the "Tilt-o-whirl," uses its torque force to send fair-goers flying through the air.

Fair-goers can try their luck at a myriad of game booths.

One of this year's special attractions, Welde's Big Bear Show, offers a peak at its "grizzly" stars in their off time.

Linda Parker addresses L.I.N.K.S. mentor training graduates during their graduation ceremony Thursday. The new mentors underwent training to prepare them to help spouses new to the military.

L.I.N.K.S. volunteers aid spouses

Cpi. Charles E. Moore

It's the day she's been waiting for all her life.

She can hardly contain her excitement as she stands at the altar in her long, white flowing gown. Tears of joy flood down her face. Her Marine, dressed to the nines in uniform, gently kisses her. and they turn to run down the church aisle, hand in hand.

Thoughts of her new life with the man she loves fills her head. They are interrupted as the best man taps her with his sword and says, "Welcome to the Corps."

For some new spouses, this can be an alarming statement. By saying, "I do," they are thrust into marriage and the Marine lifestyle, all at the same time.

This would be a hard transition if it weren't for the volunteers at Lifestyle, Insights. Networking. Knowledge, Skills. The volunteers are spouses who have been around a little and know what it's like to be married to the military. They, in turn, give the new spouses some insight into the Marine Corps.

"It's been compared to a spouse boot camp," said Mary Montgomery, a co-team leader. "This helps them to know a little more about their spouse's life.

The program is made possible by spouses who volunteer their time to help make the transition easier. They do this through a mentor system, and each mentor is specially trained to help the new spouses. The number of mentors grew Thursday as another class of trainees graduated. This group of mentors was trained by a Headquarters Marine Corps Team Concept mentor training team. The concept is being tested to standardize L.I.N.K.S. programs throughout the Marine Corps.

The spouses received their training either over three days or four nights, totaling 14 hours. The training focuses on how to teach the new spouses what they need to know and also how to get them to open up for discussions, said Casey Stolsig, one of the graduates. Once the training is completed, the new mentors decide what the next step is going to be.

"They can volunteer as little or as much as they want," Montgomery said. "We're here to give them the information and the opportunity to volunteer.

Once a mentor is trained, they can pick their hours to fit around their schedule. This allows them to volunteer as much as they want. 'I'll probably mentor sessions throughout the summer," Stolsig said. "I think it's a real big privilege.

Mentor training sessions are held the third week of every month. Interested volunteers can call 254-6237 for more information.

Hale Koa Hotel offers health club membership

Hale Koa Hotel

More and more people are choosing active vacations, a reflection of today's healthier and increasingly active lifestyles. At the Hale Koa Hotel, it isn't just vacationing guests who seek out the stateof-the art health club, but on-island residents who take advantage of this jewel of a club located at the country's finest military resort.

Tucked away on 72 lush acres of beachfront property. THE POINT Health Club at the Hale Koa Hotel is a gleaming facility, boasting state-of-theart weight machines, the latest cardiovascular equipment, massage therapists, personal trainers, sauna, steam room and a vigorous daily class schedule. A workout seems less of a chore when it is a power walk on a sandy beach or a water aerobics class in the open ocean.

Outdoors, the property offers oceanside racquetball and sand volleyball courts, as well as tennis courts and a jogging path marked by VitaCourse 2000 fitness stations. Health club users also have access to the adults-only Maile Pool and Jacuzzi.

"In addition to an unbeatable location, we want to provide an unbeatable atmosphere. For our guests and members, we are here to create an unintimidating, friendly environment where anyone at any fitness level feels comfortable working toward their fitness goals," stated Bryan Huckabee, Director of Parks and Recreation. "It is not unusual to open the doors on any given morning to enthusiastic retirees heading for the water aerobics class and active duty soldiers on TDY asking for the free weights. We have something for every-

An easy-to-use, 11-station Life Fitness electronic resistance circuit ensures that anyone can get a safe, yet challenging workout, whether they are a first-time weight trainer or an experienced bodybuilder. Certified personal trainers are available by appointment to provide instruction on proper form and use of the machines, or custom-design a new workout to meet specific fitness goals.

Access to THE POINT is complimentary for hotel guests. For other than hotel guests, access may be gained with a health club membership or by day-pass. A day-pass is offered to eligible users for $8 per day. For those who would like the flexibility of using the health club occasionally, a book of ten day passes may be purchased for $50, making each visit to THE POINT only $5.

Though many think only active duty military are eligible for membership, there are actually many others who are welcome. As part of an Armed Forces Recreation Center. THE POINT extends membership to members of the Reserve and National Guard, Department of Defense civilian employees, and dependents. Members of military organizations such as AFA, AUSA. Navy League and Friends of Hickam are also eligible, on a space-available basis. Memberships are $35 per month and are offered on a month-to-month basis.

'Our members are a loyal, fun-loving group. Both the staff and the clientele are here because they want to be. We are all doing something we strongly believe in, for our health and well-being. And that can't help but show," said Kelley Hupp, Recreation Manager.

Health club benefits include raised wood lockers, unlimited towel service, shower facilities and a complete line of grooming amenities, including soap, shampoo, conditioner and body lotion. In addition to the circuit equipment, audio/visual entertainment, and court reservation privileges, members are also enjoying the recently-added Stair Climber 4600 PT by Stair Master, 9500 HR Cross Trainers from Life Fitness. 9500 HR Life Cycle. by Life Fitness, and the 9500 HR Treadmill by Life Fitness, all equipped with heart rate sensors. A much-requested Leg Press/Call Machine by Life Fitness is also new to the club.

For a complimentary tour of the health club or to discuss membership, visit THE POINT at 2055 Kalia Road in Waikiki

The health club is located lobby level in the Maile Tower. Learn more at www.halekoa.com opcall 808-955-9155.

By Debbie Aisoff, MCCS Consumer Affairs

Join Marine Corps Community Services and welcome summer with open arms! This is the perfect time to prepare an outdoor itinerary that will excite the entire family. With plenty of both outdoor and indoor activities, the hardest part is choosing.

Make a Summer Splash!

Don't put it off any longer-dip into the Hawaiian aquamarine waters and learn to swim! Summer swim lessons begin Tuesday. Registration for Water babies, Preschool, Levels 1 – 7 and Adult Swim is being accepted at the Base Pool. All sessions are $25, which include 8 classes held Tuesday - Friday for two weeks. To determine your level, or for more information, call the Base Pool at 254-7655. Come on—"water" you waiting for?

Let's Set Sail...

How many times have you scanned the baby jade water of Kaneohe Bay and stared at those regal sail boats wishing you were there? Stop fantasizing and start living! Both adult and junior sailing lessons are offered at the Base Marina this summer. Adult evening courses are scheduled Monday - Friday from 5 - 7:30 p.m. throughout the summer months. Cost of the course starts at $69 (depending on rank). Kids can get in on the action as well. Junior Basic Sailing Classes for ages 8 – 18 begin June 12. For $99, they'll learn basic sailing techniques during a two-week, Monday - Friday session. To register or for additional information, call the Base Marina at 254-

Summer Sun-sations

We all agree that summer is the season to unwind and relax. But that doesn't mean simply "veg" for three months! Make sure your keiki does something safe and stimulating with adult supervision this summer. Whether you're in need of childcare because you work or you would like your child to meet some new friends and go on exciting excursions this summer, Youth Activities' Summer Sunsations is a sound solution. Your keiki will be busy with water activities, sports, arts-n-crafts, field trips and more! Full and half-day programs are offered. Children ages 5 (who must have completed kindergarten) – 6th grade are eligible. Space is limited so make your reservations today! Call Youth Activities at 254-7612.

Is the Stork arriving shortly?

If you're expecting a little bundle of joy soon, then you're probably consumed with planning budgets, preparing the house and nursery. Whew—that takes a lot of cash! How appealing does something for FREE sound? Because no child comes with a set of instructions, the New Parent Support Program, part of Personal Services, has designed "Mom's Basic Training & Dad's Baby Boot Camp." These two-day sessions include guidance encompassing everything from "Third Trimester Birth Preparation" to "Infant Care." Not only will you receive excellent advice from a trained instructor, but you'll also meet other couples. Classes are held in Bldg. 216 from 8:30 a.m. 4:30 p.m.. The next two classes are scheduled for June 6 & 7 and July 11 & 12th. Call 257-8803 soon for a reservation, as seating is

K-Bay teen's voice heard at the Pentagon

Sgt. Richard W. Holtgraver, Jr.

One teenage representative from MCB Hawaii was chosen by her peers to speak on the behalf of youths for Marine Corps bases in Hawaii at the Marine Corps 2000 Teen Summit in Washington,

Pam Mellinger went to the Pentagon, from April 28 to May 1 with Marlena M. Kelly, K-Bay Youth Services Program Coordinator, to address issues that concern teenagers on Marine Corps Bases

Mellinger was one of 14 teenagers from 13 bases worldwide who spoke to a panel of four Department of Defense committee members about topics ranging from drug/alcohol programs to hours of operation for base youth centers.

Before the group went to the Pentagon, they spent four days dividing and prioritizing the issues they wanted to address

Not only did the teenagers identify their problems, they offered possible solutions for the panel

The teen delegates informed the panel of five main issues or problems young adults face being part of a Marine Corps family.

Drugs, alcohol and crisis intervention (Mellinger's issue) was one of the main issues addressed by the teen coalition. With the constant uprooting and moving from base to base, teenagers are the most affected. Missing their old friends and having to make new ones is not always easy for teenagers. These difficulties may cause a teen to get depressed, often turning to drugs and alcohol or even suicide as a way to escape their problems. To combat these problems the Teen Summit suggested drug and alcohol education programs as well as a base hotline that troubled teens can call for help

The second issue was making the transition from base to base smoother for young adults. The solution for this problem, suggested by the summit, was a Teen Sponsorship Program just like the ones military members have when they receive orders to a new base.

Transportation for teenagers was also a problem identified by Teen Summit 2000. Some bases are small enough for teenagers to walk to the Youth Activity Centers, but that is not always the case for large bases such as Camp Lejeune or Camp Pendleton. Parents don't always have the time to shuttle their teens around the base. The solution proposed was a customized shuttle service for the Youth Activities Centers on the big bases.

The need for new Youth Centers oriented only to teenagers was proposed during TS 2000. The Summit suggested the new centers could provide better activities and initiatives implemented by the

Teen sponsorship programs, dances, computers, websites and summer camps could provide the social environment and positive reinforcement that young adults need. The Summit even suggested the renovation of unused buildings on bases as opposed to building a new facility on every base. There was also a call for a sports area that caters to extreme sports, such as with rollerblades and skate-

Last, but not least, with the majority of teenagers enjoying their youth activity centers there was a call for longer hours of operation.

"I think it was worth it to go (to Teen Summit 2000) and tell them what's wrong with our bases so they can do something about it," said Mellinger. "It felt like our (opinion) was being heard."

Marine Corps Marathon Staff Visits Exchanges to Offer 2000 Race Entries

Marine Corps Marathon

The Marine Corps Marathon's staff will visit Marine Corps Exchanges throughout the United States and on Okinawa, Japan. as part of "MCM Goodwill Tour 2000." As a way of thanking Marines and their families for their support since the race started, the MCM staff has 925 bib numbers to be raffled off during the tour.

"We wanted to thank the Marines who have given 25 years of service and support to their marathon," said Rick Nealis, the race's director. "This way, they will get a second chance to enter the 6th largest marathon in the nation.

Registration was closed 96 hours after it opened, which meant many Marines may not be able to officially participate in the "The People's Marathon" this October.

Each command visited by the team will receive a proportioned amount of bib numbers, which will then be entered into a lottery system.

The MCM staff will be set up in the entrance lobby at Exchanges so that any authorized patron will be able to fill out a raffle ticket, and have a chance to get a bib number. Drawings will be held at the end of the day. The installations scheduled to be visited are:

MCAS Miramar, CA, Friday, June 2; MCRD San Diego, CA, Saturday, June 3; MCB Camp Pendleton, CA, Sunday. June 4; MCAS Yuma, AZ, Tuesday, June 6; MCAGCC 29 Palms, CA, Wednesday, June 7; MCLB Barstow, CA, Thursday, June 8; MCBH Kaneohe Bay, HI, Friday, June 23; MCB Camp Butler, Okinawa, Japan, Sunday, June 25; Henderson Hall, HQMC, Arlington, VA, Friday, July 7; and MCB Quantico, VA, Friday July 14.

The chosen ticket-holders will be able to fill out the application for the race, according to Nealis.

"All they have to do is mail in the application, along with the winning ticket and entry fee to the Marine Corps Marathon office." Nealis said.

In addition to having an opportunity to participate in the 25th Marine Corps Marathon, Exchange patrons will be able sample and purchase merchandis Marathon's sponsors like Fiji Water, Ulitima Replenisher, and Brooks Sports.

"This premier tour will give our Marines another opportunity to enter the Marine Corps Marathon while showcasing the Marathon itself, its valued sponsors, and our Marine Corps Exchanges throughout our Corps," said Brigadier General Leif H. Hendrickson, commanding general of Marine Corps Base Quantico where the Marine Corps Marathon is

He went on to say that it would also give installations an opportunity to showcase fitness activities at their respective installations.

"I hope this premier tour will become an annual event," he concluded.

ALL PERSONS SUBJECT TO POLICE INVESTIGATION

Many people get arrested and are soon "released pending investigation" (RPI). RPI certainly does not mean you can't be charged with the crime later on. If you are ever arrested, remember to:

Always be polite to the police, even if you think your arrest is improper.

Never talk to anyone about your case except an experienced criminal defense attorney. Never talk to a cellmate about your case, he may be a "rat" or a police plant Frequently, people who do get convicted are done so, in part, based upon information THEY told the police or anyone other than an attorney.

Your Constitutionally protected right to remain silent can not be used against you even if your case goes to trial.

At your first opportunity, call for a free legal evaluation of your case by an attorney with over 25 years of Criminal Defense Trial experience
